Grand Hyatt Miami Beach to Open in 2023

Özgür Töre 25 February 2020

Hyatt announced 800-room Grand Hyatt Miami Beach that will create a new hospitality option for visitors attending events at the adjacent Miami Beach Convention Center.

The hotel, which will welcome guests in 2023, will become only the second Grand Hyatt property in Florida, joining Grand Hyatt Tampa Bay. The hotel development is being led by David Martin of Terra and Jackie Soffer of Turnberry, whose plans for the hotel were overwhelmingly approved by Miami Beach voters in 2018. The 17-story hotel will be situated at the intersection of 17th Street and Convention Center Drive, within walking distance of the beachfront, Lincoln Road Mall, New World Symphony, The Bass Museum and The Fillmore Miami Beach.

Grand Hyatt Miami Beach will be designed by internationally acclaimed architect Bernardo Fort-Brescia and his firm, Miami-based Arquitectonica. The team also includes partner Craig Robins of Dacra, who is the visionary behind the Miami Design District and helped revive Miami Beach's Art Deco District in the 1990s; Stonehill Taylor, which is designing the hotel's interior lobby and lounges, ballroom and meeting rooms, hotel rooms and all common areas; EOA, which is designing the pool deck hospitality features of the hotel; and Arquitectonica GEO, which is creating lush pedestrian promenades and landscapes.

Hotel features are expected to include 12 floors of guest rooms offering views of Miami Beach, two floors of meeting spaces and ballrooms that will complement the Convention Center, a resort-style pool deck with panoramic views, and limited retail space that will activate the district at street level. An elevated skybridge will enable event attendees to move freely between the hotel and Convention Center in a climate-controlled, art-filled corridor.

Plans also include landscaped pedestrian promenades on surrounding streets, bike sharing stations, connectivity with public transit routes, dedicated ridesharing pick-up and drop-off zones, and direct access between the Convention Center and Lincoln Road. The project's resiliency and sustainability measures include storm water management and reuse, flood risk mitigation, and the use of solar power – all of which are designed to ensure operational continuity during weather events.

"The Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) joins Terra, Turnberry and The City of Miami Beach in welcoming the Grand Hyatt Miami Beach as the newly named brand for the 800-room headquarter hotel connected to the Miami Beach Convention Center," said William D. Talbert, III, CDME, President of the GMCVB. "Grand Hyatt Miami Beach makes it possible to better compete for citywide conventions which fuel jobs in our community and generates business for all of Greater Miami's hotels and merchants. We look forward to the hotel ground-breaking which once completed will finalize the Miami Beach Convention Center District."

5 Outdoor, Adventure Activities In Miami

Will McGough Contributor

Travel

I write about travel destinations and the people I meet along the way.

Miami is full of sunshine and outdoor activities. GETTY

Miami is known as a city for its pulsing culture and happening nightlife. Of course, it's also on the water - both the ocean and the intracoastal - providing plenty of opportunities to get outside. Here are five recommendations for your next visit:

Air Boat Ride at Sawgrass Recreation Area

The Everglades is South Florida's playground, and there's nothing like an air boat ride through its shallow, gator-inhabited waters. Sawgrass Recreation Park is located less than an hour outside of the city and puts you in the thick of it all, offering daily air boat tours through the shallow water and tall grass. Perfect for all ages, the fan boat is a fun, wild ride that seems to fly over the water, and gator sightings are all but guaranteed. File this one under "oldie but goodie" - don't skip exploring this unique ecosystem and the chance to spot gators, fish, and birds.

Kayaking at Oleta State Park

Oleta State Park is dense in its offerings, from its mangrove trails to the calm blue waters of North Biscayne Bay. There's a fishing pier, bike trails, hiking trails, and plenty of waterway for kayaking. At 1,000 acres, it is Florida's largest urban park, just thirty minutes from downtown Miami. Here, you can escape the rush of the city with a quiet afternoon, and even spend the night in one of its rustic cabins.

Surfing in South Beach, Miami. GETTY

Surf Lesson on South Beach

Much of the attention puts the spotlight on the nightlife in Miami and South Beach, but let's not forget about the actual beach and the ocean as a playground. The surf is relatively consistent in South Beach, especially for beginners looking to pick off smaller waves. It's a great place to take a surf lesson, then enjoy an afternoon nap (before heading out for that infamous nightlife).

Rollerblading Along the Beach Path

It may sound simple, or too 1970s, but we suggest you try out this old-school activity and pretty much guarantee that you'll wonder why you don't do it more often. Lace 'em up and skate along the beach path in South Beach, taking in the sights and sounds - the water, the sand, the buildings, and the people. You'll cover more ground than you would walking, and it's a nice change from being on a bike.

Wynwood Walls Walking Tour

This one is for those of you who consider city walking enough of an adventure. Take an official walking tour of the Wynwood Walls, an outdoor museum that's the centerpiece of the Wynwood neighborhood. Once an industrial area with little to offer in the way of art and culture, artists and creatives have transformed these blocks into a haven for street art.

The Wynwood Walls are large outdoor canvases that celebrate and showcase the work of professional artists from around the globe, each bringing their own unique style. Walking tours last about an hour and explain the beginnings of the neighborhood, as well as the styles and meanings behind many of the large murals.

5 Reasons To Stay At The Gabriel Hotel In Downtown Miami

Headed to Miami? There are many, many options of where to stay in the different parts of the city. But don't overlook the downtown area, where new bars and restaurants are popping up, and where you have easy, centralized access to the city's attractions and neighborhoods. Looking for something fresh? Here are five reasons to consider staying at The Gabriel Hotel in Downtown Miami.

The Rooms and Views

The view from The Gabriel is interesting in that the east-facing rooms provide an expansive lookout over many parts of the city - the downtown skyline to the south, the cruise ship ports straight out in front, and then the island of Miami Beach off in the distance.

View of the intracoastal from the lower floors of the Gabriel Hotel. ©2019 SMITH PHOTOGRAPHY INC.

You can also see both the intracoastal waterway as well as the Atlantic Ocean. This mix means you get multiple perspectives on Miami and its parts - the cruise industry, the beach, the city streets - each playing its own key role in the city's overall identity.

The Restaurant

The Gabriel's in-house restaurant, CVLTVRA, was designed to celebrate the “melting pot” of Miami's cultures.

“When we decided on what type of cuisine to offer, it was originally based on all the Latin American flavors that the city has to offer,” said Chef Fabian Di Paolo.

“From Mexican to Colombian to Peruvian, for example, Miami is a melting pot of cultures that we wanted to highlight in our dishes. I then combined these flavors with the culinary experiences from my travels throughout the Mediterranean to create CVLTVRA's Latin-Med fusion concept.”

Open for breakfast, lunch, and dinner, dishes on the menu include grilled octopus, pork carintas tacos, pollo asado, and conch ceviche.

The Rooftop Pool

High above the city streets of downtown is the rooftop and pool of The Gabriel. It feels like something you might find in Miami Beach, a rectangular pool with pink lights illuminating its waters, lounge chairs and umbrellas, palm trees lining the sun-soaked deck.

Order drinks or food to your poolside lounge, or hit up the hot tub on the eastern edge that overlooks the intracoastal waterway, Miami Beach, and the cruise ship ports.

Centralized Location to Wynwood, Downtown, and American Airlines Arena

If you're in town to see a concert or a Heat game, then the Gabriel is in the perfect location. You can see the American Airlines Arena from the hotel, making it very easy and convenient to walk right over. It's also within a reasonable distance of other main attractions, including Miami Beach (10-15 minute Uber ride) and Wynwood (same). Of course, you can simply step out the front door and walk easily to the bars and restaurants in downtown Miami.

Sexy Art and Design

If you're feeling frisky in Miami, the Gabriel wants to celebrate it. Located throughout the hotel you'll find some sexy and limit-pushing art, reminding you that Miami is classy, but certainly no city of innocence.

In the lobby, look for the picture with three girls licking a heart-shaped taffy, and on the 14th floor (pool level) you'll find some partially-nude, beach yoga photos. All have been curated in a stylish way - i.e. there's no outright nudity to worry about, should you be traveling with your parents - but it definitely sets the tone should you find yourself on a weekend getaway.

This Train Is All The Rage Right Now In South Florida

Will McGough Contributor @

Travel

I write about travel destinations and the people I meet along the way.

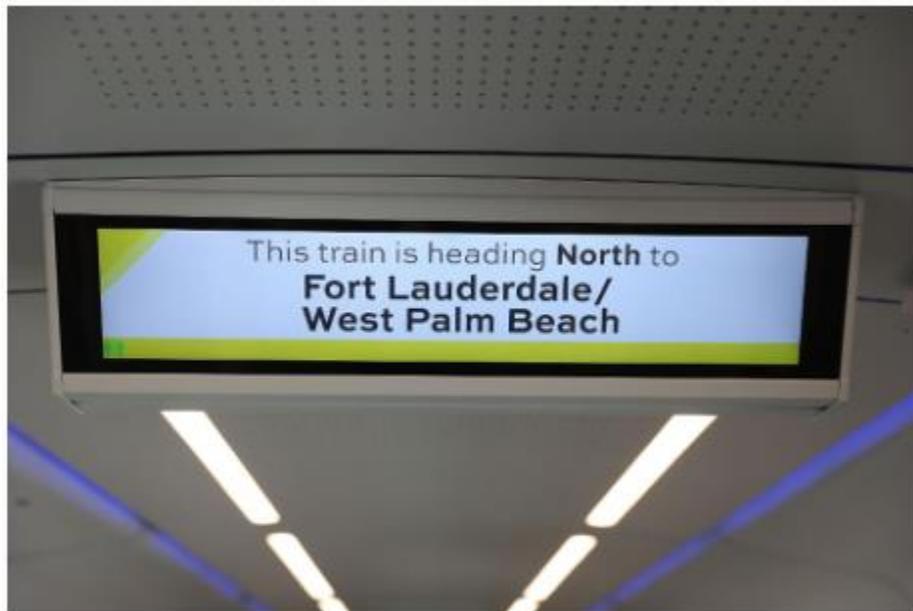

The Brightline Train in Florida. 2018 GETTY IMAGES

In 2018, Florida's Brightline Train took its inaugural ride and began offering service between Miami, Fort Lauderdale, and West Palm Beach (soon, it will add Orlando to its routes). In the two years since, the Brightline has become a preferred way of travel, not only for visitors exploring South Florida, but for locals looking for flexibility. Here are five things to know about the new(ish) Brightline Train:

It's Built with the Future in Mind

Aside from taking cars off the road, the Brightline has pledged to use the best technology available in running its operation. Brightline meets the highest emissions standards, Tier 4, set by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and uses clean biodiesel to fuel the trains. They are American-made and 100% Buy America-compliant, manufactured by Siemens in Sacramento and designed by architects and interior designers from the Rockwell Group.

The Brightline train stops in Miami, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach, and Orlando. GETTY IMAGES

It's Fast and Affordable

Today In: Travel

The routes include Miami to Fort Lauderdale (30 minutes), Fort Lauderdale to West Palm Beach (30 minutes), Miami to West Palm Beach (65 minutes), and, eventually, West Palm Beach to Orlando (90 minutes). With the connections, the trip from Miami to Orlando will take 3 hours.

This is great news for travelers. You will be able to fly into Miami and out of Orlando, or vice versa, allowing you to explore more destinations without driving or backtracking. This is huge in terms of planning, giving more flexibility to your travel plans.

There are two types of reserved seating service. Both have bicycle and luggage storage, free high-speed wifi, and power and USB outlets at every seat. "Smart service" is the most economical, with the option to purchase food and beverages. Tickets start at $14 one-way.

It's Fun

For a small upgrade, you can get “Select Service” that includes complimentary food and beverages, alcoholic and non, in the dedicated station lounge and on the train (read: free drinks, including beer, wine, liquor, and champagne). The select service cabins also have wider seats and complimentary parking - the latter surely proving to be a valuable, useful add-on. Tickets are surprisingly reasonable, especially if you factor in the cost of drinks. They start at just $32 for one-way Select service.

Regardless of which service you choose, you'll be treated to great views as you travel down the coast of Florida.

It Has a Partnership With Lyft to Get You to the Station

Sometimes, the convenience of taking the train is reduced if it's a hassle to get to the station. Brightline combats this a few ways. First, the aforementioned free parking with a Select Service ticket. But in the case you don't have a car or don't want to drive, there's another incentive: an exclusive rideshare partnership with Lyft that offers riders $5 off a Lyft ride to/from any Brightline station with the purchase of a train ticket.

The Concept is Going to Expand to Other Parts of America

Brightline's west coast concept - now known and rebranded as Virgin Trains USA - is already working on a new project, a train that will connect Los Angeles and Las Vegas. As of now, it is on track to open in 2023.

HOTEL DEVELOPMENT MIAMI

THE GRAND HYATT BRAND SELECTED AS FLAG FOR NEW 800 ROOM MIAMI BEACH CONVENTION CENTER HOTEL

🕒 February, 25 2020 🍷 Hyatt

Arquitectonica-designed, 800-room hotel is slated to open in 2023

The development team behind Miami Beach's new Convention Center hotel announced today that an 800-room property will be operated by Hyatt under the luxury Grand Hyatt brand, when it opens to guests in 2023. Grand Hyatt Miami Beach will create a new hospitality option for visitors attending events at the adjacent Miami Beach Convention Center, which underwent a $600 million renovation that was completed last year, and anchor the Convention Center District.

The hotel development is being led by David Martin of Terra and Jackie Soffer of Turnberry, whose plans for the hotel were overwhelmingly approved by Miami Beach voters in 2018. The 17-story hotel will be situated at the intersection of 17th Street and Convention Center Drive, within walking distance of the beachfront, Lincoln Road Mall, New World Symphony, The Bass Museum and The Fillmore Miami Beach.

"For years, Miami Beach has served as a global destination for arts, culture, shopping, dining and entertainment, but the City has lacked a true headquarters hotel for top-tier conventions and meetings," said Martin and Soffer. "South Florida's first Grand Hyatt hotel will maximize Miami Beach's investment in its re-imagined Convention Center while bridging the physical gap that exists between the Convention Center District and surrounding neighborhoods."

The new hotel will become only the second Grand Hyatt property in Florida, joining Grand Hyatt Tampa Bay. Grand Hyatt hotels are designed to connect guests with iconic experiences, landmarks and cultural touchstones in captivating destinations around the world. Hallmarks of the brand include bold and vibrant design and architecture, elevated amenities and welcoming service that creates moments of more.

"At Hyatt, we believe in growing with intent and expanding our footprint in markets that matter most to our guests and World of Hyatt members," said David Tarr, senior vice president, development, Americas, Hyatt. "Hyatt is proud to play an integral role in this project as hotel operator, under the luxury Grand Hyatt brand, which will help guests and locals alike celebrate the iconic, captivating city of Miami Beach."

Grand Hyatt Miami Beach will be designed by internationally acclaimed architect Bernardo Fort-Brescia and his firm, Miami-based Arquitectonica. The team also includes partner Craig Robins of Dacra, who is the visionary behind the Miami Design District and helped revive Miami Beach's Art Deco District in the 1990s; Stonehill Taylor, which is designing the hotel's interior lobby and lounges, ballroom and meeting rooms, hotel rooms and all common areas; EOA, which is designing the pool deck hospitality features of the hotel; and Arquitectonica GEO, which is creating lush pedestrian promenades and landscapes.

Hotel features are expected to include 12 floors of guest rooms offering views of Miami Beach, two floors of meeting spaces and ballrooms that will complement the Convention Center, a resort-style pool deck with panoramic views, and limited retail space that will activate the district at street level. An elevated skybridge will enable event attendees to move freely between the hotel and Convention Center in a climate-controlled, art-filled corridor.

Plans also include landscaped pedestrian promenades on surrounding streets, bike sharing stations, connectivity with public transit routes, dedicated ridesharing pick-up and drop-off zones, and direct access between the Convention Center and Lincoln Road. The project's resiliency and sustainability measures include storm water management and reuse, flood risk mitigation, and the use of solar power – all of which are designed to ensure operational continuity during weather events.

"The Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) joins Terra, Turnberry and The City of Miami Beach in welcoming the Grand Hyatt Miami Beach as the newly named brand for the 800-room headquarter hotel connected to the Miami Beach Convention Center," said William D. Talbert, III, CDME, President of the GMCVB. "Grand Hyatt Miami Beach makes it possible to better compete for citywide conventions which fuel jobs in our community and generates business for all of Greater Miami's hotels and merchants. We look forward to the hotel ground-breaking which once completed will finalize the Miami Beach Convention Center District."

Any list of great beer destinations will include the mainstays: San Diego. Grand Rapids. Burlington. Asheville. Both Portlands. Seattle. Basically any city in Colorado. Dig a little deeper and you'll find your Traverse City, Michigans, and Hood River, Oregons. They're all great places. You should go to them and drink all their wonderful beer and enjoy their corn hole tables and eat your weight in Bavarian pretzels. But here's the thing: The big list of Great American Beer Cities has been sitting around stagnating longer than a hard-to-find stout in a beer snob's cellar (which is actually just a closet).

To add a little freshness to go with our fresh hops, we tapped some of our favorite and most trusted beer writers to identify the best under-the-radar beer destinations around the US this year. Beyond the beer scenes, they're places we straight-up love that'd be worth a visit even if they weren't drowning in excellent ales. Pack extra growlers: These are the essential trips for beer lovers this year.

Miami, Florida

Essential brewery stops: J. Wakefield, Unseen Creatures Brewing & Blending, The Tank Brewing, 3 Sons

Miami is a perennial vacation for the beach-obsessed, but it's increasingly one for the beer-obsessed as well. From J. Wakefield's pioneering fruited "Florida weisse" ales to Unseen Creatures' mixed-fermentation beers to Tank Brewing's easy-drinking lineup, there's plenty of variety to explore. And explore you should. A new Museum of Graffiti recently opened in Wynwood within walking distance of J. Wakefield, Wynwood Brewing, Veza Sur, and Concrete Beach -- the latter of which offers free tours at 7 PM on weeknights and on weekends every hour between 1-4pm.

Food-focused travelers will also want to hit up the new Luna Park, a three-floor, 40,000 square-foot Italian-focused food hall housing bars, restaurants, and a market that opened in mid-December 2019. Frontier, Delta, and American Airlines are all adding new service to Miami International Airport this spring and summer, making it easier to immerse yourself in Miami's suddenly booming beer scene than ever. -- Kate Bernot

MIAMILAND Becomes Florida's Largest Theme Park

ENTERTAINMENT | MACKENZIE CULLEN | FEBRUARY 22, 2020

Walt Disney World may be considered “The Happiest Place on Earth,” but it can no longer hold onto its reputation of Florida’s largest theme park. This honor now goes to the action–adventure “theme park” MIAMILAND. Bigger than Disney World and Universal Orlando Resorts combined, MIAMILAND will appeal to nature–lovers and adventure–seekers alike.

The park was developed by The Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) as a way for tourists to view the region of Miami as one big theme park. The truth is that MIAMILAND is not so much a theme park as it is a concept, as its attractions are comprised of Miami's already-existing sites, such as the Everglades National Park and Biscayne National Park.

MIAMILAND is an extension of the Found In Miami campaign, which encourages visitors to experience the adventure and natural beauty that only Miami's environment can provide. The GMCVB has designed a three-phased campaign to appeal to travelers with an "explorer" mindset and who wish to see the natural side of Miami on their vacation.

"We are leveraging our natural assets to attract new visitors and extend length of stay for existing customers," said William D. Talbert III, CDME, President & CEO of the GMCVB.

The campaign began with mysterious teaser videos that promoted a new theme park, garnering both local and tourist interest. The second phase then revealed Greater Miami's natural assets as the basis for MIAMILAND, advertising Miami's national parks and beaches. The third and final phase emphasizes sustainability, providing new content, itineraries and trip-planning options.

“Greater Miami offers a diversity of people and places but also a diversity of experiences,” continued Talbert. “We are well-positioned among adventure enthusiasts and wellness-seekers looking for adventure: from our city and county parks to our 35 miles of beaches, MIAMILAND shines a new light on the destination’s adventure offerings.”

Kimpton Surfcomber Hotel, Miami Beach, Florida

Is your pup ready to be pampered like a canine celebrity? Then head to the Kimpton Surfcomber Hotel in Miami Beach. It's part of the Kimpton hotel family, which is probably the most pet-friendly hotel chain we know. For example, all Kimpton hotels have a nightly wine reception, and pets are welcome to join the party at select hotels. The Surfcomber is located in a historic Art Deco building, with a palm-tree-lined pool and a silky sand beach as its playground. Just remember your sunscreen!

OK, we're saving this gem for last—we almost hate to let the secret out! A Place in the Sun is comprised of 18 bungalows situated around a courtyard with a pool, barbecue, jacuzzi and putting green. Attention film fans: The location was originally built to house the crew of the Elizabeth Taylor classic A Place in the Sun. Miami's Wynwood Walls and the Evolution of Street Art on Instagram

Painted walls.

Writer Laura Itzkowitz

The first time I visited Miami's Wynwood Walls, three years ago, I posed for a photo in front of a technicolour mural by Brooklyn-based artist Maya Hayuk. I had seen her work before in New York and was drawn to the bright colours and geometric abstraction. Shortly after posting my photo on Instagram, I saw a friend post a picture of herself in front of the same mural.

If you've ever visited the Wynwood Walls, you might have had a similar experience. Instagram and the Walls, which both just celebrated their 10th anniversaries, were created within a year of each other and have a rather symbiotic relationship. As people began posting pictures of the Walls on Instagram, more people were inspired to visit them, and so the cycle continues. There are currently 802K Instagram posts tagged #wynwoodwalls. The free open-air street art museum receives almost three million visitors per year.

“The first two people who came in here—one tried to rob me and one tried to sell me drugs,” Peter Tunney, who runs the Peter Tunney Experience gallery inside the Wynwood Walls, tells me on my most recent visit. We’re sitting in a corner of his gallery, which is decked out with oversized chandeliers, wall-to-wall carpets, and his paintings. Tony Goldman, the visionary real estate developer who got hold of a bunch of warehouses in this formerly desolate part of Miami, tapped Tunney to be the first tenant in his new art-centric neighbourhood. Goldman and legendary gallerist Jeffrey Deitch curated the first murals, inviting Shepard Fairey, Kenny Scharf, Futura, and a few others to create site-specific works. Goldman believed that if he built it, people would come—and he was right.

A mural outside the Wynwood Walls.

“My dad always said that no matter how hard you strive to create or build something, once you put it out there, it takes on a life of its own. The Walls are bigger and more popular than anyone in my family could have ever dreamed,” Jessica Goldman Srebnick—who took over curating the walls when her father passed away—wrote in Walls of Change: The Story of the Wynwood Walls published by Assouline to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the Walls.

I have family in Florida, so I make a yearly pilgrimage to Miami, and every time I do, I make sure to visit the Wynwood Walls. I always discover some new murals in or around the officially designated walls. I’ve spotted murals by artists who I’ve interviewed or whose work I know from the art scene in New York and elsewhere.

Between these visits, I've done street art tours in Rome, Lisbon, São Paulo, and beyond. I've watched as street art has evolved from an act of vandalism to a legitimate art form, with artists being flown around the world and commissioned to create monumental murals in public spaces and participate in high-profile events like Art Basel. The Wynwood Walls paved the way for the genre's transformation—and the neighbourhood's. Now Wynwood's streets are lined with boutiques, bars, and restaurants like Bakan, a charming Mexican spot where I had lunch before meeting Tunney.

A mural depicting Dalí and Basquiat by Kobra.

“Street artists are stealing the show and people are really interested in what they’re doing,” Tunney says, leading me out of his gallery and into the art park. He stops to show me the detailed mural by Japanese artist Tomokazu Matsuyama, explaining that bringing street art out of the shadows has allowed artists like Matsuyama to dedicate their time and energy to creating incredible works of art. As we enter the Goldman Global Arts Gallery, which currently has a 10th-anniversary show and a solo exhibition of work by Shepard Fairey, whose portrait of Barack Obama came to symbolize the president’s 2008 campaign, Tunney mentions that everything in Fairey’s show sold—a powerful testament to street art’s cultural and economic value.

“It feels like when you walk through these streets, the energy changes.” Tunney says.

It feels like when you walk through those gates, the oxygen changes," Tunney says. "You're entering a sanctuary of some kind." He notes that in the 10 years that the Wynwood Walls have existed, there has never been a single incidence of violence or defacing. Perhaps it's the gate and the paths leading through the grass that make people respect the murals as they would paintings in a museum, but the fact that it's free and open to everyone makes the Wynwood Walls approachable and fun to visit. "You have an unbelievable melting pot in Miami," Tunney says with a grin. "It's like Art Basel everyday here."

The Walls are a popular backdrop for photos.

Story and photos by Lynn Burshtein

For the first half of the 20th Century, Miami was often considered a low-key resort town for retirees, a place to escape winter and play games of Canasta or MahJong while sunning by the pool. Fast forward several decades and the city experienced a surge in population. Businesses grew and the once quaint art deco buildings were transformed into glamorous hotels and hip nightclubs. The city's art scene prospered and buzzy South Beach became a de facto fashion runway. Miami is now mainly looked upon as a decadent destination befitting of stars and socialites.

The Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau wants you to know, however, that there are adventure travel experiences and plenty of activities to experience in Miami besides sunbathing and shopping. So, a group of intrepid travel writers from around the globe, including representatives from Brazil, the UK, the US and Canada, were recently treated to a four-day whirlwind of adventure activities that left us literally and figuratively breathless.

Our journey began at the PaliHouse hotel, a restored Art Deco property originally built in the 1940s, then opened as a hotel in October 2019. With its retro-kitsch style, this low-rise hotel offers a number of active-minded amenities, including the Beach Butler, a valet service that provides roundtrip transportation to nearby Mid-Beach (much quieter than South Beach), as well as al fresco dining options at the hotel's charming Greenbriar Swim & Social Club (the swim club also offers outdoor yoga classes). The hotel is a ten-minute bike ride away from Sunset Harbour) a neighborhood where fitness studios and juice bars abound. Bikes are available on loan to guests of PaliHouse

Over the next few days, we kayaked to Oleta River State Park near Biscayne Bay, on scenic waterways through mangrove forests, paddling to a quiet island inhabited by remarkably friendly raccoons. We also visited Jungle Island, an eco-adventure park on Watson Island that offers up-close-and-personal encounters with exotic animals including lemurs, capybaras, sloths, flamingos and macaws.

We were told this attraction site has been visited by the likes of Beyonce, Jennifer Lopez and Shakira, whose flamboyant wardrobes have been no doubt inspired by the vibrant colors of the Jungle Island parrots. Some brave souls also tested SuperFlight, a wind tunnel flight simulator that provided each participant with a few minutes of airborne excitement. Filled with trepidation, and experiencing a sore back, I made like the resident sloths and watched from the sidelines.

The action continued near Key Largo and Key West, where we had a chance to visit the famed Florida Everglades. At Everglades Alligator Farm near the entrance of Everglades National Park, we witnessed a snake show and slow-moving alligators. We also took an airboat tour of the park, followed by a back-country boat tour of the Everglades River, where we saw crocodiles and manatees, as well as Blue Herons. The park also offers canoeing, kayaking and bike routes.

To be closer to the Everglades, we moved to the Miccosukee Resort & Gaming, owned by the Miccosukee Tribe of Indians of Florida. A massive property with endless rooms of 24-hour/day casino gaming, this is not a wellness resort by any means, but guest rooms are large and offer all key amenities. However, if wellness-minded travelers are bent on finding eco-minded lodging near the Everglades, they could rent one of the newly-constructed, furnished Eco-tents at Flamingo Everglades Park for a rustic glamping experience.

Aside from the fitness adventures with back-to-back nature experiences, our hosts also provided fascinating walking tours of historical downtown Miami and the outdoor street art museum at Wynwood Walls which boasts works by Shepard Fairey and Kenny Scharf, among other notable modern artists. Considered the "Brooklyn of Miami" this is definitely a must-see for art aficionados.

We certainly did not go hungry those four days either, having dined extravagantly at the Greenbriar Swim & Social all-day restaurant at the PaliHouse and sampled delicious Italian food at Genuine Pizza at the outdoor Aventura Mall as well as at Bravissimo restaurant at the Miccosukee resort. We also indulged in high-end surf & turf at Meat Market on pedestrian-friendly Lincoln Road, and had a memorable lunch at the Asian food hall, 1-800-Lucky located near Wynwood Walls. In addition, we also ventured to the Kendall district for a Peruvian meal at Pisco Y Nazca Ceviche Gastropub. Our meals were not wellness-oriented, per se, but most menus had at least a few healthy (including vegetarian) options.

I now see Miami in a whole different light. It is a destination filled with adventure and eco-minded wellness options and authentic street life that goes well beyond the beaches.

Les touches nostalgiques incluent le nouveau bar du premier étage – maintenant surnommé le bar Lapidus, un endroit intime au bout du long hall conçu par Meg Sharpe Interiors, une firme basée à New York. Le bar fait de marbre robuste est agrémenté d'un lustre en or conçu pour ressembler à des feuilles d'or. La moulure complexe dans les chambres, conçue par la firme de Miami Hirsch Bedner Associates, est inspirée du style Art déco des années 1950.

Ce qui est nouveau est destiné à souligner le luxe de la marque Ritz-Carlton: vaisselle et luminaires en cristal, revêtements muraux avec flamants roses et accents de bois de couleur café.

"Miami est une ville tellement glamour, a déclaré Cynthia Boyett, directrice de l'hôtel. Nous voulions intégrer cet aspect dans la conception."

New lobby bar Ritz-Carlton South Beach

L'ajout le plus important est le nouveau restaurant de l'hôtel, Fuego y Mar, qui propose une cuisine latino-américaine et caribéenne. Le restaurant dispose de sols carrelés légers, d'un mobilier corail et bleu d'inspiration yacht et de portes qui ouvrent l'espace sur le coin salon et le bar au bord de la piscine donnant sur l'Atlantique.

Ce n'est pas la première fois que l'hôtel subit une importante vague de rénovations, mais le visage de South Beach n'était sans contredit pas le même sans le Ritz-Carlton.

Chaque année, l'évènement permet aux agents de voyages de se tenir à jour des nouveautés de la destination en assistant à des séances d'information et en rencontrant divers fournisseurs.

Pour la première fois cette année, le bureau de tourisme de Sunny Isles Beaches s'est joint à l'évènement pour faire d'une pierre deux coups et faire découvrir la destination aux agents.

Nous venons donc pour rappeler aux Canadiens que nous sommes là et les inciter à venir nous visiter lorsqu'ils viennent à Miami. Nous sommes situés à seulement 20 minutes de l'aéroport international de Miami et à 10 minutes de Fort Lauderdale et de Port Everglades. C'est donc un endroit idéal pour les séjours pré ou postcroisière. Nous sommes également situés à cinq minutes du centre commercial Aventura et tous nos hôtels sont situés en front de mer», a-t-elle fait valoir.

Ouverture récente du Generator Miami

À l'occasion de la foire touristique qui s'est tenue au Ritz-Carlton Montréal, des partenaires hôteliers, tels que la chaîne hôtelière Generator, qui vient d'ouvrir un premier complexe à South Beach, soit le Generator Miami situé sur Collins Avenue, étaient sur place pour rencontrer les agents.

L'hôtel design à l'esthétique originale a ouvert ses portes il y a environ un an et demi et représente une belle option pour les séjours pré ou postcroisière, puisqu'il est situé à seulement quelques mètres de la plage et à quelques minutes du Port de Miami, a expliqué la directrice des ventes de l'hôtel, Paula Duke.

«C'est un hôtel-boutique de 106 chambres au concept unique, car il offre un mélange de suites privées et d'hébergements partagés aux clients. Les clients que nous avons sont de jeunes professionnels qui aiment explorer de nouvelles avenues, découvrir de nouveaux endroits et rencontrer de nouveaux gens. Ils aiment voyager seuls sans être seuls et c'est précisément ce que l'hôtel offre aux jeunes voyageurs.»

Des croisières à l'année au départ de Miami avec Carnival

Le Mardi Gras de Carnival Cruise Line sera suivi d'un navire jumeau qui verra le jour en 2022 et qui sera basé à Miami. (PHOTO: courtoisie de Carnival Cruise Line)

Parmi celles-ci, l'inauguration du Mardi Gras, premier navire à être propulsé au gaz naturel (GNL) de la flotte de Carnival Cruise Line, qui aura lieu en novembre prochain, après avoir été reportée de deux mois et demi.

Un nouveau navire identique en tous points au Mardi Gras, également propulsé au GNL, verra le jour en 2022, année où Carnival célébrera ses 50 ans, a expliqué Mme St. Jean.

Une nouvelle section sera construite au Port de Miami où sera basé le navire jumeau du Mardi Gras (qui n'a pas encore de nom). Le Mardi Gras sera pour sa part basé à Port Canaveral, où un terminal est en train d'être construit au coût de 163 millions pour l'accueillir.

Lynne St. Jean était également sur place pour rappeler aux agents que Miami est une belle destination de départ pour une croisière dans les Caraïbes. «Nous avons plusieurs navires qui partent de Miami à l'année longue et qui offrent des croisières de différentes durées (entre 3-8 jours) dans les Caraïbes. Nous avons beaucoup d'inventaire; nous sommes là à l'année, contrairement à d'autres compagnies de croisière qui quittent après la haute saison.»

«Miami est vraiment l'un des endroits où l'on a le plus de choix en matière de croisières à cause des durées. On offre autant des croisières de courte durée que de longue durée», a-t-elle précisé.

Pour ceux qui auraient manqué l'évènement, un autre salon professionnel était prévu en soirée, cette fois en compagnie des tour-opérateurs canadiens et des lignes aériennes qui vendent la destination. Au total, ce sont environ 50 agents de voyages qui auront été rencontrés dans le cadre de la foire touristique annuelle du Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Welcome to Miami

Miami is an exciting city and a great deal of fun, however, if you are looking to spend more time on the beach, you may want to stay in a hotel on South Beach. While this area is easily accessible from the city, you will have to drive. So, if you were dreaming of staying a short stroll from the glistening white sand beaches and awe-inspiring turquoise waters, you will want to book in South Beach.

There are a number of really posh accommodations in this area that will cost a great deal of money, but plenty of the art deco hotels are offered at a reasonable cost if you book a couple of months in advance.

Keep in mind that pricing is subject to availability and therefore the price will go up closer to the date. Also, if you are unable to fly on these dates, there are a number of them in the $300 - $350 CAD range right now, too.

«MIAMILAND» SOLL DIE ABENTEUERLUST WECKEN

Miami startet mit der neuen Marketingkampagne durch. Die Metropole will mit den Werbemaßnahmen auf das kulturelle Angebot und die vielen Outdoor-Aktivitäten aufmerksam machen.

Das Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau ist bekanntlicherweise für die Vermarktung der Stadt Miami im Süden Floridas zuständig. Getrieben vom steigenden Wunsch der Reisenden, die Destination auf authentische Weise kennenzulernen, hat das Unternehmen das Projekt «Miamiland» als Erweiterung der bestehenden Kampagne «Found in Miami» ins Leben gerufen. Mit den Werbemaßnahmen soll das moderne Miami mit allen seinen kulturellen Angeboten, den hippen Vierteln aber auch die weitläufigen Strände in den Mittelpunkt gerückt werden.

Für die neue Kampagne wurden stimmungsvolle Videos gedreht, die den Zuschauer in das abenteuerliche Miami abtauchen lassen: Zu Beginn erzählt ein kreativer Visionär spannungsvoll von einem geheimnisvollen neuen Themenpark in Miami. Anschliessend werden die Naturschätze der Reisedestination in einem völlig neuen Licht präsentiert und dem Zuschauer wird offenbart, dass «Miamiland» bereits die ganze Zeit existiert. Denn neben weltberühmten Stränden und Hotels lockt die Sonnenmetropole mit Nationalparks, einer vielfältigen Pflanzen- und Tierwelt sowie zahlreichen Outdoor-Aktivitäten. Am Ende erfahren Interessierte alles rund um spannende Reiserouten und Angebote, die es in der Metropole zu entdecken gibt.

Das Art-Deco-Viertel der Stadt beherbergt mehr als 800 Häuser, die zwischen 1923 und 1943 gebaut wurden.

Miamis Hotelszene ist quicklebendig. Mit Spannung erwartet man die Eröffnung des 5200 m² große Art-Deco-Hotels Greystone mit Speakeasy-Lounge im Keller, des Hotels Palomar South Beach mit Pool auf dem Dach und des Wyndham Grand und des TRYP by Wyndham mit Etagenbetten für die Kinder. Kürzlich renoviert: Das JW Marriott Miami Turnberry mit seinem neuen 16-stöckigen Orchid Tower und einem eigenen Wasserpark.

WARMER TAGE UND HEISSE

Nächte: In Miami liegt man tagsüber faul am Strand, und nachts geht es in den Bars und Discos hoch her – so lautet das Klischee, und da ist auch etwas dran. Aber die Stadt hat noch viel mehr zu bieten.

Die Kunstszene in Miami blüht, auch dank der internationalen Kunstmesse Art Basel, deren Ableger jeden Dezember in Miami veranstaltet wird und Galerien aus der ganzen Welt anzieht.

Die Kunst prägt die Stadt, die sich immer wieder neu erfindet, aber das ganze Jahr über. Das Pérez Art Museum Miami für moderne Kunst zog 2013 an einen neuen Standort an der Biscayne Bayfront, The Bass, das Museum für zeitgenössische Kunst, nach einer zweijährigen Renovierung, die 12 Mio. $ kostete, wurde 2017 wiedereröffnet.

Noch innovativer ist das 2018 eröffnete ARTECHOUSE, eine digitale Kunstgalerie, die die Gäste zu einem immersiven Erlebnis einlädt, bei dem Technologie und Kunst Hand in Hand gehen. Und Fans von Street Art werden in den Straßen des Wynwood Art District fündig.

Das Markenzeichen von Miami Beach ist die Art-Deco-Architektur, die man von der 5th bis zur 23rd Street, an der Collins und Washington Avenue und am Ocean Drive findet. Seit 1976 bemüht sich die Stadt, die schönen alten Häuser zu erhalten.

Kein Besuch in Miami ist komplett, ohne dass man die kubanische Küche probiert. Zum Beispiel die Sandwiches mit süßem Schinken und spanischer Wurst auf kubanischem Brot im Versailles in Little Havana.

Neue Attraktionen in Miami

| Euphoric Emporium in Miami

Die kosmopolitische Stadt an der Südspitze Floridas bietet Reisenden neue kulinarische und künstlerische Hotspots wie Rooftop-Bars, Restaurants und Ausstellungen.

Interaktive Ausstellung in Miami: Downtown Miami hält bis Ende März 2020 eine „Selfie“-Erfahrung der besonderen Art bereit: Bei der interaktiven Ausstellung Euphoric Emporium am Venetian Causeway entlang des Bayshore Drive entdecken Besucher 20 ausgefallene Kunstinstallationen, die in neu gestalteten Schiffscontainern präsentiert werden. Jede Installation bietet verschiedene interaktive Erlebnisse: So werden Gäste von der Spitze eines Wolkenkratzers über das Innere einer Schneekugel bis zu einem Raum mit auf den Kopf gestellten Möbeln geführt.

Neue Rooftop-Bar in South Beach: Oberhalb der Lincoln Road eröffnet mit „The Nest“ Miamis neueste Rooftop-Bar und Lounge, die auf über 300m² einen atemberaubenden Blick auf die Skyline der Stadt bietet. Gäste können die Bar in South Beach nur über einen geheimen Aufzug besuchen, der sich in der The Lincoln Eatery Foodhall befindet. Einige der bekanntesten Persönlichkeiten aus dem Gastgewerbe Miamis beteiligten sich an dem neuen Projekt, darunter der erfahrene Nachtclubbesitzer Alan Roth.

Joia Beach am Strand von Jungle Island: Liquid Hospitality freut sich, die Eröffnung von Joia Beach am traumhaften Strand von Jungle Island in diesem Monat bekannt zu geben. Als erstklassige Adresse für Gastronomie, Unterhaltung und Entspannung bietet das europäisch inspirierte Restaurant Einheimischen und Besuchern ein ganztägiges Freizeiterlebnis. Das Designkonzept besteht aus schlichten, aber schicken Elementen. Gäste freuen sich am Mittag und Abend auf eine große Auswahl an authentischen Gerichten des bekannten Chefkochs Erhan Ozkaya.

Nativo Kitchen & Bar im the Conrad Miami: Nativo Kitchen & Bar (NKB) gibt ihr Debüt in Brickell: Das lebendige Restaurant, das vom aufstrebenden Starkoch Pablo Lamon geleitet wird, präsentiert Miamis geschmackvolle, vielfältige und von lateinamerikanischen Einflüssen geprägte Küche. Der gesellige Treffpunkt verwöhnt Gäste mit Frühstück, Mittag- und Abendessen. Während der täglichen Happy Hour in der neuen Lounge genießen Gäste zudem einen faszinierenden Blick auf die Biscayne Bay. (red)

Frühling in den USA - was kann man im Sonnenscheinstaat Florida unternehmen?

Foto: unsplash.com • hochgeladen von Online Redaktion

Kalendarisch beginnt der Frühling in diesem Jahr am 20. März 2020 um 04:49 Uhr. Der Beginn des Frühjahrs ist grundsätzlich zur Zeit der Tagundnachtgleiche, wenn die Sonne exakt über dem Äquator steht. In der Regel weisen bereits vor dem offiziellen Frühjahrsbeginn einige blühende Pflanzen auf den Frühling hin.

Feinsandige Strände, vielseitige Wassersport- und Ausflugsmöglichkeiten und eine entspannte Atmosphäre

In vielen Parks und Gärten blühen schon einige Schneeglöckchen, die traditionell als erste Vorboten des Frühlings betrachtet werden.

Während es hierzulande noch eine Weile dauert, bis es frühlingshaft warm wird, beginnt in einigen Regionen der USA bereits die Badesaison. Mit ganzjährig angenehmen Temperaturen gilt Florida als der "Sunshine-State". Der im Süden der Vereinigten Staaten gelegene Bundesstaat ist für seine feinsandigen Strände und die entspannte Atmosphäre bekannt. Nur 40 Autominuten von der Stadt St. Petersburg, Florida entfernt liegt Caladesi Island. Auf der Insel mit dem ganzjährig milden Klima kann man viel unternehmen. Neben Ausflügen in den Florida State Park bieten sich Aktivitäten wie Wandern, Sonnenbaden oder Kayakfahrten durch die Mangroven-Haine an.

Tiefblaues Wasser und weiße Sandstrände machten Caladesi Island zu einem der bekanntesten Strandziele in den USA. Auch in der nahe gelegenen Stadt St. Petersburg zählen Boots- und Angelausflüge, Strandaufenthalte sowie Golf spielen zu den beliebten Freizeitaktivitäten. In den großzügigen Parkanlagen der Stadt befinden sich Museen wie das Dalí-Museum, in dem Werke des surrealistischen Künstlers zu sehen sind sowie das Museum of Fine Arts, wo es Kunstwerke von der Frühzeit bis zur Moderne zu entdecken gibt. Der Sitz des Florida Orchestras, das Mahaffey Theater, befindet sich ebenfalls im Uferpark. Wer eine Reise in die USA plant, sollte vorher die zur Einreise notwendige ESTA-Genehmigung beantragen. Neben dem gültigen Reisepass muss die elektronische ESTA-Reisegenehmigung bei der Ankunft in den Vereinigten Staaten vorgelegt werden. Der ESTA Antrag für die USA, der hier zu finden ist, wird einfach online ausgefüllt und abgesendet.

Obwohl die durchschnittliche Bearbeitungszeit nur 72 Stunden beträgt, wird empfohlen, sich rechtzeitig um die ESTA-Bestätigung zu kümmern, um Verzögerungen bei der Einreise zu vermeiden. Nach Florida gibt es auch in der Wintersaison zahlreiche Flugverbindungen von verschiedenen deutschen Flughäfen.

Themen- und Freizeitparks zwischen Orlando und Miami entdecken

An der Südspitze Floridas liegt das kosmopolitische Miami. Die von spanischen Einflüssen geprägte Metropole ist für ihre renommierte Kunstszene, vielseitige Unterhaltungsmöglichkeiten und endlos lange feinsandige Strände bekannt. Im benachbarten Orlando befinden sich eine Vielzahl berühmter Themenparks wie der Sea World Park, Walt Disney World und Legoland Florida. Im zoologischen Meerespark Sea World Orlando können Delphin-Vorführungen besucht werden. Darüber hinaus besteht die Möglichkeit, Flamingos, Pelikane, Alligatoren sowie diverse Meeresbewohner live zu erleben. Für Tierliebhaber zählt der Besuch des Disney's Animal Kingdom Themenparks zu den besonderen Erlebnissen. In dem riesigen Freizeitpark können unter anderem Löwen, Tamarinaffen sowie gelbschnablige Amazonenpapageien in der dschungelartigen Umgebung beobachtet werden. Die beste Reisezeit für Florida sind die Monate von November bis April.

Während der Trockenzeit muss kaum mit Regen gerechnet werden, während in der Regenzeit von Juni bis September häufiger kurze Regenschauer für Erfrischung sorgen. Die Hurrikan-Saison in Florida ist zwischen August und Oktober.

MIAMI SPECIAL

TREMENDO!

Kunst, Musik, Kulinarik – Miami gehört zu den vielfältigsten Orten im Süden der USA. Die Stadt am Atlantik hat sehr viel mehr zu bieten als ein hedonistisches Beach-Life und herausgeputzte Art-déco-Fassaden. Seit einigen Jahren hat sich die internationale Kunstszene eingenistet – nicht nur mit der Art Basel, auch einige der wichtigsten Privatsammlungen der USA sind hier beheimatet. Gleichzeitig hat sich Miami Beach mit seinen Postkartenstränden zum Hotspot der internationalen Jeunesse dorée entwickelt – mit champagnerschwangeren Clubnächten und Michelin-besterter Hochküche. Miami ist außerdem ein bedeutender Schmelztiegel eines anderen Kulturraums: Kubanische Straßenfeste, Strandrestaurants aus Uruguay, Cumbia-Bands aus Kolumbien oder Malerei aus Haiti – die ganze Bandbreite Lateinamerikas spiegelt sich in der Stadt wider. In Vierteln, die früher durch Abrisshäuser und Industriebrachen geprägt waren, beleben heute Galerien, Slowfood-Restaurants und Coffeebars die Straßen. Und auch sportlich hat Miami einiges vorzuweisen: Am 2. Februar fand der Super Bowl statt und kürzlich hat David Beckham gemeinsam mit weiteren Investoren einen neuen Fußballverein ins Leben gerufen, der in diesem Jahr seinen Spielbetrieb aufnehmen wird: den Inter Miami CF. Es macht Spaß, die Vielfältigkeit der Stadt zu erkunden und zwischen den Welten zu springen – ganz wie die Bewohner es tun. Die nennt man übrigens Miamians, und für sie ist ihre Stadt schlicht „tremendo – wundervoll“.

● GREGORY'S DINER

Nicht nur die dunklen Mid-Century-Holzmöbel im neuen Restaurant des Vagabond Hotels erinnern an die 1950er-Jahre. Das Gregory's interpretiert den klassischen Diner neu – auch kulinarisch: Neben dem ikonischen New York Strip-Steak stehen Burger und Salate auf der Karte. Eine köstliche Reminiszenz an good old times sind auch US-Suppenklassiker wie Clam Chowder oder Matzo Ball Soup.

● HOMETOWN BBQ

Seit 2013 betreibt das Team um Bill Durney in Brooklyn das „Hometown Bar-B-Que“ und taucht seitdem regelmäßig in den gastronomischen Top-Listen der besten BBQ-Restaurants von New York auf. Seit 2019 gibt es einen Ableger in Miami. Auch hier dreht sich in reduzierter, industriell anmutender Atmosphäre alles um Gegrilltes. Neben Hausklassikern wie Briskets und Ribs wird auch Vegetarisches über dem Feuer zubereitet. Dazu gibt es neun Biersorten vom Fass – sogar Kölsch.

● MICHAEL'S GENUINE

Der Klassiker im Design District punktet mit hochwertigen internationalen Gerichten und unprätentiöser Atmosphäre. Seit 2007 serviert Michael Schwartz saisonale Küche mit regionalen Zutaten und gehört somit zu den Farm-to-Table Pionieren in Miami. Der Küchenchef selbst beschreibt sein Konzept als „Down-to-Earth-Cooking“. Zur Happy Hour serviert das Bar-Team ein Dutzend Austern und einen straighten Manhattan Cocktail für faire 16 US-Dollar.

● LE JARDINIER MIAMI

Grün sind nicht nur die Tulip-Sessel im neuen Miami-Ableger des Michelin-beserterten New Yorker Restaurants – auch die kulinarische Vision ist es. Französisch inspirierte Hochküche mit vegetarischen Zutaten steht auf der Agenda von Küchenchef Alain Verzeroli, der unter anderem schon für Maestro Joël Robuchon gearbeitet hat. Seine Kreationen wie „Watermelon Salad, Heirloom Tomatoes, Ginger, Mint“ sind geschmacklich perfekt ausbalanciert und wie Kunstwerke auf dem Teller arrangiert.

● MIGNONETTE

Aus einer ehemaligen Tankstelle an der 18. Straße ist ein Paradies für Seafood-Liebhaber geworden. Neben Austern in verschiedensten Zubereitungsarten finden sich US-Klassiker wie Lobster Roll auf der Karte. Auch Fleischesser und Vegetarier werden sich in dem Lokal mit den großen Fensterflächen und seinem Retrodesign wohlfühlen. Wer es (ein bisschen) krachen lassen will, kommt mit dem Kaviar- und Champagner-Special zur Happy Hour noch glimpflich davon.

● THE SWAN

Wenn der lokale Gastromogul David Grutman eine neue Location eröffnet, trifft sich dort alles, was reich und schön ist. Wenn sich dann auch noch Musiker Pharrell Williams und der französische Bocuse-Schüler und US-Fernsehkoch Jean Imbert unter die Betreibergesellschaft mischen, sind Promidichte und kulinarische Qualität gesetzt. Unter anderem wurden schon Bella Hadid, Kim Kardashian West oder Alec Monopoly dabei beobachtet, wie sie im cremefarbenen Ambiente des Lokals Burrata mit frischen Feigen oder Spaghetti mit Kaviar genießen.

Shops

● KITH MIAMI

Seit rund drei Jahren ist der legendäre Sneaker- und Streetwear-Store aus NYC auch in Miami mit einem eigenen Standort vertreten. Ronnie Fieg ist das Mastermind hinter der erfolgreichen Einzelhandelsmarke, die auch ihr eigenes Modelabel etabliert hat. Besonders begehrt: Limited Editions und Kooperationen der großen Player wie Adidas oder Nike mit Kith, die es nur hier gibt. Auch im Store in Miami gehen bei Kith Treats Instagram-taugliche Milkshakes und Eiscremes über den Tresen.

● SUPPLY & ADVISE

Sorgfältig kuratierte Herrenmode, darunter viele authentische Traditionslabels aus den USA und Japan, sowie ausgesuchte Work- und Military-Wear gehören zum feinen Sortiment des Shops in Downtown. Hier werden Alden Boots aus Pferdeleder neben begehrten Levi's Vintage-Teilen, Parfums aus der Brooklyn-Duftmanufaktur DS & Druga und handgemachte Lederwaren von Postalco aus Tokyo angeboten.

● THE WEBSTER

Mittlerweile sind die Geschäfte von The Webster auch in Städten wie Houston, Costa Mesa oder New York präsent, aber gestartet ist die Erfolgsgeschichte vor gut zehn Jahren im Art-déco-Gebäude des Webster Hotels in Miami. Auch heute präsentiert Gründerin Laure Hériard Dubreuil einen ausgesuchten Brand-Mix für Fashionliebhaber beiderlei Geschlechts – darunter alles, was angesagt ist, von Alexander Wang bis Vetements. Wer es außergewöhnlicher mag, findet auch immer kleinere Labels wie die Patchwork-Mode von Palm Angels oder die dicken Boots von S.R. Studio. LA CA..

Hotels

● SOHO BEACH HOUSE

Das Soho House in Miami bietet alles, was die Fans an der Gruppe so schätzen: einen Membersclub, der Einheimische mit Hotelgästen zusammenbringt, ausgewählte Inneneinrichtung mit Vintage-Touch sowie ein ikonisches Gebäude – diesmal im Art-déco-Stil an der schicken Collins Avenue. Was diesen Standort allerdings von vielen anderen unterschei-det, ist der direkte Strandzugang und die Zimmer mit Meeresblick. Auch das Format des Inhouse-Italieners Cecconi's fällt in Miami luftiger aus: Hier wird die klassisch italienische Küche unter einer halb überdachten Terrasse serviert.

instagram.com/sohobeachhouse.com

● EAST

Das von Arquitectonica gestaltete Glas-Hochhaus des East Hotels reiht sich perfekt in die Skyline von Downtown ein. Die meisten Zimmer haben bodentiefe Glasfenster, die großzügige Poollandschaft besticht durch den Kontrast der orangefarbenen Möbel zum grauen Sichtbeton. Besonders das Inhouse-Restaurant Quinto La Huella lockt auch Residents ins Hotel. Schließlich ist dies der erste internationale Ableger des legendären Strandrestaurants Parador La Huella in Uruguay. Auch in Miami steht modern interpretierte südamerikanische Küche auf dem Programm, darunter viele Gerichte, die im traditionellen Holzofen zubereitet werden.

● THE STANDARD SPA

Auch der Miami-Ableger der von André Balazs in Los Angeles gegründeten Hotelmarke setzt auf Retro-Design und frische Entertainment-Angebote. Die Architektur des ehemaligen Lido Spa, einem in den 1950ern auf der Belle Isle eröffneten Beach-Motel, wurde in die Anlage integriert. Eine riesige Park- und Poollandschaft untermauert auch heute den Spa-Anspruch. Ergänzt wird dieser von zahlreichen Hydrotherapie-Anwendungen, Yoga- und Fitnessangeboten. Das hauseigene Restaurant namens The Lido Bayside Grill trumpft mit Plätzen direkt am Meer und authentischer japanischer Izakaya Küche auf.

Wellness

● THE SACRED SPACE

Einen Ort zu schaffen, der alle Sinne anspricht, an dem Großstädter entspannen und zu sich selbst finden können, das war die Vision von Karla Dascal, als sie The Sacred Space gründete. Im Alltag manifestiert sich ihr holistischer Gedanke in zahlreichen Kursen und Workshops, unter anderem Yoga und Meditation, mit The Flow, einem Shop, in dem ausgesuchte Wellness- und Beauty-Produkte angeboten werden, sowie mit dem Restaurant Plant. Dort serviert Horacio Rivadero innovative vegetarische und vegane Hochküche.

Bars & Nightlife

● LA COCINA COCTELERÍA

Obwohl die Vorstadt Hialeah längst mit Miami zusammengewachsen und nur knapp eine Viertelstunde Taxifahrt von Downtown entfernt ist, gehört der Hotspot der kubanischen Szene offiziell nicht zum Stadtgebiet. Mit der Cocina Cocteleria hat dort jetzt Marr Kuscher, der hinter vielen anderen erfolgreichen Gastronomien in der Stadt steckt, eine Cocktailbar eröffnet, die sich mit ihrem 1980s Cuban-American-Look perfekt ins Umfeld einfügt. Auch die Bartender sind im Thema mit hochprozentigen lateinamerikanischen Kreationen wie Pata Sucia oder Piñaso. Dazu gibt es köstliche Late-Night Bar-Snacks.

● CHURCHILL'S PUB

Seit 1979 gibt es diese grungige Bar, in der regelmäßig Live-Gigs stattfinden. Das Churchill's ist eine Institution, in die unter anderem Iggy Pop und Marilyn Manson regelmäßig einchecken – und somit nichts für schwache Nerven oder weiße Leinenanzüge. Jeder Tag in der Woche wird bespielt, von Psychedelic bis Punk, nur der Montag gehört traditionell den Jazzfans.

instagram.com/churchills_pub

● THE SYLVESTER BAR

Das Ambiente dieser Cocktailschmiede in Wynwood passt perfekt in die Stadt: Tapeten mit tropischen Mustern, einladende Samtsitzmöbel und Hängepflanzen. Dazu spielt ein DJ softe Yachtrock-Tunes, während die Gäste exotische Cocktails wie Monkey Jungle oder Carrot Cake Colada genießen. An den Wochenenden kommt die Party schon mal ins Rollen – wer es ruhiger mag, kommt zur Happy Hour zwischen 16 und 20 Uhr.

Culture

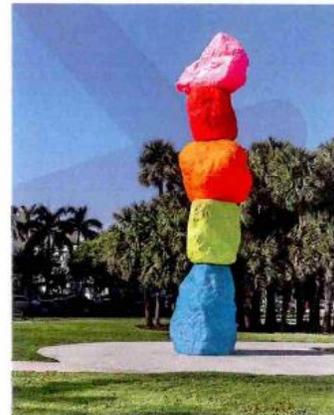

● PÉREZ ART MUSEUM MIAMI

Der 2010 initiierte und 2013 fertiggestellte Neubau des Pérez Art Museum Miami, kurz PAMM genannt, war der Startschuss einer Erfolgsgeschichte. Während die Institution vorher als Center of Fine Arts und später unter dem Namen Miami Art Museum jährlich kaum mehr als 50.000 Besucher aufweisen konnte, ist sie jetzt ein Publikumsmagnet. Schon das elegante Gebäude aus der Feder der Schweizer Architekten Herzog & de Meuron am neuen Standort im Museum Park ist eine Attraktion. Die ständige Sammlung setzt den Schwerpunkt auf Moderne und Zeitgenössische Kunst von beiden amerikanischen Kontinenten.

● THE BASS

Aus der Sammlung der Familie von Unternehmer John Bass ist der kulturelle Hub von Miami Beach bereits 1964 entstanden. Mit der seit 2015 über dem Eingang installierten Skulptur ETERNITY NOW von Sylvie Fleury gewinnt der palmengesäumte Art-déco-Bau im Collins Park, in dem früher eine Bibliothek untergebracht war, ein weiteres unverkennbares Merkmal. Zeitgenössische Kunst steht auch bei den wechselnden Ausstellungen ganz oben, im Jahr 2020 widmet sich das Haus unter anderem Mickalene Thomas, Lara Favaretto und Haegue Yang.

thebass.org, instagram.com/thebassmoa

● RUBELL FAMILY COLLECTION

Private Initiativen und Sammler sind überlebenswichtig für die Vielfalt und Qualität in der Kunst. Die Sammlung der Familie Rubell gehört zu den wichtigsten in Amerika, gezeigt wird sie im gleichnamigen Museum in Wynwood. Erst seit den 1950er-Jahren sammelt die Familie Gegenwartskunst. Der Umstand, dass Familienoberhaupt Donald der Bruder des „Studio 54“-Gründers Steve war, legte den Grundstein der Kollektion mit Arbeiten von Keith Haring, Jean-Michel Basquiat und Andy Warhol. Nicht weit davon entfernt zeigt die Familie De la Cruz ihre imposante Sammlung Zeitgenössischer Kunst. Auf fast 3.000

Quadratmetern werden Arbeiten von Isa Genzken, Peter Doig oder Nate Lowman ausgestellt.

Outdoor

● VIZCAYA MUSEUM AND GARDENS

Der kunstaffine Industrielle William Deering ließ Anfang des 20. Jahrhunderts dieses Anwesen mit dem Haupthaus im Renaissance-Stil als Winterresidenz anlegen. Seit das Miami-Dade County die Liegenschaft betreibt, sind das Haus und der große Park öffentlich zugänglich. Insbesondere letzterer lädt zum Entspannen und Flanieren ein: Skulpturen, künstliche Wasserfälle, historische Brücken, ein Orchideenhaus – im 20 Hektar großen Garten gibt es viel zu erkunden.

vizcaya.org, instagram.com/vizcaya_museum

● FAIRCHILD GARDEN

Die Natur in Florida ist einzigartig. Dieser eindrucksvolle botanische Garten aus den 1930ern bildet die Pflanzenvielfalt des Sunshine State ab – und mehr: Der Gründer Robert H. Montgomery widmete sich der Erhaltung seltener tropischer Pflanzen, auch solchen aus Afrika und Südamerika. Nicht verpassen: Im 2.000 Quadratmeter großen „Wings of Tropic’s“-Haus können Besucher zwischen Hunderten von Schmetterlingen wandeln.

AMERICA UNLIMITED

Neu im Portfolio von America Unlimited ist die 13-tägige Tour „Westküste Florida & Miami“ mit Nonstop-Flügen von Frankfurt nach Tampa und zurück von Miami nach Frankfurt. Sie führt abseits der typisch touristischen Routen beispielsweise nach Clearwater, Fort Myers und Naples. Der Veranstalter bietet ein ähnliches Paket auch für die Ostküste an. Bei dieser zwölfzügigen Mietwagenrundreise liegt der Fokus auf den Freizeitpark in Orlando sowie dem Kennedy Space Center. Buchbar sind auch Tagestouren ab Miami, die unter anderem zu den Everglades führen. In der Beach-Metropole hat America Unlimited weitere Hotels im Programm: Dazu zählen etwa das Mittelklassehotel Generator Miami Beach und das Breakwater South Beach am Ocean Drive.

DER TOURISTIK

Die Busreise „Sonnenseite Floridas“ wurde optimiert. Hervorzuheben bei der achttägigen Tour ist der inkludierte Ausflug nach St. Augustine, der ältesten Stadt Floridas. Die Rundreise kann mit einer fünfzügigen Badeverlängerung kombiniert werden. Weitere Kombinationsmöglichkeiten bieten sich mit einem dreitägigen Aufenthalt in New York oder einer Kurzkreuzfahrt auf die Bahamas. DER Touristik empfiehlt zudem die zwölfzügige Autotour „Florida – Family Fun in the Sun“, die speziell für Familien interessant ist. Sie beinhaltet Mehrfachübernachtungen im selben Hotel. Genächtigt wird in Apartments mit zwei separaten Schlafzimmern. Für Selbstfahrer verweist DER Touristik auf das Camper-Tool, das wichtige Camper-Infos und Preise in einer Buchungsoberfläche darstellt. Das Tool ist über die Aktion KW und die Anforderung WM für Wohnmobil erreichbar.

Der Münchner Veranstalter hat sein Hotelangebot im Sunshine-State ausgebaut. Dazu zählt zum Beispiel das Universal's Endless Summer Resort Surfside Inn and Suites in Orlando. Im März folgt das Universal's Dockside Inn and Suites, das ebenfalls zum großen Themenpark-Komplex zählt. Buchbar in der Heimat von Mickey & Co sind zudem das Margaritaville Resort Orlando und das Grand Bohemian Hotel Orlando. Beide Häuser haben bereits geöffnet. Zum FTI-Hotelangebot zählt nun auch das architektonisch außergewöhnliche Seminole Hard Rock Hotel (mehr dazu auf Seite 38). Auch das Bellair Beach Resort & Motel und das Barefoot Beachfront Hotel in St. Pete, die beide kürzlich komplett renoviert wurden, sind im Veranstalterprogramm. Weiterhin können Tickets über FTI bestellt werden. Verfügbar sind unter anderem VIP-Tickets für das Basketball-Team Orlando Magic.

Auf Key West ist das neue Vier-Sterne-Hotel Parrot Key Resort im Programm. Laut TUI ist es ein Boutique-Hotel mit Flair. Instagram-Liebhaber können dort ein Foto des populären Motivs der Hängematte zwischen Palmen aufnehmen und posten. Der Reisekonzern hat zudem das Ausflugsangebot weiter ausgebaut und bietet allein in Florida mehr als 100 Touren an. Ein Tipp von Robin Brückner, Leiter des Produkts Nordamerika: „Ende des vergangenen Jahres hat ‚Star Wars: Galaxy's Edge‘ in den Disney's Hollywood Studios in Orlando eröffnet. Ein Muss für Fans. Noch sind die Wartezeiten lang, aber es lohnt sich, und wer einfach nur durch die Kulissen schlendern will, wird auch begeistert sein.“

Expert reviews of the world's great places to stay

UNITED STATES

My little Miami vice...

Rachel Cranshaw is in art deco heaven as she visits the hotels that evoke the glamour of the Twenties

To think of the skylines of America's big cities is to think of skyscrapers. From tourist attractions to financial districts, the American dream tends to be bound up in all that is neck-cracking - which is partly what makes Miami such a remarkable city architecturally. This cosmopolitan hub in south Florida, known affectionately as the capital of Latin America, has some high-rise buildings - but it's its art deco Historic District, preserved time capsule-like on the seashore of South Beach, that makes it so unique. The aesthetic allure of this area, which has the highest concentration of art deco architecture in the world, where bright, boxy low-rise buildings are bathed in sunshine and fringed with palm trees, is no accident. Miami Beach (officially established in 1915) was built as a holiday destination from the ashes of the Great Depression, and nowhere is this narrative more apparent than in its hotels.

A century after art deco's Twenties birth, I headed statewide to see for myself how 100 years of design had come to define Florida's coolest city. My first stop was the Art Deco Museum, home to the Miami Design Preservation League, which was established, a passionate and knowledgeable guide named Melissa explained to me, in 1976 by activist Barbara Baer Capitman, in response to the threat posed by developers in the Seventies.

As I was led around the district by Melissa, I quickly came to realise that Miami's art deco is not a singular style, but rather an amalgamation of influences and variations - from ornate Mediterranean revival (think decorative columns, wrought iron and cute courtyards) to blended Med deco and softer tropical deco (often incorporating flora and fauna). In the heat of the day, longing for the cool of the Atlantic Ocean just a block or so away, I marvelled at the prevalence of nautical deco, particularly in hotels; hulking curved, usually white, buildings (The Alton is a particularly salient example) designed to look like ships in a simulation of the status and affluence equated with the very earliest days of cruising.

I stayed at one of the Design League's first projects - and one of Miami Beach's first hotels - the Cardozo South Beach, designed in 1939 by Henry Hobson, one of the principal architects of South Beach Deco along with I. Murray Dixon, set on Ocean Drive. It was bought by Gloria and Emilio Esteefan in the early Nineties; Miami was a somewhat different city then, still reeling from the race riots of the Eighties, and in the early days of a renaissance that saw Gianni Versace move into his Mediterranean revival mansion just a few minutes' walk down the road.

In 2020, I found it fresh from a $15 million (£11.5 million) four-year refurb that has elevated its interiors to a sleek, contemporary all-white aesthetic while still letting the building's heritage do the talking.

Marble and gold accents give a contemporary taste of the elegance art deco has always aspired to offer. The small, leafy garden terrace has daybeds that offer a perfect vantage point for admiring the property's keystone trim, one of its more subtle historic design details, while on the ground floor a series of framed artefacts, from photographs in a bill dated 1947, offer fascinating insight to the hotel's early years. I spoke to Emilio Esteefan about his and Gloria's love for the Cardozo, which began for her as a child on family trips to the beach (apparently she once proclaimed that one day she "was going to buy that hotel"), and continued into adulthood, when the couple would jog along the front and lament the state of disrepair it had fallen into.

The legalities of renovating a historic building such as this has its challenges, Emilio explained, from maintaining original floors to sourcing that same keystone used on the exterior. But despite the money and patience required, they feel lucky to be able to make such a contribution: "It's wonderful to be able to give back."

The introduction of genuine luxury to Miami's art deco hotel scene is something of a retrospective completion of what originally existed mainly as reproduction - for while art deco tends to conjure images of the opulence associated with arguably the best known literary work of that era, The Great Gatsby, its rapid proliferation in Miami took place largely amid the bust of the Thirties.

With the boom of the Roaring Twenties long gone, and economies desperate to recover, hotels were built fast and cheap: faux marble, glass block, and even the terrazzo floors of hotels such as the Essex House; many of what have come to be regarded as signature tropes were designed as such at least in part to keep costs down.

The reopening of the Cardozo is part of a new revival wave of Miami's art deco greats, with the Thirties Lennox hotel also back in business from 2019 after a nine-year hiatus and $71 million investment, and the Greystone set to reopen imminently. The Forties Raleigh and its pool - dubbed the most beautiful in America by Life magazine in 1947 - is also in the midst of a major makeover.

The Raleigh is located a little further up from the Historic District; those early three-storey hotels (because any building higher than that was required to have a lift, which was expensive), gave way to taller properties that arrived slightly later, such as the Delano, built in 1947, when larger, flashier resort-style hotels were becoming in demand. The current restoration resurgence will, I hope, ensure the buildings that make Miami Beach what it is evolve, just like the city around them.

Explore the magic of Miami

New low-cost flights make it possible to explore this iconic American city in a few days, says Ryan Hooper

DEEP in concentration, competitors glide their weathered hands across the table like experienced croupiers. The place is near-silent but for the gentle, methodical clack-clack-clacking of domino tiles on small plastic tables, and murmurs from elderly observers.

And then - crash. A triumphant player rises, carefully but purposefully, to his feet, while dejected competitors slump further back into their fixed-to-the-floor green metal chairs.

The temperature is a balmy 22C, though many of the locals are wearing jackets, and there's not a mobile telephone, computer or tablet in sight.

Welcome to Domino Park - a slice of 1960s Cuba in the heart of 2019 Miami, where time appears to stand still.

"A tropical storm could pass by here and they would still be playing," says tour guide Marie Perea, a naturalised Miamian who can barely take two steps through the streets of so-called Little Havana without embracing someone she knows.

A cultural mix of the two Americas, where road signs often appear in Spanish and English, Miami is a city proud of its past and excited about the future. Its story is told through the laudable architecture, close-knit communities and a reverence for art and design.

New flights from low-cost airline Norwegian make a long weekend break financially feasible (from £159.90 one way; £275 return), and convenient flight times mean tourists can leave London on Friday mid-morning and enjoy two full days and nights in Miami, before arriving back at Gatwick at dawn on Monday So, I'm on a mission to see if it's possible to pack multiple decades into just a few days.

Little Havana: the Fifties fiesta
Once nothing more than a thoroughfare, Calle Ocho (158 SW 8th Street) - the heart of Little Havana - is a now popular tourist destination. Here, the locals, who are largely of Latin American descent thanks to the arrival of tens of thousands of Cubans during the revolution years of the Fifties and Sixties, mix with visitors eager to take a step back in time.

There is an evergreen feeling to Little Havana. The octogenarian plodding opportunistically along the streets selling cones full of peanuts for a dollar has been doing so for decades, despite an apparent turf war with an entrepreneurial rival.

Along the way at El Exquisito (elquisitomiami.com), we stop for a classic Cuban sandwich - slow-cooked pork, marinated in citrus juices, garlic, bell peppers and onion for two days, served with Swiss cheese, mustard, pickles and wedged between two slices of Cuban bread.

South Beach: The art deco masterpiece
South Beach is perhaps the best-known destination at the base of sunshine state Florida, with nearly three miles of golden sands bordering the Atlantic Ocean.

Its fine grains, warm waters and Instagram-ready lifeguard towers make it a haven for beach bums, fitness fanatics and artists, many eager to spot a famous face.

Perhaps the most famous landmark of all, however, is Casa Casuarina, built in 1930. Also known as the Versace Mansion, home to tragic designer Gianni until his assassination in 1997. Now a luxury hotel and restaurant, the sprawling beachside building stands out among the scores of art deco buildings across South Beach. In fact, the area is a real Mecca for those with an eye for the distinctive architectural style.

Strict planning regulations since the 1970s mean buildings seldom stand taller than three storeys - as to do so would require expensive lifts being installed. Development is allowed, but it must not be seen from street level on the opposite side of the road. Trademark features such as the "eyebrows" (decorative ledges) over windows, neon signage, and soft pastel trim can be found at almost every turn.

Not that South Beach is stuck in the past.

Our hotel, The Lennox, originally opened in 1936 as the opulent Peter Miller Hotel. But it lost its way, and by 2010 it was abandoned. A three-year, £53 million (USD 70 million) renovation was completed in summer 2019, retaining many of its original art deco features. But perhaps its greatest drawcard is its two-minute walk to South Beach.

Wynwood: The next big thing

Further inland, around 25 minutes in a cab, the cultural district of Wynwood is regarded as Miami's next big development opportunity.

A sprawling network of murals, breweries, and multi-purpose tower blocks make it the city's equivalent of London's Shoreditch.

Back in Miami Beach, the recently-opened Time Out Market Miami (timeoutmarket.com/miami) is among the new eateries opening in this part of Florida.

It offers 17 pop-up versions of Miami's best cuisine.

Vietnamese pho, Cuban ice cream, and locally caught oysters are sold alongside mouth-watering burgers and fine steaks.

Planning your trip

■ Rooms at EAST, Miami (east-miami.com) start from £230 ($299) per night. Rooms at The Lennox Hotel (lennoxmiamibeach.com) start from £175 ($225) per night.

Wynwood: The next big thing
Further inland, around 25 minutes in a cab, the cultural district of Wynwood is regarded as Miami's next big development opportunity. A sprawling network of murals, breweries, and multi-purpose tower blocks make it the city's equivalent of London's Shoreditch.

Back in Miami Beach, the recently opened Prime Out Market Miami (timeoutmarket.com/miami) is among the new on-trends opening in the part of Florida.

Explore the magic of Miami

New low-cost flights make it possible to explore this iconic American city in a few days, says Ryan Hooper

DEEP in concentration, competitors glide their weathered hands across the table like experienced crocheters. The place is near-silent but for the gentle, methodical clack-clack-clacking of domino tiles on small plastic tables, and murmurs from elderly observers. And then - crash. A triumphant player rises, carefully but purposefully, to his feet, while dejected competitors slump further back into their fixed-to-the-floor green metal chairs.

The temperature is a balmy 22C, though many of the locals are wearing jackets, and there's not a mobile telephone, computer or tablet in sight.

Welcome to Domino Park - a slice of 1960s Cuba in the heart of 2019 Miami, where time appears to stand still.

"A tropical storm could pass by here and they would still be playing," says tour guide Marie Peres, a naturalised Miamiian who can barely take two steps through the streets of so-called Little Havana without embracing someone she knows.

A cultural mix of the two Americas, where road signs often appear in Spanish and English, Miami is a city proud of its past and excited about the future. Its story is told through the laudable architecture, close-knit communities and a reverence for art and design.

New flights from low-cost airline Norwegian makes a long weekend break financially feasible (from £159.90 one way; £276 return), and convenient flight times mean tourists can leave London on Friday mid-morning and enjoy two full days and nights in Miami, before arriving back at Gatwick at dawn on Monday 30. I'm on a mission to see if it's possible to pack multiple decades into just a few days.

Little Havana: the Fifties fiesta Once nothing more than a thoroughfare, Calle Ocho (158 SW 8th Street) - the heart of Little Havana - is a now popular tourist destination. Here, the locals, who are largely of Latin American descent thanks to the arrival of tens of thousands of Cubans during the revolution years of the Fifties and Sixties, mix with visitors eager to take a step back in time.

There is an evergreen feeling to Little Havana. The octogenarian plodding opportunistic along the streets selling cones full of peanuts for a dollar has been doing so for decades, despite an apparent turf war with an entrepreneurial rival.

Along the way at El Exquisito (elquisitomiami.com), we stop for a classic Cuban sandwich - slow-cooked pork, marinated in citrus juices, garlic, bell peppers and onion for two days, served with Swiss cheese, mustard, pickles and wedged between two slices of Cuban bread.

South Beach: The art deco masterpiece

South Beach is perhaps the best-known destination at the base of sunshine state Florida, with nearly three miles of golden sands bordering the Atlantic Ocean. Its fine grains, warm waters and Instagram-ready lifeguard towers make it a haven for beach bums, fitness fanatics and artists, many eager to spot a famous face.

Perhaps the most famous landmark of all, however, is Casa Casuarina, built in 1930. Also known as the Versace Mansion, home to tragic designer Gianni until his assassination in 1997. Now a luxury hotel and restaurant, the sprawling beachside building stands out among the scores of art deco buildings across South Beach. In fact, the area is a real Mecca for those with an eye for the distinctive architectural style.

Strict planning regulations since the 1970s mean buildings seldom stand taller than three storeys - as to do so would require expensive lifts being installed. Development is allowed, but it must not be seen from street level on the opposite side of the road. Trademark features such as the "eyebrows" (decorative ledges) over windows, neon signage, and soft pastel trim can be found at almost every turn. Not that South Beach is stuck in the past.

Our hotel, The Lennox, originally opened in 1936 as the opulent Peter Miller Hotel. But it lost its way, and by 2010 it was abandoned. A three-year, £3 million (USD 70 million) renovation was completed in summer 2019, retaining many of its original art deco features. But

About Time

ABOUT TIME .

TRAVEL 48-HOUR GUIDES 7

Miami is one of my favourite places to escape to for some last-minute winter sun. There is nothing quite like sitting on a beach, feeling the heat of the sun on your face, knowing that it is freezing cold back home and everyone is stuck indoors.

Whilst the flight can be a little lengthy and the jet lag can take its toll, the trip is completely worth it. Home to some of the most luxurious hotels, and with lots of exciting things to see and do, Miami is the perfect break for anyone seeking some winter sun. Whether you are looking to be pampered in style or are searching for a more low-key beach break, Miami has it all to offer. Get planning your next

Where to Stay

For Relaxation: The Aqualina

With smooth white sand and the beautiful blue sea just seconds away, there really is no better place to relax than at The Aqualina hotel. Its three oceanfront swimming pools are surrounded by the comfiest sunbeds, perfect for an afternoon snooze after eating a delicious meal at one of the hotel's many restaurants. The hotel spa is the epitome of luxury with a beautiful relaxation terrace and a Roman waterfall. The hotel boasts the largest private Rolls-Royce collection in the driveway, and from the second you walk in you're treated like royalty. Nothing is too big or too small for the staff and all your worries seem to melt away.

For Something Different: Faena Hotel

If you are looking for something a little different then Faena is the hotel for you. Think big multi-coloured chandeliers coupled with Dolce and Gabbana style murals. This hotel really is a treat for the senses as it displays the works of both smaller local artists and those that are more renowned for a unique and avant-garde design. Faena Hotel is located in the Faena District. This area is home to other more affordable hotels as well as a variety of art centres and theatres that make this area a hive of energy. Visit Faena Hotel if you are looking for an on-trend Miami experience – it won't disappoint.

For the Best of Both Worlds: The Mandarin Oriental

The Mandarin Oriental is the perfect synthesis of sophisticated elegance and Miami-style relaxation. Despite its location in the financial centre of Brickell, the Mandarin Oriental has gone to great lengths to give its visitors a remarkable experience. The man-made beach has exquisite views of the Miami skyline and the pool area is the perfect place to sip on a cocktail and relax. The rooms offer the best in Miami-style luxury and the multiple restaurants will ensure that your taste buds are satisfied. The surrounding area of Brickell has recently risen in popularity and as such there are new retail and hotel developments popping up all the time. This hotel is an oasis in the hustle and bustle of a busy metropolitan area, offering guests the best of both worlds.

For Ultimate Luxury: St Regis

St Regis fits in perfectly to the surrounding area of Bal Harbour, famed for having one of the most high-end shopping malls in the whole of the USA. This hotel is the epitome of luxury and you're invited to enjoy the hotel's many pools and oceanfront cabanas. With exquisite rooms featuring TVs in shower screens and large balconies that look out over the seafront, this hotel is perfect if you are looking to spoil yourself.

What to do

For a Day At Sea: Cruise the Inland Waterways

No trip to Miami is complete without a boat cruise. While the weather can be a bit temperamental, a boat trip allows you to see all the wonders Miami has to offer. Cruise past houses belonging to Jennifer Lopez and other stars and spot manatees and dolphins along the way. It actually rained for part of the time we were on the boat but it didn't last long and we took it as an opportunity to drink Champagne and eat our picnic. A boat trip is a great way to see the Miami sights and I would definitely recommend it.

For a Night On the Town: Shows at Faena Hotel

The Faena Hotel is home to its own theatre which puts on original productions that are as spectacular as the hotel decor. We saw the Samsara Cabaret show which was an extravaganza of singing, dancing and burlesque performed by leading artists from all over the country. The theatre has a fantastic lineup of shows so if you can't get down to see Samsara (it's on until February) definitely try something else from their repertoire.

For a Relaxing Extravaganza: Spa at the Mandarin Oriental

The Mandarin Oriental is celebrating another year of having its spa awarded 5* by Forbes. Check into the spa and be transported to an oriental oasis. Choose from a wide array of high calibre treatments including a Glacial White Caviar Facial or an Oriental Harmony massage. Don't forget to use the other facilities including the relaxation room, steam room and sauna. If you are anything like me you may fall asleep during the treatments and you will definitely leave feeling lighter than air.

Where to eat

For Fusion Eats: Pao

Pao is one of my favourite restaurants in Miami. Award-winning Executive Chef Paul Qui has put together the most incredible menu that brings together Asian inspired dishes with cuisine from around the world. Expect cocktails served in giant unicorns and dishes that combine sea urchin with sweet potato pudding. The menu is sure to excite your taste buds and I am sure the dishes will taste like nothing you have eaten before.

For All-Day Brunch: Jaya

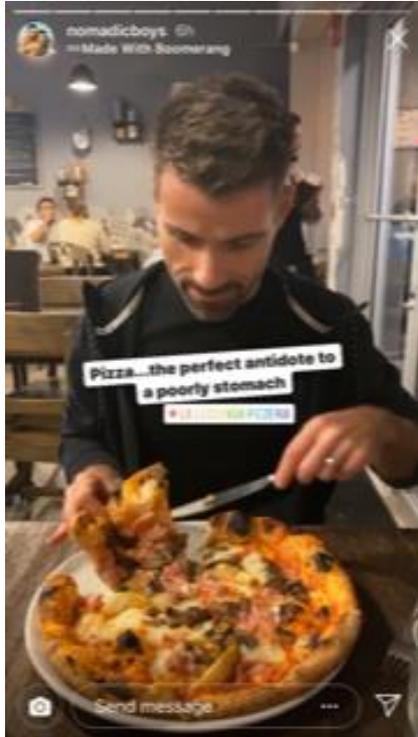

Nestled in the Setal Hotel, Jaya hosts a delicious Jazz brunch every Sunday. Enjoy the live band whilst eating food from a buffet that serves a huge array of tasty treats. Authentic Indian curries are available as are traditional Sunday roasts, huge American pancakes and desserts to die for. Expect to leave feeling very full. I suggest sitting and soaking up the music and atmosphere while your food digests as the restaurant and courtyard are really something special.

For Greek-themed Eats: Atlantikos

Step inside Atlantikos and get transported halfway across the world. The white and blue decor depicts the iconic style of Mykonos and the band playing traditional Greek music only accentuates the vibe. The restaurant offers a menu based around seasonal ingredients. We had a delicious three-course meal which had truffles incorporated into every dish, including dessert! Atlantikos is a great option if you are looking for fantastic food in more of a laid-back setting.

MIAMI

Il viaggio di Costa Group tra mercati e food hall arriva fino oltreoceano. Dal 12 dicembre, infatti, è iniziata una seconda vita per l'ex "La Centrale" di Miami, uno spazio di tre piani consacrato alla vendita di prodotti alimentari d'eccellenza e alla ristorazione italiana. Dopo la prima apertura nel febbraio 2018, l'Italian Food Hall situata al Brickell City Centre, non ha mai registrato il successo sperato. Per fortuna un gruppo di brillanti imprenditori ha raccolto la sfida con entusiasmo, per far sì che da questo immenso spazio rinasca qualcosa di spettacolare, nuovo e coinvolgente: un vero e proprio Luna Park per il palato. Con l'attuale proprietà lo spazio sottoutilizzato del terzo piano verrà trasformato in un nuovo ristorante dello chef stellato Nino di Costanzo, la cui apertura è prevista nel corso del 2020. Per il momento il rinnovo ha coinvolto i due piani inferiori, più freschi e fruibili sotto il tema generale del Luna Park. Al piano terra un enorme spazio-mercato con

proposte di gastronomia, salumi e formaggi, bakery e panetteria... insieme all'area pizzeria e al bar. Il secondo piano è consacrato alla ristorazione con "Puro's", ristorante dedicato a piatti gluten free, "Osteria n.0", con ricette a base di pesce ispirate dalla tradizione culinaria dell'Italia meridionale. Infine, sbarca per la prima volta negli States il Macellaio RC, ristorante di carne di Roberto Costa che vanta ben sette location di successo tra l'Italia e il Regno Unito, nonché coordinatore dell'intero progetto. 🍷

LA RINASCITA DEL MERCATO COPERTO DI RAVENNA

Tra le esperienze più affascinanti, la rinascita del Mercato Coperto di Ravenna, struttura inaugurata per la prima volta nel 1972. Secondo il piano il progetto di creare nel passato la chiave per coniugare il futuro, per generare gli anelli protettivi di un sistema patrimoniale di ricerca, a cura di Leonardo Spadari e Beatrice Basso di Medici Spadari, in un'area e mercato di paese, realtà antiche e più semplici ristoranti, cinema, botteghe.

Il tratto di pareti unico, sia per la loro originalità sia per il modo in cui sono stati conservati ed utilizzati, consentendo al contemporaneo di rinnovarsi gradualmente nel tempo delle diverse epoche attraversate dal Mercato. La prima che grazie a questi tratti progettuali, oltre al sito contemporaneo e moderno, dipinge persino ancora, conservando, senza stravolgere l'essenza della struttura. Un "gioco di incassi" fatto di grande attenzione ai materiali ed alla loro lavorazione, alla ricerca con il luogo, per rendere il Mercato uno spazio unico, unico, piacevole e accogliente. In questo luogo si rinnovano la qualità di molti artigiani, salumi, salicciotti, formaggi, pasticcerie, coordinati da Costa Group, che ha reso il progetto generale, moderno e frangibile dell'intero, consentendo un legame con il passato.

L'ESPERIENZA INTERNAZIONALE

Stesso a Roma, dove il recupero della Gare da Sud, stazione ferroviaria dal 1955 abbandonata dal 1960, ha dato vita alla nuova Italia. Documentare attività su due livelli. Trasformato in sala sport e cultura, l'edificio Verifica Gare da Sud - identificato come monumento storico - ritorna un po' della sua vocazione primaria, al mercato, ai negozi, i colori e i prodotti dell'esperienza e della...

La nuova food hall, inaugurata nel marzo 2018, ha raccolto alla città italiana di un edificio in tutto circa 1500 metri quadri di superficie al piano terra ed oltre 500 al livello mezzanino, dove le attività commerciali sono affidate verso l'interno, liberando come punto d'appoggio per bar e negozi, e ricorrendo al passaggio sottostante e semplicemente attraverso i avvisti dell'architettura che avvolge la Belle Epoque di Enzo. Veniva infatti che spazio della tradizione locale, alla cucina italiana, fra altre, magre di cucina etnica, dalla Tradizione al no. Un grande bar centrale, terra di confluente in una grande attività, il tutto partendo da una vegetazione esotica in alto, per il mercato e da pareti grigi, ma, tutta vita dei colori della Italia etnica.

MIAMI

Il viaggio di Costa Group tra mercati e food hall arriva fino oltreoceano. Dal 12 dicembre, infatti, è iniziata una seconda vita per l'ex "La Centrale" di Miami, uno spazio di tre piani consacrato alla vendita di prodotti alimentari d'eccellenza e alla ristorazione italiana. Dopo la prima apertura nel febbraio 2018, l'Italian Food Hall situata al Brickell City Centre, non ha mai registrato il successo sperato. Per fortuna un gruppo di brillanti imprenditori ha raccolto la sfida

con entusiasmo, per far sì che da questo immenso spazio rinasca qualcosa di spettacolare, nuovo e coinvolgente: un vero e proprio Luna Park per il palato. Con l'attuale proprietà lo spazio sottoutilizzato del terzo piano verrà trasformato in un nuovo ristorante dello chef stellato Nino di Costanzo, la cui apertura è prevista nel corso del 2020. Per il momento il rinnovo ha coinvolto i due piani inferiori, più freschi e fruibili sotto il tema generale del Luna Park. Al piano terra un enorme spazio-mercato con proposte di gastronomia, salumi e formaggi, bakery e panetteria... insieme all'area pizzeria e al bar. Il secondo piano è consacrato alla ristorazione con "Puro's", ristorante dedicato a piatti gluten free, "Osteria n.0", con ricette a base di pesce ispirate dalla tradizione culinaria dell'Italia meridionale. Infine, sbarca per la prima volta negli States il Macellaio RC, ristorante di carne di Roberto Costa che vanta ben sette location di successo tra l'Italia e il Regno Unito, nonché coordinatore dell'intero progetto. 🍷

PANORAMA

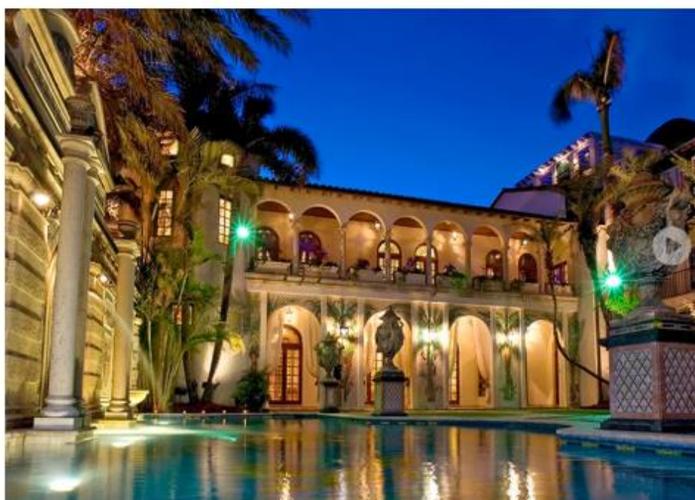

Alla scoperta di Miami: la villa di Gianni Versace

Mariella Baroli

Il 15 luglio 1997, Gianni Versace viene ucciso con due colpi di pistola sugli scalini della sua casa a Miami. Il mondo della moda perde colui che l'amico Franco Zeffirelli ha definito «lo stilista che ha liberato la moda dal conformismo, regalandole la fantasia e la creatività». Un omicidio che fa scalpore e che, vent'anni dopo, diventa anche il soggetto della seconda stagione della serie televisiva antologica American Crime Story, con grande successo di pubblico e critica. Nonostante il colpevole sia stato identificato - si tratta del giovane modello Andrew Cunanan - ancora oggi il movente dietro il suo gesto è ignoto. La famiglia Versace è categorica nell'affermare che Gianni non conoscesse il killer, ma si rincorrono voci di un giro di prostituzione cui il ragazzo faceva parte.

A 22 anni dall'omicidio, c'è ancora gente che ogni giorno si affolla attorno al cancello della villa dove Versace ha vissuto i suoi ultimi anni. Dopo la Casa Bianca e Graceland, Villa Casuarina è la casa più fotografata d'America. Ma non è soltanto la drammatica storia dello stilista italiano ad attrarre milioni di visitatori. Progettata negli anni Trenta dall'architetto Alden Freeman, per poi essere acquistata da Gianni Versace che ne personalizzò gli arredi e costruì una piscina, la villa è un incredibile esempio di architettura e opulenza.

Villa Casuarina è oggi un resort di lusso con 10 suite uniche nel loro genere. A partire da 1.000 euro a notte, i turisti possono dormire nella stanza che fu dello stilista, quella dove era solita soggiornare la cantante Madonna o persino quella in cui riposò Lady D. Della sua casa a Miami, Gianni Versace disse al Time: «Per leggere Proust ho la mia casa sul Lago di Como. Qui, a Miami Beach, non voglio un altro monastero in cui vivere. Voglio un posto dove leggere Truman Capote». In ogni angolo di Villa Versace si respira lo stile del marchio - ancora oggi in mano alla sorella Donatella - ma il punto più amato dai visitatori è senza dubbio la piscina, con un mosaico creato con centinaia di tessere in oro 24 carati. Nel 2015, all'interno della villa è stato aperto un ristorante che porta il suo nome: Gianni's. La cucina, curata dallo chef Walter Mancini, è un omaggio ai sapori mediterranei.

Nel Deep South i viaggiatori troveranno ritmi più lenti, tradizioni radicate e un clima più temperato, ma anche persone accoglienti e paesaggi meravigliosi. Miami, nuova campagna Miamiland

20 Febbraio 2020 |

Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau ha alzato il sipario sulla campagna MIAMILAND, incentrata su un mix di natura e avventura. Il nuovo focus va a rafforzare la pre-esistente campagna Found In Miami, ideata per incoraggiare i visitatori ad ampliare il raggio di esplorazione di Miami su più quartieri della città. L'esecuzione creativa di MIAMILAND è stata progettata per creare un'aura di mistero per il lancio di un parco tematico di azione-avventura pieno di meraviglie naturali, da intendersi come l'intera area di Greater Miami stessa. La campagna è stata ideata per permettere ai viaggiatori di allontanarsi dallo stress quotidiano e vivere emozionanti avventure immersi nella natura.

Recenti ricerche dimostrano che i viaggiatori vogliono disconnettersi dalla solita routine quotidiana, per connettersi invece con nuove culture, con sé stessi e con la natura: infatti, il 79% dei Millennials si definisce "Esploratore" e il 38% che desidera viaggiare per ammirare spettacoli naturali. La campagna MIAMILAND si è sviluppata in tre fasi: i viaggiatori sono stati inizialmente coinvolti e attratti con la promessa di un nuovo e misterioso parco tematico, promosso attraverso video teaser; nella seconda fase, sono state svelate le immense risorse naturali di Greater Miami sotto una luce completamente nuova, presentando MIAMILAND; infine, l'ultima fase di sostegno prevede continuamente nuovi contenuti, itinerari e spunti di viaggio per esplorare Greater Miami e le sue opzioni outdoor.

"Stiamo facendo leva sulle nostre risorse naturali per attrarre nuovi visitatori e per prolungarne la durata del soggiorno" afferma William D. Talbert III, CDME, President & CEO di GMCVB. "Greater Miami offre una grande varietà di culture e di luoghi, oltre a un'ampia varietà di esperienze. È una destinazione molto interessante per gli appassionati di avventura, ma anche per gli amanti del benessere in cerca comunque di emozioni: MIAMILAND mette in luce quest'ampia offerta di avventure ed esperienze nella natura, che si possono vivere in città, nei parchi naturali o anche lungo le nostre 35 miglia di spiaggia."

LA CUCINA ITALIANA

Tagliolini Pane & Vino: la ricetta americana

28 febbraio 2020

di Redazione Web

La Trattoria Pane & Vino

Sembra di entrare proprio in una trattoria italiana, sia per l'arredamento che per l'accoglienza calorosa. Nel menu, Bruschette al pomodoro, Carpaccio di manzo con rucola e parmigiano, Parmigiana di melanzane, Lasagne emiliane, Tagliatelle alla bolognese e il loro signature Tagliolini Pane & Vino (una pasta fresca fatta in casa bianca e nera e condita con vongole, vino bianco e pesto di prezzemolo). Da provare, anche in Italia, con la ricetta dello chef Loris Navone.

Ingredienti per 4 persone

Per l'impasto

6 uova grandi
2 tuorli
220g semola di grano duro
220 g farina
2 cucchiaini di nero di seppia

Per la salsa

500 g di vongole veraci (pulite e lavate)
60 ml olio extravergine d'oliva
160 ml di vino bianco
120 ml brodo di pesce
trito di aglio
trito di prezzemolo
un pizzico di pepe
un pizzico di zafferano
pomodori ciliegini

Come la fanno la pasta a Miami? A mano, bianca e nera, condita di sugo alle vongole. Alla Trattoria Pane & Vino, a Miami Beach, si cucina italiano Española Way è una delle vie storiche di Miami Beach, è stata la prima strada commerciale e da qualche anno è tornata a esserlo dopo un progetto di restauro tanto da essere stata nominata il «miglior quartiere nel Sud della Florida» dal quotidiano «Miami Herald». Nata come colonia di artisti negli anni 20, era nota per la sua atmosfera creativa in stile Greenwich Village a New York o Montmartre a Parigi. Ispirato alle iconiche Ramblas di Barcellona e ai villaggi del Mediterraneo e della Francia, evoca un villaggio spagnolo con piccole case colorate, decori di stucco e piastrelle smaltate, ed è oggi una delle destinazioni imperdibili per fare shopping, mangiare, bere e divertirsi. Nascosta dal traffico e dal turismo di Ocean Drive, questa storica strada acciottolata infatti è un susseguirsi di luci scintillanti e musica.

El Paseo, un luogo iconico

Fra le tante attività aperte lungo il pedonale Española Way c'è l'hotel El Paseo, letteralmente una passeggiata, un sogno bohémien composto da una villa costruita originariamente nel 1925 come condominio in stile rinascimentale mediterraneo. L'hotel presenta ancora oggi elementi di architettura spagnola, marocchina, italiana e francese, tra cui tetti di tegole, archi a tutto sesto e balconi incantevoli. Non sorprende che il suo stile elegante piacesse agli artisti cubani che vennero a vivere qui negli anni 50 e 60, tanto che per 25 anni l'edificio è stato conosciuto come Española Way Art Center e ha ospitato artisti famosi come Kenny Scharf, Miralda e Craig Coleman. Anche artisti del calibro di Desi Arnaz e non artisti come Al Capone hanno trascorso molti giorni fra queste mura a Española Way. Al pian terreno, il ristorante Pane & Vino La Trattoria serve cucina siciliana e piatti tradizionali italiani.

Où manger de bons burgers à Miami ?

Un restaurant à Miami servant des burgers ne serait pas trop difficile à trouver. En termes de burgers et de fast-foods, la réputation des États-Unis n'est plus à faire. Et si New York est réputée pour ces sandwichs américains, Miami n'est pas en reste. Qu'ils soient végétariens, healthy, gourmands ou encore innovants, les burgers de cette ville de Floride sauront vous mettre l'eau à la bouche. Voici quelques unes de nos adresses à tester absolument lors de votre prochain voyage à Miami.

Restaurant à Miami : Ariete

Loin de servir des hamburgers classiques, le restaurant à Miami Ariete, niché dans le quartier de Coconut Groove, sort son épingle du jeu avec ses sandwichs qui sortent de l'ordinaire. Dans un espace design et moderne, on déguste un burger à la mode cubaine. En cuisine, le chef Michael Beltran maîtrise l'art de la fabrication de hamburgers tout en rendant hommage à son héritage cubain, en proposant notamment un pain au beurre fait maison englobant deux steaks garnis de fromage américain, le tout sublimé par des cornichons et une sauce secrète. Accompagnez le burger avec des frites maison sur le côté et vous obtiendrez l'un des meilleurs plats de Miami.

Site Web

Restaurant à Miami : Blue Collar

Autre restaurant à Miami servant l'un des meilleurs burger de la ville : Le Blue Collar, en plein cœur de Biscayne Boulevard. Ce hamburger a tout d'un traditionnel burger américain, grâce notamment à son fromage fondu mûré 24 mois, sa laitue, ses tomates, ses oignons et sa sauce relevée. La seule différence réside en son pain, qui n'est pas un bun typique, mais plutôt un muffin passé au four, qui assemblé en burger absorbe tout le jus de la viande et de la sauce, ce qui renforce sa saveur. A tester sans plus tarder.

> Adresse : 6730 Biscayne Blvd, Miami, FL 33138, États-Unis

Restaurant à Miami : Cheeseburger Baby

L'un des burgers les plus célèbres de Miami. Dans le quartier de South Beach, le Cheeseburger Baby n'est pas un restaurant comme les autres, mais plutôt un foodtruck bien connu de tous, tenu par des femmes uniquement, depuis 2001. Ce foodtruck propose un délicieux cheeseburger à la viande juteuse et au cheddar servi avec des frites dorées qui sauront satisfaire vos papilles.

Des burgers bio chez Lokal Burgers and Beer

De plus en plus de restaurateurs se mettent aux repas bio. Et le Lokal Burgers and Beer, dans le quartier de Coconut Groove, porte bien son nom puisqu'ici, la cuisine est réalisée avec des ingrédients locaux provenant de Floride. Les burgers ne contiennent ni « hormones » ni « antibiotiques » selon les restaurateurs. Optez pour leurs frites à la patate douce : un délice.

> Adresse : 3190 Commodore Plaza, Miami, FL 33133, États-Unis

Boulud Sud Miami

Le plus raffiné des burgers à Miami se trouve au Boulud Sud, anciennement connu sous le nom de DB Bistro. Au sein du J W Marriott de Miami, sur Biscayne Boulevard, c'est le chef français Daniel Boulud qui vous concoctera le DB Burger, composé d'un faux-filet, d'une côte de bœuf braisée, de fois gras et de truffes noires. Un burger raffiné à déguster dans un cadre moderne à l'atmosphère feutrée.

Restaurant à Miami : Le Chick

A Miami, les burgers, c'est Chick. Dans le quartier de Wynwood, Le Chick est principalement une rôtisserie inspirée par La « Rôtisserie Amsterdam », le spot néerlandais connu pour son délicieux poulet rôti et son bar branché. Et bien que le poulet soit roi chez Le Chick, la vraie star du lieu est inévitablement le burger, l'un des meilleurs de la ville. Chez Le Chick, il faut donc commander le « Royal Cheese », un cheeseburger au cheddar et à la viande maturée, sublimé d'un au pain moelleux et d'une sauce maison. Les mets raffinés et copieux, le prix abordable et l'ambiance de ce restaurant branché permettent de vivre une expérience culinaire de haut niveau. Parfait pour qui recherche une nourriture réconfortante et savoureuse. Le soir venu, le restaurant se transforme en bar branché où habitués et curieux viennent boire des verres dans une ambiance tamisée et dansante.

Dans la nuit de dimanche à lundi (0h30) se tiendra la finale du Super Bowl, à Miami, entre Kansas et San Francisco. L'occasion de revenir sur les chiffres de la démesure de cet événement planétaire.

Le 2 février 2020 à 17h52

Pour les cent ans de la National Football League (NFL), la ligue américaine de football américain, les fans du monde entier vont avoir le droit à un 54e Super Bowl de choix entre les Chiefs de Kansas City du talentueux quarterback Patrick Mahomes, et les 49ers de San Francisco qui rêvent d'intégrer le club fermé des sextuples vainqueurs, dimanche au Hard Rock Stadium de Miami (à partir de 00h30 sur TF1 et BeIN). L'occasion de revenir, en chiffres, sur la folie qui s'empare de cet événement planétaire chaque année, dépassant largement les frontières des Etats-Unis.

98,2 millions. Le Super Bowl est l'événement sportif le plus attendu de l'année pour la majorité des Américains, qui étaient 98,2 millions à le suivre sur NBC l'an dernier. Et cette année, la finale pourrait bien battre de nouveaux records. Les organisateurs espèrent ainsi attirer au moins 110 millions de téléspectateurs rien qu'aux Etats-Unis, soit un tiers de la population américaine. Et 160 millions à travers le monde.

180. La rencontre sera retransmise en direct dans environ 180 pays dans le monde, et commentée en 25 langues. En France, les fans pourront suivre l'événement sur TF1 et BeIN Sports, avec l'incontournable concert de mi-temps animé cette année par Shakira et Jennifer Lopez. En 2019, TF1 avait attiré 531 000 téléspectateurs, contre 347 000 personnes l'année précédente sur W9.

51,7 millions. Ce match sera l'occasion pour les Américains de consommer en masse. Devant leur écran, ils engloutiront 14 500 tonnes de chips, 1,25 milliard ailes de poulets (chicken wings) et 8 millions de kilos de guacamole. Sans oublier d'acheter 51,7 millions de packs de bières.

1. Un Américain sur dix a pris ses précautions en cas de victoire un peu trop arrosée - ou de défaite un peu trop dure à avaler -, et n'ira pas travailler lundi.

5,2 millions. Qui dit Super Bowl dit spots de pub incroyables... et vendus à prix d'or : les 30 secondes de publicité ont été proposées contre 5,2 millions de dollars, soit 4,68 millions d'euros et 250 000 dollars de plus que les années précédentes. Avec quatre heures d'antenne, les chaînes peuvent donc récolter grâce à ces spots 350 millions de dollars (315 millions d'euros) de recettes.

10 millions. Ces spots permettront également de voir le président américain Donald Trump et l'ancien maire de New York Michael Bloomberg se répondre dans des séquences d'une minute vendues chacune 10 millions de dollars. Sur fond de politique et de course à la primaire démocrate.

Jennifer Lopez : au Super Bowl, sa fille de 11 ans, Emme, vole la vedette à Shakira !

P public.fr/Toutes-les-photos/Jennifer-Lopez-au-Super-Bowl-sa-fille-de-11-ans-Emme-vole-la-vedette-a-

Ce 2 février, à Miami, Jennifer Lopez a fait monter sa fille de 11 ans, Emme, sur la scène du Hard Rock Stadium. De quoi voler le halftime show à Shakira !

Marc Anthony

Jennifer Lopez

Ce 2 février à Miami, tandis que se jouait la finale du tournoi de football américain, le 54ème Super Bowl, qui opposait les Chiefs de Kansas city (vainqueurs) aux 49ers de San Francisco, c'est comme d'habitude le spectacle de la mi-temps (le halftime show) que le grand public attendait !

Emme, la fille de JLo, a participé au show !

Il était animé cette année par Jennifer Lopez et Shakira. Et si les chanteuses ont recruté quelques guests pour les accompagner - comme Bad Bunny et J Balvin - c'est sans conteste l'invitée d'honneur de JLo qui a volé la vedette à tout le monde !

Emme Anthony, fille de la bomba latina et de Marc Anthony a fait un carton en interprétant "Let's get loud" et "Born in the USA". Shakira l'a accompagnée à la batterie, tandis que Jennifer Lopez la rejoignait sur scène, avec un manteau aux couleurs de Puerto Rico.

L'adolescente de 11 ans, surnommée Coco par sa maman, a tout de suite reçu les compliments de son papa, Marc Anthony, sur la Toile. Publiant une photo du visage angélique de la chanteuse en herbe, la superstar de la chanson latino a commenté : "Emme Papa est tellement fier de toi. Tu es mon ♥ et je suis pour toujours à toi".

Jennifer Lopez a rafflé tous les compliments

Et Marc Anthony n'est pas le seul à avoir commenté la représentation. Dans la foule du Hard Rock Stadium, Alex Rodriguez, le fiancé de Jennifer Lopez s'est filmé en train de bondir sur la musique. Il l'a félicité pour son spectacle qui l'a rendu si fier !

Au terme de cette soirée, si Jennifer Lopez a étonné à 50 ans par son dynamisme et son impressionnante plastique, Shakira, elle, a été moquée sur les réseaux sociaux. En cause, un "youyou" (coup de langue rythmé) qu'elle a adressé à la caméra, pendant qu'elle chantait "Hips don't lie"... qui est devenu instantanément un mème sur internet.

Les fans français de football américain auront le choix entre deux diffuseurs pour suivre ce rendez-vous sportif incontournable dans la nuit du 2 au 3 février.

Chaque année, les chiffres engendrés par le Super Bowl donnent le tournis. En 2019, la rencontre a été diffusée dans 180 pays en 25 langues et suivie par près de 160 millions de personnes dans le monde. Un spot publicitaire coûtait 5,25 millions de dollars les 30 secondes, soit 250.000 dollars de plus que les années précédentes! C'est aussi le programme télévisé le plus regardé de l'année aux États-Unis. En France, c'est TF1 et beIN Sports qui diffusent l'événement. Tous deux retransmettent cette 54^e édition du Super Bowl mettant aux prises, dans la nuit du dimanche 2 au lundi 3 février 2020, les Kansas City Chiefs aux 49ers de San Francisco. Une affiche inédite qui se tiendra en direct depuis le Hard Rock Stadium, à Miami, en Floride. L'incontournable concert de la mi-temps sera, lui, animé par Shakira et Jennifer Lopez.

De bonnes audiences de TF1

TF1, qui diffuse l'événement depuis l'an dernier, prendra l'antenne à 23 h 55. Jean-Pierre Gaggick et Philippe Gardent - l'un des quatre Français à avoir évolué en NFL, aujourd'hui chargé de la préparation du Stade Rochelais en Top 14 - commenteront le match sur la Une. En 2019, la chaîne avait ainsi attiré 531.000 téléspectateurs contre 347.000 personnes l'année précédente sur W9.

Une soirée sports US sur beIN Sports beIN Sports, de son côté, a choisi de consacrer sa soirée aux sports américains. Le diffuseur exclusif de la NFL proposera ainsi le match de NBA New Orleans Pelicans/Houston Rockets à 20 heures, puis un avant-match du Super Bowl dès 23 heures avec Rémi Reverchon, Benjamin Bernard et Laurent Marceline. À 0h30, Lionel Buton et Marc-Angelo Soumah prendront l'antenne pour commenter la rencontre. La chaîne proposera, à l'issue de la confrontation, un débrief d'après-match et la retransmission de la remise du trophée. Une rediffusion sera programmée lundi 3 février à 13 heures sur beIN Sports 3.

Comme des chefs : Kansas City et son talentueux quarterback Patrick Mahomes ont remporté le 54e Super Bowl de la NFL, le deuxième de l'histoire de la franchise de football américain, aux dépens de San Francisco (31-20), dimanche à Miami au terme d'une finale au suspense haletant. La franchise du Missouri, qui met ainsi un terme à cinquante ans de disette depuis son premier sacre face à Minnesota, succède au palmarès à New England. Mais au-delà du terrain, le Superbowl a comme d'habitude autant valu par ses publicités hors de prix et son concert à la mi-temps. Florilège de la nuit.

Kobe Bryant dans les cœurs

Le décès accidentel du légendaire basketteur a ému bien au-delà de la NBA et une semaine jour pour jour après sa disparition, la NFL a voulu lui rendre hommage. Avant la présentation des équipes, les Chiefs et les 49ers se sont positionnés sur leurs lignes des 24 yards, clin d'œil au numéro de maillot de Kobe Bryant. Le stade a alors observé une minute de silence. Dans le public, au milieu des maillots de Kansas City et San Francisco, certains portaient la tunique des Lakers frappée du numéro 8 (celle de Kobe Bryant au début de sa carrière) ou du 24. Plusieurs joueurs du Super Bowl avaient inscrit sur leurs chaussures des messages en mémoire du « Black Mamba », le surnom de Bryant.

Fièvre latina à la mi-temps

Attendues pour donner une touche hispanique à ce Superbowl qui se disputait à Miami, la métropole la plus latino des Etats-Unis, Shakira et Jennifer Lopez n'ont pas déçu. La Colombienne a démarré avec un medley comprenant notamment Whenever, Wherever et Hips Don't Lie, bientôt rejointe par le rappeur et chanteur portoricain Bad Bunny. La New-Yorkaise Jennifer Lopez a pris le relais, maintenant le rythme effréné. Aux célèbres mouvements de hanches de Shakira, J-Lo a répondu par des ondulations du fessier et une séance de pole dance, tout droit sortie de son récent film Queens. Les basses, la danse, les battements par minute, tout rappelait l'atmosphère des clubs de Miami. A l'applaudimètre et sur les réseaux sociaux, Shakira l'a emporté haut la main.

Trump et Bloomberg se font (de) la pub

Célébrités, loufoqueries et nouveautés qu'avaient convoquées les marques pour leurs spots n'y ont rien fait, le terrain publicitaire le plus prisé de l'année a été phagocyté par Donald Trump et Michael Bloomberg, premiers candidats à la présidentielle à s'offrir une publicité lors du Superbowl dans tout le pays. Plutôt que de s'attaquer l'un l'autre, ils ont préféré s'éviter et s'adresser chacun aux électeurs noirs. Le président a mis en avant sa réforme du système judiciaire américain, incarnée par une femme noire, qui a bénéficié d'une libération anticipée. Un message accueilli avec scepticisme sur Twitter, beaucoup l'accusant d'instrumentalisation. Le spot de Michael Bloomberg, contre la violence des armes, présentait lui aussi une femme noire, la mère d'un jeune homme tué par balles. Le principal lobby des armes, la NRA, a immédiatement contre-attaqué, prévenant que les propriétaires d'armes ne se laisseraient pas déposséder.

Une finale renversante. Les Chiefs de Kansas City et son quarterback Patrick Mahomes ont réussi un formidable comeback pour remporter le 54e Super Bowl, en finale du championnat de football américain (NFL), dimanche 2 février à Miami. Ils ont effacé un retard d'une dizaine de points dans les dernières minutes pour finalement l'emporter 31-20 face aux San Francisco 49ers.

Cet évènement sportif a été marquée par un hommage au basketteur Kobe Bryant, décédé il y a quelques jours, par le show incandescent des stars latino-américaines Shakira et Jennifer Lopez et par les spots publicitaires de Donald Trump, candidat à sa réélection à la Maison Blanche, et de Michael Bloomberg, ancien maire de New York en lice pour la primaire démocrate.

1 Une minute de silence pour Kobe Bryant

La NFL a voulu rendre hommage au basketteur Kobe Bryant, décédé dimanche 26 janvier, à 41 ans, dans un accident d'hélicoptère, en Californie. Avant la présentation des équipes, les Chiefs et les 49ers se sont positionnés sur leurs lignes des 24 yards, clin d'œil au numéro iconique de l'ancien joueur des Lakers. Le stade a alors observé une minute de silence. Plusieurs joueurs du Super Bowl avaient inscrit sur leurs chaussures des messages en mémoire du "Black Mamba", le surnom de Bryant.

Un message accueilli avec scepticisme sur Twitter, beaucoup l'accusant d'instrumentalisation.

Selon Fox Corporation, qui diffuse le match aux Etats-Unis, trente secondes de publicité coûtent près de 5,6 millions de dollars (environ 5 millions d'euros). De nombreux annonceurs profitent de l'évènement pour diffuser de nouveaux spots ambitieux. L'une des pubs les plus remarquées a été un remake d'Un jour sans fin, avec un Bill Murray très heureux de revivre le "jour de la marmotte" à bord d'une Jeep.

4 Une erreur de Donald Trump pour conclure

Comme le veut la tradition, le président des Etats-Unis a félicité le vainqueur à la fin du match. Mais le tweet ci-dessous a été corrigé après que le locataire de la Maison Blanche s'est trompé en saluant la victoire de Kansas City et du "grand Etat du Kansas". Or la ville se trouve dans le Missouri, comme son nom ne l'indique pas.

Congratulations to the Kansas City Chiefs on a great game and a fantastic comeback under immense pressure. We are proud of you and the Great State of Missouri. You are true Champions!

À Miami, une ville à forte population hispanique, où les Kansas City Chiefs ont vaincu les 49ers de San Francisco pour la finale du championnat de football américain, les deux têtes d'affiche du spectacle de mi-temps étaient toutes deux des femmes et latinas.

«Hola Miami!» s'exclame la star colombienne Shakira dès son entrée sur scène, ce qui présage que la suite du show sera sous le signe de la culture latino. Mélanges de tubes pop, guitares électriques, pole dance et déhanchés endiablés: «J-Lo» et Shakira ont trouvé la recette parfaite pour mettre le feu pendant quinze minutes sur la scène d'un des événements les plus extravagants au monde. Dimanche soir, la finale du Super Bowl a réuni 100 millions de téléspectateurs au États-Unis.

Vêtue d'un ensemble rouge en sequin avec des bottes cow-boys de la même couleur, Shakira (43 ans) a su mener sa troupe de danseuses à travers ses tubes - Whenever, Wherever, She Wolf ou encore Hips Don't Lie - en ne manquant pas de prendre un bain de foule. Le tout en chantant en anglais et en espagnol, comme sa consœur Jennifer Lopez, âgée de 50 ans.

Une tenue en cuir noir, une longue jupe rose et perchée sur une barre de pole (compétence qu'elle a acquise durant son film Queens): J-Lo chante I'm still Jenny from the Block. Les rappeurs portoricain Bad Bunny et colombien J Balvin sont aussi apparus en tant qu'invités surprise pour accompagner les chanteuses.

«Une performance engagée»

Jennifer Lopez a envoyé un message politique en mettant en scène des enfants dans des capsules illuminées ressemblant à des cages. Une référence à la politique d'immigration sous la présidence de Donald Trump qui a enfermé de nombreux enfants en provenance d'Amérique latine, provoquant l'indignation générale dans le pays.

Née dans le Bronx à New York de deux parents originaire de Porto Rico, une petite île dans les Caraïbes, J-Lo est devenue une star internationale dans le monde de la musique et à Hollywood.

Shakira, de Barranquilla en Colombie, sympathise avec les Latinos des États-Unis, où le débat anti-immigration est devenu davantage public ces dernières années. «La communauté Latino-américaine traverse un moment très difficile aux États-Unis. Je pense qu'il est très important pour nous d'envoyer un message d'union», a confié Shakira lors d'une conférence de presse jeudi dernier.

Le show du Super Bowl se poursuit avec un mash-up du fameux hit de Jennifer Let's Get Loud avec Born in the USA de Bruce Springsteen repris par la fille de Jennifer Lopez, Emme, 11 ans pendant lequel Lopez a dévoilé une veste à plume où apparaissaient le drapeau américain d'un côté et le drapeau Porto Ricain de l'autre.

J- Lo et Shakira se sont ensuite réunies pour clore le show avec une chorégraphie mêlant salsa et danses typiques de Colombie, la champeta et le mapalé, sous les acclamations du public et des feux d'artifice.

Kansas City a remporté pour la deuxième fois de son histoire le Super Bowl, la finale de la Ligue nationale professionnelle de football américain (NFL), en battant San Francisco (31-20), dimanche 2 février, à Miami (Floride).

Le quarterback Patrick Mahomes, auteur de deux lancers convertis en « touchdowns » dans le quatrième et dernier quart-temps de la rencontre, permettant ainsi à son équipe de combler un déficit de dix points, a été le héros des Chiefs. La franchise du Missouri est sacrée au terme d'une finale au suspense haletant, cinquante ans après son premier titre acquis aux dépens des Vikings de Minnesota.

Après trois quart-temps joués dans un inconfort total, plaqué quatre fois, intercepté deux fois, Patrick Mahomes a d'abord réussi un lancer crucial sur une troisième tentative (« down ») pour laquelle il avait 15 yards à gagner ; son lancer a trouvé son coéquipier le receveur Tyreek Hill 44 yards plus loin. Il a ensuite parfaitement fini le travail avec une offrande au « tight end » Travis Kelce (17-20). Mais il restait encore trois points à combler.

Gagnant en confiance, les Chiefs, qui avaient démontré durant ces play-offs leur capacité à renverser des situations compromises – au tour précédent, en finale de conférence, ils avaient triomphé des Houston Texans (51-31) après avoir été menés (0-24) – s'offraient un autre récital sous la baguette du chef d'orchestre Mahomes. Grâce à quatre passes consécutives, ils remontaient cinquante yards, le running-back Damien Williams pénétrant ensuite dans l'en-but des 49ers pour un nouveau touchdown (24-20). Ce dernier devait ensuite donner le coup de grâce en scurant derechef dans les dernières minutes de la rencontre grâce à une course de 38 yards.

Une mi-temps endiablée

Comme chaque année, le spectacle offert à la mi-temps du match était aussi attendu que la rencontre de football elle-même. Et après une prestation du groupe Maroon 5 peu enthousiasmante l'an passé, les chanteuses latino Shakira et Jenifer Lopez ont fait le show au cours de quinze minutes agrémentées de déhanchés endiablés et enchaînés au rythme de leurs plus grands succès.

A chaque Super Bowl, aussi, son lot de publicités plus ou moins réussies. Pour cette édition, année d'élection présidentielle oblige, Donald Trump avait aussi droit à son show – une interview sur la chaîne Fox juste avant le match puis deux publicités de campagne de 30 secondes chacune. Chez les démocrates, c'est le milliardaire Michael Bloomberg qui, fidèle à sa stratégie d'invasion des écrans, a gratifié les Américains d'une minute de requiem pour un meilleur contrôle des armes à feu.

Du côté des marques, qui déboursent des millions de dollars pour quelques secondes de spot publicitaire, c'est Jeep qui a réussi son coup en offrant à Bill Murray un tour de piste de plus dans une nouvelle version du film Un Jour sans fin, un classique du cinéma américain des années 1990.

Les Chiefs de Kansas city remportent leur second Super Bowl après une spectaculaire remontée au cours de ce Super Bowl 2020 dont le show a été assuré par J-Lo et Shakira

La finale du Super Bowl 2020 à Miami a vu les « Chiefs » de Kansas City s'imposer devant les « 49ers » de San Francisco mais le monde entier retiendra surtout le show spectaculaire assuré par Shakira et Jennifer Lopez. Devant plus de 100 millions de téléspectateurs, les deux stars ont offert un spectacle millimétré, avant un final en commun.

Kansas City et son quarterback Patrick Mahomes ont réussi un formidable comeback pour remporter le 54e Super Bowl de la NFL, le deuxième de l'histoire du club, aux dépens de San Francisco (31-20).

Une nouvelle ère

L'équipe du Missouri, qui met un terme à cinquante ans de disette depuis son premier sacre face à Minnesota, succède au palmarès à New England. L'an passé, les Patriots de Tom Brady s'étaient imposés pour la sixième fois, prolongeant une dynastie de 18 années au cours desquelles ils ont disputé neuf finales.

Cette fois, pas de « Pats » ni de « Brady » à l'affiche, pas de « Super Bore » non plus contrairement à l'insipide finale de l'an passé, mais des Chiefs, dont le triomphe pourrait ouvrir une nouvelle ère, et dont le visage juvénile à la coupe afro est celui de Patrick Mahomes. Agé de 24 ans, il est le deuxième plus jeune quarterback de l'histoire à soulever le trophée Vince-Lombardi, après Ben Roethlisberger. Il a pourtant longtemps souffert sous l'énorme pression défensive imposée par des 49ers, mais il a fait preuve de suffisamment de sang froid et de talent pour faire ce que toute son équipe attendait de lui : la différence.

« Peu importe le score, on a Pat Mahomes », a déclaré le receveur Travis Kelce. « C'est +magic Mahomes+, c'est +showtime Mahomes+. Et vous savez quoi? Il a eu la volonté de remettre cette équipe dans le match ».

Son quatrième quart-temps fut effectivement celui des grands champions, sous les yeux de légendes de ce sport comme Joe Montana, présent au Hard Rock Stadium comble de 76000 spectateurs et qui aurait sûrement préféré voir ses 49ers entrer dans le Panthéon des plus titrés, aux côtés de New England et de Green Bay.

Accusant dix points de retard, après trois quart-temps s'apparentant à un calvaire, saqué quatre fois, intercepté deux fois, Mahomes a d'abord réussi un lancer crucial qui a trouvé Tyreek Hill 44 yards plus loin. Il a ensuite parfaitement fini le travail avec une offrande à Travis Kelce (20-17). Le regain de confiance chez des Chiefs, qui avaient démontré durant ces play-offs leur capacité à renverser des situations compromises, comme au 2e tour contre Houston (51-31 après avoir été menés 24-0), s'est traduit par un autre récital de Mahomes, qui a réussi quatre passes consécutives pour remonter cinquante yards et finalement trouver Damien Williams pour le touchdown (24-20). Ce dernier a ensuite donné le coup de grâce en réalisant le doublé dans les dernières minutes d'une course de 38 yards.

« Nous n'avons jamais perdu confiance. Personne dans cette équipe n'avait la tête baissée et nous avons trouvé un moyen de gagner à la fin », a déclaré Mahomes qui avait lui-même inscrit à la course le premier touchdown de Kansas City au premier quart-temps et a logiquement été désigné MVP du Super Bowl.

Pour ses cent ans, La NFL ne pouvait rêver de meilleure publicité que cette finale passionnante. D'autant que sous les yeux de 100 millions d'Américains, le show de la mi-temps a été chaud, avec Shakira et Jennifer Lopez, entre mouvements de hanches et ondulations du fessier.

Pendant que Donald Trump ne savait pas où donner de la tête entre le Kansas et le Missouri, en confondant l'Etat d'origine des Chiefs dans son tweet de félicitations, aussitôt supprimé.

Opération séduction sur Miami Beach ! Alors que le printemps s'installe déjà sur la pointe de la Floride, le Comité régional de tourisme (CRT) Provence-Alpes-Côte-d'Azur et Atout France, l'agence de l'État chargée de promouvoir le tourisme français, ont organisé la semaine dernière un grand meeting à Miami, baptisé Made in the Americas. Objectif : conquérir les marchés américains en exposant les qualités de la région et attirer de nouveaux pays comme le Mexique, le Brésil, l'Argentine ou encore le Pérou. Le CRT, association financée par la Région Sud qui regroupe 200 professionnels et institutionnels de la région (responsables d'offices de tourisme, hôteliers...) a donc invité pour la deuxième année consécutive à Miami Beach près de 30 tour- opérateurs venus de toute l'Amérique pour leur faire découvrir les atouts des trois "marques" de la région (Provence, Alpes et Côte d'Azur) à travers des rencontres sur trois jours. "Le cadre de Miami est idéal, c'est central pour l'ensemble de nos clients qui se trouvent tous à moins de cinq heures d'avion, et il présente tout ce qu'il faut pour organiser des animations en extérieur", explique Loïc Chovelon, directeur général du CRT.

Opération séduction sur Miami Beach ! Alors que le printemps s'installe déjà sur la pointe de la Floride, le Comité régional de tourisme (CRT) Provence-Alpes-Côte- d'Azur et Atout France, l'agence de l'État chargée de promouvoir le tourisme français, ont organisé la semaine dernière un grand meeting à Miami, baptisé Made in the Americas. Objectif : conquérir les marchés américains en exposant les qualités de la région et attirer de nouveaux pays comme le Mexique, le Brésil, l'Argentine ou encore le Pérou.

Le CRT, association financée par la Région Sud qui regroupe 200 professionnels et institutionnels de la région (responsables d'offices de tourisme, hôteliers...) a donc invité pour la deuxième année consécutive à Miami Beach près de 30 tour- opérateurs venus de toute l'Amérique pour leur faire découvrir les atouts des trois "marques" de la région (Provence, Alpes et Côte d'Azur) à travers des rencontres sur trois jours. "Le cadre de Miami est idéal, c'est central pour l'ensemble de nos clients qui se trouvent tous à moins de cinq heures d'avion, et il présente tout ce qu'il faut pour organiser des animations en extérieur", explique Loïc Chovelon, directeur général du CRT.

Attirer les touristes hors saison estivale

Au programme de ce meeting, un workshop où les professionnels du tourisme provençaux ont pu discuter tour à tour, en mode speed dating, avec les agences de voyages américaines qui ont fait le déplacement : "Les USA représentent la deuxième plus importante clientèle étrangère dans l'hôtellerie de la région, juste derrière les Anglais, avec plus d'un million de nuits d'hôtel par an", ajoute Loïc Chovelon.

Au-delà de la fidélisation des agences qui programment déjà la destination, l'un des challenges de cette mission pour la délégation régionale consiste à attirer des touristes hors saison, en misant sur la diversité du territoire et des activités proposées, aussi bien dans les montagnes alpines que dans les villages du Luberon ou encore les deux principales villes du bord de mer, Marseille et Nice : "Notre objectif est de développer l'économie touristique à l'année, pas de faire la course aux touristes. Nous sélectionnons les marchés les plus porteurs pour nos destinations. C'est le cas des Amériques qui ont un panier moyen élevé, qui voyagent principalement hors juillet-août et qui ont un intérêt pour notre culture et notre patrimoine", complète François de Canson, président du CRT de la Région.

Les acteurs régionaux ont sorti le grand jeu pour en mettre plein la vue et ravir les papilles des représentants des agences de voyages. Films promotionnels avec des images superbes des champs de lavande, des calanques, de l'intérieur des terres et des stations de ski, propositions de circuits thématiques sur le vin, la gastronomie, l'architecture, le sport, ateliers découverte du génépi, de la lavande ou du savon... Tout est mis en oeuvre pour donner envie de programmer des visites dans la deuxième région la plus visitée par la clientèle internationale derrière Paris.

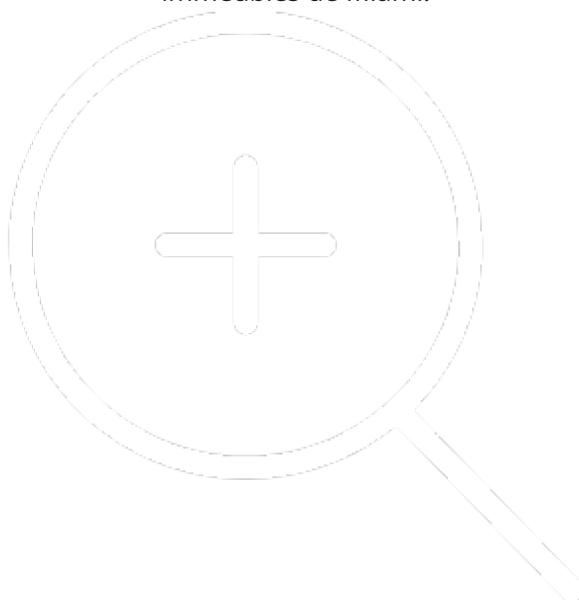

Ambiance provençale sur Miami Beach

Les animations conviviales, comme les dégustations de vins rosés et de spécialités provençales cuisinées par le chef Pierre Reboul du château de la Pioline à Aix-en-Provence, mettent tout le monde d'accord. Mais le clou du spectacle pour les Américains, c'était sans aucun doute le tournoi de pétanque sur la plage organisé par la Boule Obut. En reconstituant le plus fidèlement possible une ambiance typiquement provençale en plein coeur de Miami, la délégation régionale prend date et mise également sur les événements culturels et sportifs à venir (festivals, Grand Prix de F1 au Castellet, coupe du monde de rugby 2023, épreuves de voile des JO 2024 à Marseille...) pour montrer l'attractivité et le dynamisme de la destination sur le long terme.

Sans oublier la dimension écologique : "On ne cherche pas à saturer les lieux les plus fréquentés en faisant venir une cinquantaine de bus en même temps. On veut sensibiliser les tour-opérateurs sur la richesse de notre nature, notamment en leur présentant les Alpes. Ils sont surpris de voir la diversité des activités qu'on peut y proposer toute l'année, à moins de trois heures en voiture des grandes villes". L'air pur donc, les traditions... mais l'argument numéro un reste "nos 300 jours de soleil par an", conclut Loïc Chovelon devant l'assemblée. Sous la chaleur des palmiers et des buildings de Miami, la région s'est bel et bien donné tous les moyens de briller.

Anne-Laure Tuncer, directrice d'Atout France aux USA : "On ne dit pas non à un Américain"

Quels sont les atouts que la région doit mettre en avant pour séduire le marché américain ?

Anne-Laure Tuncer : L'offre est très diversifiée, aussi bien en termes de tourisme balnéaire, urbain, culturel ou sportif. Le territoire est vaste mais il a besoin d'être présenté dans sa globalité. Les Américains connaissent de réputation des villes comme Aix, Arles, Antibes, Cannes, Saint-Tropez ainsi que les villages perchés de l'intérieur des terres. Ils ont cette image de la Provence de l'écrivain britannique Peter Mayle, qui a su décrire un certain art de vivre. C'est une destination qui fait rêver, mais il faut montrer que l'offre se renouvelle. Les initiatives de la région en matière d'environnement mériteraient d'être plus connues, comme par exemple ce partenariat développé avec Waze qui va permettre d'indiquer aux voyageurs les heures de pointe de certains sites pour ne pas les saturer ou offrir une alternative en cas de forte affluence.

Quelles sont les principales caractéristiques de la clientèle en Amérique ?

Anne-Laure Tuncer : Aux États-Unis, la notion de service est très importante. On ne dit pas non à un client américain. Il est habitué chez lui à ce qu'on réponde à ses demandes, qu'on trouve rapidement des solutions à ses problèmes. L'Américain peut avoir l'impression que les professionnels français du tourisme ont parfois des attitudes un peu rigides. À travers cette mission, on conseille donc à notre délégation d'insister sur les notions de réactivité et de flexibilité. Plus globalement, les Américains cherchent à vivre de nouvelles expériences. Ils aiment découvrir des sites et raconter en détail à leurs proches ce qu'ils ont vécu. Au Brésil, cette notion de découvrir avant ses pairs une nouvelle destination est très important. Aux États-Unis et au Canada, qui sont des pays très récents, les touristes sont toujours très impressionnés de découvrir des savoir-faire qui existent depuis des siècles et de rencontrer des locaux qui savent faire perdurer les traditions.

Quel est l'intérêt de venir à Miami à cette période ?

L'avis des tour-opérateurs : "La Provence est une destination qui sollicite les cinq sens"

Ils étaient près de trente représentants de tour-opérateurs venus de toute l'Amérique à avoir répondu présent au rendez-vous des acteurs du tourisme régional. Si la plupart proposaient déjà des séjours dans le Sud-Est de la France, tous ont été charmés par la "variété des expériences proposées", comme l'explique Shawn van der Putten, de l'agence californienne Exquisite Travel Group : "Les Américains connaissent déjà de réputation la Provence et la Côte d'Azur, mais ils sont continuellement à la recherche de nouveautés. Ils ont envie de vivre au plus près des traditions, ils sont friands de souvenirs à la fois typiques et originaux."

Très amusé par les différents ateliers proposés par la délégation régionale, Alexandre Bergeron, de l'agence canadienne Voyage Plein Soleil, s'est montré dithyrambique : "J'ai visité des villages comme Venasque, Gordes, Sénanque... L'odeur de la lavande, c'est le parfum le plus magique qui m'ait été donné de sentir. Pour moi, c'est une destination qui sollicite les cinq sens de façon merveilleuse. Mais malheureusement, le marché québécois ne la connaît pas assez : d'emblée, nos touristes sont attirés par la Bretagne, la Normandie et le Poitou-Charentes, d'où sont partis nos ancêtres. Mais je crois que la Provence a beaucoup à offrir en termes de gastronomie et d'authenticité."

Venu du Mexique, Jose Jaime Rogel Quintana, de l'agence Grupo Navitur, a pour sa part "découvert les Alpes" : "Il y a beaucoup d'activités très intéressantes notamment à travers les stations de ski l'hiver. Ce meeting va nous permettre de faire de nouveaux programmes vers cette destination. Il y a un vrai potentiel pour les clients mexicains qui veulent changer de Paris."

Séduite par "le développement de l'art contemporain dans les nouveaux musées" mais aussi par "ces villes de plus en plus piétonnes", Françoise Cornu, une Française travaillant à l'agence Celestial Voyagers à New York, a apprécié le format de ces réunions : "Pour créer de nouveaux programmes, je préfère m'appuyer sur des locaux qui connaissent le territoire sur le bout des doigts, car nos clients sont de plus en plus exigeants."

Un terrain de foot fabriqué avec des déchets plastiques à Miami

Adidas créer un terrain de foot à base de bouteilles plastiques recyclées. (DR)

À Miami, l'équipementier allemand Adidas a inauguré un terrain de foot synthétique plus durable. Il a, en effet, remplacé les billes de caoutchouc par des petits morceaux de bouteilles en plastique recyclées.

Le monde du sport continue ses actions pour l'écologie. Après l'inauguration d'un terrain de foot écoresponsable à base de noyaux d'olives à La Ciotat, c'est au tour de l'équipementier allemand Adidas de faire un pas pour l'environnement. Il aura fallu environ 1,8 million de bouteilles en plastique recyclées à la marque aux trois bandes pour rendre ce terrain de foot synthétique plus écolo à Miami. Pour remplacer le caoutchouc utilisé pour stabiliser les terrains, le géant allemand a décidé d'utiliser des bouteilles en plastique provenant des plages. Une fois récupéré, le plastique est traité puis transformé en petites billes permettant de remplir le terrain.

Adidas a fait don de ce terrain de foot à la Miami Edison High School, qui a formé plusieurs stars de la NFL telles que TY Hilton, Chad Johnson, Antonio Brown et Devonta Freeman.

Super Bowl-ramasjang sætter Miami på den anden ende

Et hav af arrangementer, turister og massiv tilstedeværelse af politi skaber trafikpropper i Miami.

For 11. gang i historien er Miami vært for Super Bowl, finalen i NFL.

Det gør Miami til den by, hvor Super Bowl oftest har været afholdt, skarpt efterfulgt af New Orleans, som har været vært ti gange.

Miami er et oplagt valg for NFL på grund af byens beliggenhed i det sydlige Florida, hvor solen sjældent er gemt væk - heller ikke i vintermånederne.

I denne uge har der frem mod Super Bowl været dage med solskin og blå himmel, men fredag og lørdag har været en regnvåd affære.

Det har dog ikke afholdt folk fra hele USA - navnlig fans af NFL-finalisterne Kansas City og San Francisco 49ers - fra at indtage byen.

Ifølge den lokale avis Miami Herald er forventningen, at der i denne uge er 150.000 turister per dag i Miami Beach.

Myndighederne betragter Super Bowl som en højrisikobegivenhed, og politiet er derfor massivt til stede både på land, vand og i luften. Ifølge CNN er der knap 1500 politibetjente i gaderne, mens blandt andet FBI og ministeriet for indenlandsk sikkerhed hjælper til.

Markus og Morten forlod prestigefulde job for at realisere iværksætterdrøm i Miami

Miami

Af Sebastian Persson sp@berlingske.dk

Markus Straarup havde gjort karriere i Novo Nordisk gennem ti år. Barndomsvennen Morten Schroeder havde arbejdet sig op i Boston Consulting Group. Men nu er de brudt ud. I dag er de begge 31 år gamle og udlever iværksætterdrømmen i Miami. Følg dem på rejsen fra barndommen til i dag.

Det kræver sig at tykke løftespænde, klatte jobbet og flytte til en ny by for fremmed land for at udleve en usikker drøm.

I en tid hvor højere grad, hvis man har gang i en professionel karriere og er ved at stifte familie.

Men desto mindre er det tilfældet for Markus Straarup og Morten Schroeder, som i dag er iværksættere i Miami, hvor de arbejder på egen virksomhed, der er en platform for fremmede iværksættere mellem venner.

Deres historie er en udsælgende og inspirerende. Den handler om valg- og fravalg. Men historien begynder et helt andet sted end Miami. Overfor spiser vi biden på et bord. Til det, hvor de hele begynder. På en buskstation i Gentofte.

men. Gennem sine studier såede han de i både København, Tyskland, Østerg, USA og Indonesien.

Karrieren

Morten Schroeder »Vi begynder på CBS, startede jeg hos Boston Consulting Group. Jeg havde arbejdet i København i to år, da min vorende kæreste og jeg gik fra i land og efter et år kom vi til USA. Jeg trængte til luftfriskluft, så jeg tog til Australien og arbejdede for Boston Consulting Group der nogle måneder.

Da jeg kom til København, havde jeg stadig lyst til at komme ud og se mere af verden, så jeg søgte en stilling på kontoret i Chicago. Jeg skulle egentlig kun have været der et år, men det endte med at blive ti år. Til sidst blev jeg projektleder med et team under mig.

Markus Straarup »Jeg startede hos Novo Nordisk allerede i min studietid som studentermedhjælper. Da jeg var fremad med studierne, blev jeg ansat til Global Finance Graduate-program. Derefter tog jeg et job på det amerikanske hovedkontor i Princeton. Jeg var der i et år og sluttede som chief of staff for den amerikanske finansdirektør.

Barndommen

Morten Schroeder »Vi mødte hinanden i da vi var ti år gamle. Vi er begge fra Gentofte, og den måde vi taler på i Gentofte er helt unik. Så har vi faktisk været sammen lige siden.

Markus Straarup »Det var faktisk gennem en fælles bekendt i Gentofte, men vi spillede basketball sammen i den tid.

Vi endte med at gå på samme gymnasiegang også, så vi havde en del med tilfældet at gøre. Da vi var femte og i gymnasiet, tog vi på jernbanerne sammen i seks indøder.

Ungdommen

Morten Schroeder »Vil du ikke sige fra jernbanerne, besluttede vi os for at flytte sammen i København. Det havde vi ikke tænkt på, vi begyde tog på CBS. Vi talte om at etablere en bar som de fleste andre dengang, men det ændrede sig.

Morten Schroeder tog en bachelor i International Business og supplerede med en kandidat i Global Applied Economics ved Copenhagen Business School.

Markus Straarup tog også en bachelor i International Business, men han tog en kandidat i Finance and Strategic Management og siden en anden kandidat i International Manage-

FAKTA

Fra Gentofte til Miami

Apnen Frønsdage er stiftet af barndomsvennerne Markus Straarup og Morten Schroeder. De er begge 31 år og har gjort karriere hos henholdsvis Novo Nordisk og Boston Consulting Group.

Frønsdage er en platform til at dele anbefalinger mellem venner. Det kan være restauranter, bøger, film, serier, podcast eller noget.

De er begge lædt og opvokset i Gentofte og uddannede til CBS i dag bor de i Miami.

Frønsdage har foruden de to stiftere fire søsterinvestorer i Indien og to rådgivere i Danmark.

De har netop rejst omkring to millioner i seed- og Series A. Apnen betjenes af mere end 4.500 brugere og næsten 30.000 anbefalinger.

her vil om at have en platform, hvor man deler anbefalinger mellem venner.

Morten Schroeder »I det tidspunkt var jeg i New York den ene dag. Indtredt den anden og Portland den tredje. Når du som konsulent økonomier til en ny by med dit team, skal man ud at have noget at sige, og det kan være svært at finde noget.

Jeg begyndte at tyde til en masse podcast som person, men jeg havde et stort ved at finde nye, så jeg spurgte altid mine venner efter anbefalinger. Og så opstod ideen til at gøre den proces nemmere.

Vi var sammen til Thanksgiving i Chicago, hvor jeg fortæller om ideen for første gang. Vi var helt oppe at køre, og siden af afrejsen vil vi rundt i vores egen lille boble og påtænde alle mulige tanker og blive til hinanden.

Overgangen

Markus Straarup »Vi gik i gang med at undersøge ideen og undersøgte ved siden af vores arbejde for to år siden.

Morten Schroeder »Vi postede at vores ide kom til i et sæt af kort og det i et år. I vores første møde blev vi mødt af et par gode anbefalinger fra Boston Consulting Group fra kl. 19 om morgenen til kl. 23 om aftenen. Så passede det godt, at de stod op i London, hvor vi havde nogle programmer skibende til at skabe apnen. Så kunne jeg kommunikere med dem selv om aftenen, når jeg var fremtid med min egen arbejdsdag.

For omkring et år siden sad om apnen i en betaversion.

Overvejelserne

Markus Straarup »Vi havde selvfølgelig enormt mange overvejelser. Vi havde et budget om, om vi skulle starte i Danmark, så var vi nødt til at tage vores job op. Det var et stort spørgsmål om, hvad fordelene egentlig var med det hele.

Vi var enige om, at det helt grundlæggende var tilfreds. Vi arbejder gerne meget tidligt, men vi savnede ikke vores job.

men vi savnede fleksibilitet og en større mulighed for at få flere projekter over det, vi lægger vores tid i.

På det tidspunkt var en tredje måned gået med på holdet, men man var ikke klar til at tage samme spring.

Morten Schroeder »Det gjorde det nemmere at tage springet, at vi på det tidspunkt allerede havde arbejdet meget på apnen, og at vi var langt med den. Og så var der bare mange ting, som faktisk i tank. Jeg fik mit provencat i USA, jeg fik en bonus i januar og blev fortællende i Danmark, så tiden løb sig rigtig. Samtidig havde jeg opbygget en økonomisk buffer, så jeg vidste, at jeg kunne klare mig i noget tid, hvis det ikke skulle komme løn.

I sidste ende prøvede jeg at forestille mig livet som 30-årig. Vil jeg på et eller andet tidspunkt det eller ej? Uanset udfaldet tror jeg, jeg vil være glad for, at jeg prøvede.

Miami

Markus Straarup »Må man sige at opvækst i Miami, så det var et stort, jeg tænkte. Samtidig overvejede vi San Francisco eller New York, men der ville løsningen blive alt for lang. Min kone er fra Spanien, og Morten kommer fra Puerto Rico, så det gør også mening i forhold til, at det er noget latinamerikansk kultur det.

For to måneder siden påkøbte vi vores ting i Princeton og kørte til Miami.

Morten Schroeder »Miami har et voksende antal af alle projekter over det, vi lægger vores tid i.

På det tidspunkt var en tredje måned gået med på holdet, men man var ikke klar til at tage samme spring.

Dagligdagen

Morten Schroeder »Den største forskel på vores dagligdag i dag er tilfreds. Jeg har mere tid til at være sammen med familien og til at gøre ting, som jeg elsker. Jeg har også mere tid til at være sammen med familien og til at gøre ting, som jeg elsker.

Markus Straarup »Jeg var meget glad for, at det blev en lang rejse, som ingen andre har gjort før. Det er en lang rejse, som ingen andre har gjort før. Det er en lang rejse, som ingen andre har gjort før.

forstå overvejelser i starten, men en karriere er anderledes i dag end i bussen da, hvor man var i Danmark i London Bank. Men nu er man meget stiftende omkring det.

»sidste ende prøvede jeg at forestille mig selv som 70-årig. Vil jeg så fortryde at have gjort det eller ej? Uanset udfaldet tror jeg, at jeg vil være glad for, at jeg prøvede.

Markus Straarup »Vi ved godt, at det er et hårdt marked, hvor rigtig mange kommer om at blive det næste Instagram. Det er svært at skabe noget socialt fra første dag, for det kræver, at virksomheder bruger det. Den første person, der klatte en Facebook, havde også svært ved at sætte det til noget. Vi arbejder meget på, at apnen også er en god oplevelse, hvor man ikke har været på den endnu.

BEDSTE REJSEPERIODE

Miami, april og maj har nok det bedste klima og en temperatur på typisk 25-30 grader. Her kan du nyde sol og strand sammen med en god middag og en drink på en af de mange restauranter på øen.

Under besøget besøgte vi Miami Beach i begyndelsen af april, og selv om der var en del regn med rogn, var det ingen grund til at blive hjemme. Hvis du er på ferie, kan du også besøge Miami Beach fra et langt stykke afstand for at se de smukkeste bygninger.

GIANNI VERSACE

Gianni Versace blev født i 1897 og var modedesigner, som blev kendt for sine smukke og farverige designs. Hans søster Lucina blev også modedesigner og blev kendt for sine smukke og farverige designs.

Versace mødte sin kone, Filippa, i 1987 og blev gift med hende i 1992. De blev gift i Miami Beach, og deres bryllup blev et stort og smukt bryllup. De har tre børn sammen.

Versace var inspireret af den amerikanske og græske kunst, og hans design blev inspireret af disse. Hans design blev kendt for sine smukke og farverige designs.

Oplev Versaces tidligere hjem blandt palmer og farverige facader

Gianni Versaces tidligere residens giver noget ekstra til Miami Beach, som i forvejen ellers har masser af byde på - smukke strande, turkisblåt vand, og ture ud i sumpene for at se på alligatorer.

Myrtens hovedstad ligger i Ocean Drive. Den populære strækning ligger med restauranter og butikker i forvejen. På den ene side og mod strandpromenaden, der agerer forløber for den populære South Beach, på den anden. Den smukke strand, der ligger på 80 kilometer fra Bahamas' vestlige øer, byder ikke overraskende på turblinde vand og solbæger. På den anden side er der en række restauranter, der fylder gaderne som en nyet i en ny i sømmedigtningen.

Miami Beach er på den ene side et stort nyklaret af byggeri, der skal nå hore deres ting med shopping, strandbar, cafeer og sightseeing. Det nye Miami, på den anden side er et fantastisk produkt af typisk amerikansk byplanlægning med et stort og smukt, der får byggeriet til at være overbevisende selv for dem, der er genkendt udfordret på stedet.

Andre Casanova havde forinden drøbet mindst fire andre personer over en periode på tre måneder, inden han tog til øen for at se på alle sine møder, eller hvad Versace var et af offere.

Måske, de mange ubesvarede spørgsmål og den besidde bygning tiltrækker turistens interesse, der skal opleves stemningen på det østlige sted. Efter sigende er huset, som Versace købte Casa Casanova, det tidligere kongeriget i USA efter Det Hvide Hus og Det Grønland.

Med den gæstfri i mente er det dog ikke, fordi det svarer med sølle jagere og opstille familier fra det berømte domkirk. Til gengæld kan man tydeligt mærke, hvor stor en plads bygningen har i Miami Beach. Alle, der skal gøre, er at stille sig med ryggen til herligheden og kigge ud på verdensomkredede, der glider forbi.

Hvis man har tilfældighed, er der garanti for, at man kan have en personlig oplevelse af en amerikansk eller to, der til forvejen ringede ud over huler deres historie om et møde med den besidde bygning, der rummer på den besidde.

MIAMI

GRAFITIS DE WYNWOOD

En apenas 10 años, Wynwood ha pasado de ser un suburbio a convertirse en el epicentro creativo de Miami.

Fue a finales de 2009, justo con la celebración de la siempre epifánica feria Art Basel Miami Beach, cuando Wynwood Walls abrió sus puertas. El hecho de ponerle horarios y accesos a la galería de arte urbano que aglutina los murales más llamativos de la ciudad supuso un antes y un después ya que, aunque todo seguía a la intemperie, estaba organizado como si fuera un museo más. Además de dignificar la pintura callejera, este espacio supuso la eclosión definitiva de un barrio de almacenes que, tras décadas de ignominia, empezó a floreecer gracias a la proliferación de galerías de arte que se instalaban en la zona atraídas por los bajos costes. Diez años después, sus calles están llenas de grafitis gracias a una ley que los ha despenalizado y a un ecosistema creativo que los incentiva. No hay tienda, restaurante o inmueble que no tenga su propia obra de arte. Incluso la fachada del colegio José de Diego o los silos de la cementera Supermix presumen de estar decorados con curiosas criaturas. Todo un microcosmos que trasciende los límites de Wynwood Walls y que ya es innegociable. ■

internacional

Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau, GMCVB, ha alzado el telón de una nueva iniciativa que promueve un nuevo parque temático de aventura llamado Miamiland.

Esta operación supone una extensión de la campaña existente 'Found In Miami', de GMCVB, que ha sido diseñada para animar a los visitantes a explorar más zonas de Miami.

La ejecución creativa de Miamiland ha sido diseñada para crear intriga y aumentar la emoción de un parque temático de aventura repleto de maravillas naturales.

La campaña está diseñada en respuesta al creciente deseo de los consumidores de desprenderse del estrés de la vida diaria a cambio de un mayor compromiso con la naturaleza y la aventura.

Los estudios demuestran que los viajeros quieren desconectar de la rutina diaria y en su lugar conectar con nuevas culturas.

Con el 79 por ciento de los milenials identificados como 'exploradores' y el 38 por ciento deseando viajar a destinos naturales, GMCVB ha trabajado para diseñar una campaña en tres fases que apela a esta mentalidad aventurera.

En la primera fase de la campaña se preguntó al consumidor sobre la promesa de un nuevo y misterioso parque temático promovido a través de videos que incluían entrevistas con un creativo responsable del diseño del nuevo parque.

Los atributos únicos de Miamiland son descritos por el creativo para mantener al consumidor intrigado. La segunda fase revela los amplios activos naturales de Miami bajo una nueva perspectiva y hace que los visitantes se den cuenta de que MIAMILAND siempre ha estado en el patio trasero de Miami.

La campaña culmina con la fase diseñada para proporcionar continuamente nuevo contenido, itinerarios y opciones de planificación de viajes para los consumidores que buscan explorar el Miami más salvaje.

'Estamos aprovechando nuestros activos naturales para atraer nuevos visitantes y extender la duración de la estancia de los clientes existentes', ha asegurado William D. Talbert III, CDME, presidente y CEO de GMCVB.

‘Miami ofrece una gran diversidad de personas y lugares, pero también una inmensa diversidad en cuanto a las experiencias’.

Las nuevas campañas de promoción turística más rompedoras

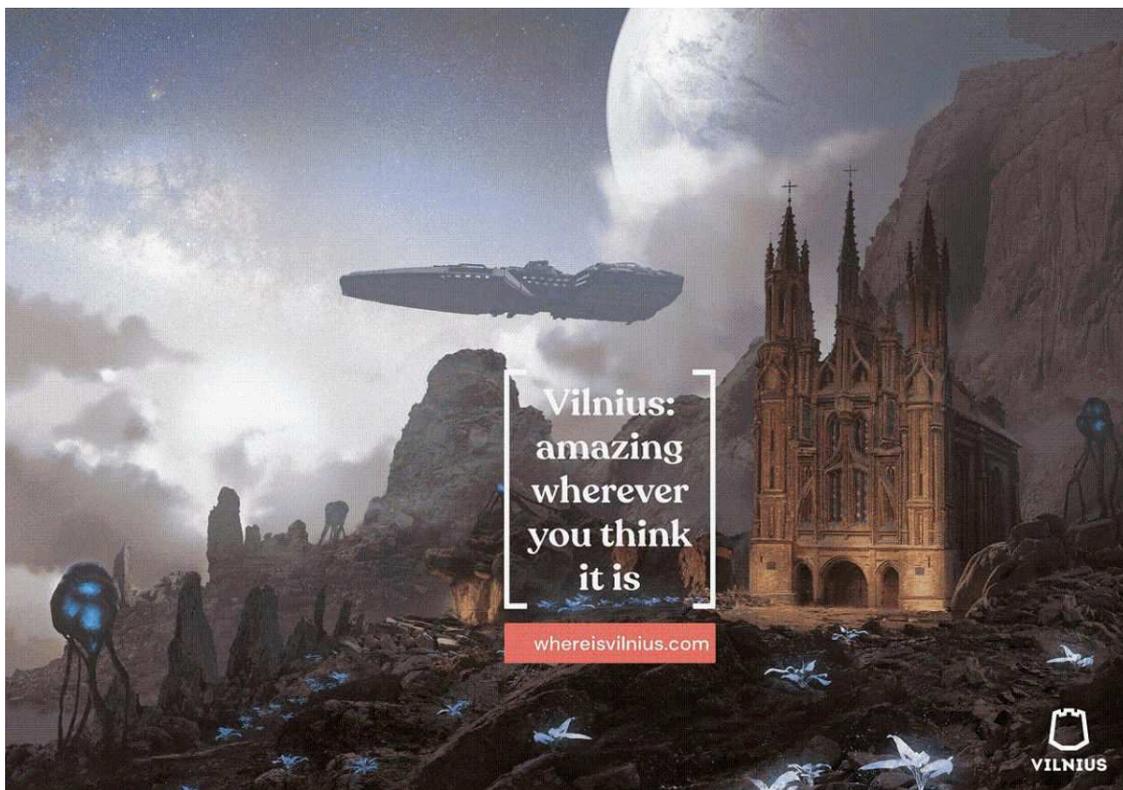

original

- En su anterior campaña Vilna se promocionaba como el punto G de Europa: “Nadie sabe dónde está, pero cuando lo encuentras es asombroso”
- Con su nueva campaña “Vilna, increíble donde sea que pienses que está” busca atraer a los turistas burlándose de lo desconocida que es
- En la campaña de Miamiland se creaba intriga acerca de un nuevo y misterioso parque temático que después resulta ser Miami en sí

La imaginación de los creativos que están detrás de algunas de las campañas turísticas más sorprendentes no conoce límites. Ya lo vimos en Las mejores campañas turísticas en redes sociales de 2019 y en Las mejores campañas de marketing turístico en redes sociales de 2018, en ambos casos publicados por HOSTELTUR noticias de turismo. En este caso los protagonistas son Vilna (Vilnia en lituano), que apuesta en su estrategia por convertir una debilidad, el desconocimiento generalizado de su ubicación, en fortaleza; y Miami, que se promociona como si de un parque temático se tratara.

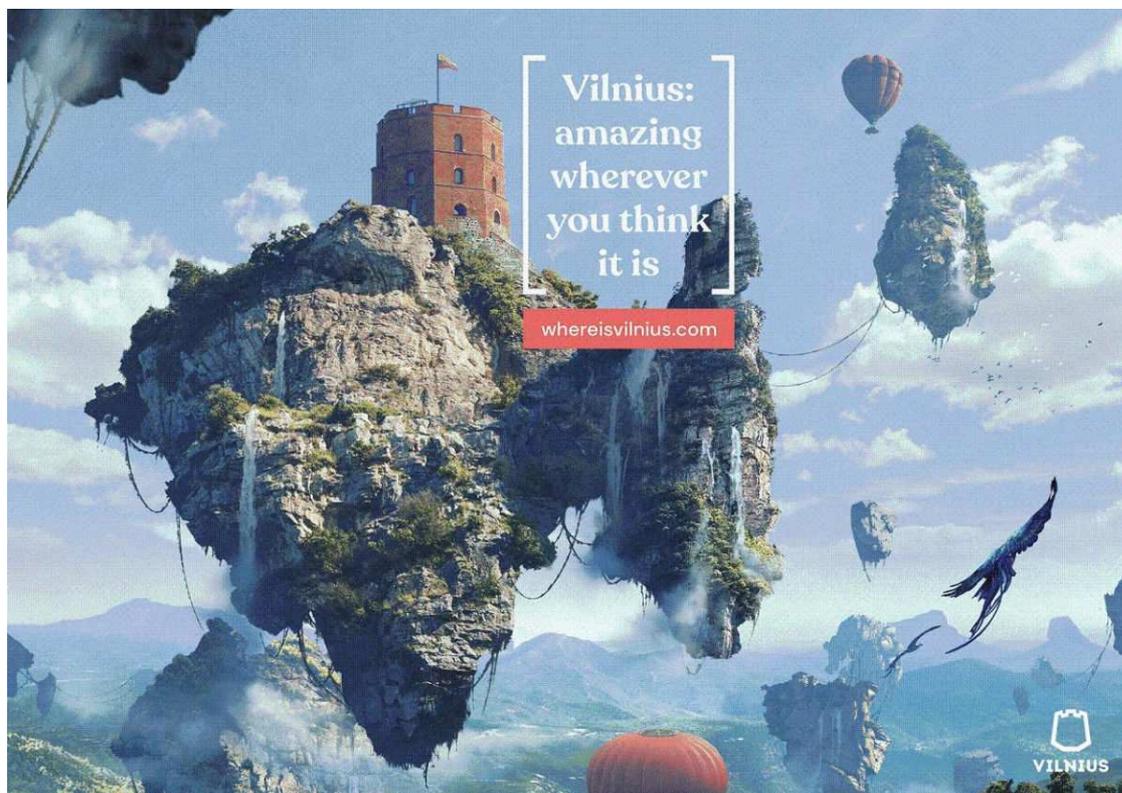

Vilna cosechó un gran éxito con su anterior campaña turística en la que se promocionaba como el punto G de Europa precisamente por ese desconocimiento de dónde se encuentra, enfatizando en que “nadie sabe dónde está, pero cuando lo encuentras es asombroso”. De hecho recibió el International Travel & Tourism Awards de la World Travel Market a la mejor campaña. Ahora la capital lituana profundiza en esta misma línea con una nueva estrategia lanzada esta semana bajo el eslogan “Vilna, increíble donde sea que pienses que está”.

La iniciativa, siempre con el objetivo de reivindicar todos los aspectos sorprendentes de la ciudad, busca atraer a los turistas a visitarla burlándose de lo desconocida que es para la mayoría de las personas de fuera del país, por lo que Vilna se reinventa en distintos mundos de fantasía.

La idea de utilizar ese desconocimiento como herramienta para atraer más turistas está respaldada por datos. Un estudio realizado el pasado año por Go Vilnius, la agencia oficial de desarrollo de la ciudad que ha promovido esta iniciativa, revela que sólo el 6% de los israelíes, el 5% de los británicos y el 3% de los alemanes conocen algo más que el nombre y la localización aproximada de la capital lituana.

Por ello, en la página web recién creada los visitantes tienen la oportunidad de participar en un concurso para adivinar su ubicación y ganar así un viaje a la ciudad mientras se les informa de la multitud de razones por las que es asombrosa, en términos de cultura, historia, naturaleza y gastronomía.

Además de la web, esta iniciativa promocional también incluye un divertido vídeo en el que se pregunta a gente en Berlín si saben dónde está la capital lituana y la ubican casi en cualquier lugar de América a África salvo donde en realidad está. El vídeo se proyectará en plataformas online junto con campañas de publicidad en mercados objetivo y medios seleccionados. A ello se sumarán carteles de la imagen de Vilna en los mundos de fantasía en escaparates de Londres, Liverpool y Berlín.

Como ha destacado la directora de Go Vilnius, Inga Romanovskien, la idea es convertir la desventaja de ser la capital europea menos conocida en una campaña divertida y entretenida en la que Vilna se ríe de su oscuridad. “Nuestro objetivo es mostrar que no importa dónde se piense la gente que está ubicada, es un gran destino para visitar”.

Miamiland convierte al destino en parque temático

En su nueva campaña Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) promueve un parque temático de aventura llamado Miamiland, en respuesta al creciente deseo de los viajeros de conectar con la naturaleza a través de la aventura para desconectar de la rutina diaria. Esta iniciativa supone una ampliación de la ya existente “Found In Miami”, diseñada para animar a los visitantes a explorar más zonas del destino; y con Miamiland se busca crear intriga y aumentar la emoción de un parque temático de aventura repleto de maravillas naturales.

Con el 79% de los milenials identificados como “exploradores” y el 38% deseando viajar a destinos naturales, GMCVB ha trabajado para diseñar una campaña en tres fases que apela a esa mentalidad aventurera. En la primera se preguntó al consumidor sobre un nuevo y misterioso parque temático con vídeos que incluían entrevistas con un creativo responsable del diseño del nuevo recinto, que describía los atributos únicos de la nueva infraestructura para mantener al consumidor intrigado.

La segunda fase revela los amplios atractivos naturales de Miami bajo una nueva perspectiva y hace que los visitantes se den cuenta que Miamiland siempre ha estado ahí. La campaña culmina con la fase diseñada para proporcionar continuamente nuevo contenido, itinerarios y opciones de planificación de viajes para los consumidores que buscan explorar el Miami más salvaje.

William D. Talbert, presidente y CEO de GMCVB, ha explicado en este sentido que “estamos aprovechando nuestros activos naturales para atraer nuevos visitantes y ampliar la duración de la estancia de los clientes ya existentes”. Porque “Miami ofrece una gran diversidad de personas y lugares, pero también una inmensa diversidad en cuanto a experiencias”.

La campaña incluye contenido en una web creada para la ocasión, con vídeos de introducción, anuncios y espacios en medios de comunicación, con especial énfasis en los mercados de Nueva York, Chicago y Atlanta.

Miami Florida/ South Beach: Atractivo de Día y de Noche

Paul Monzón • original

South Beach, ubicado en Miami Beach, es un destino en sí mismo y ha sido llamado la Riviera Americana y el Rincón de Art Déco. Sin embargo, hay más que fina arena blanca y coloridos edificios en esta tierra fantástica de exuberante arquitectura Art Déco en South Beach.

Reserva tu viaje a Miami

South Beach ofrece una mezcla ecléctica de boutiques, galerías y tiendas de primer nivel. También es un destino gastronómico para todos los gustos, desde la comida gourmet hasta la cocina informal cerca de la playa. Por la noche, South Beach cobra vida con multitudes listas para salir y tener una velada de clase mundial.

South Beach es la Miami de las postales. El perfil urbano de Ocean Drive ha aparecido en la televisión probablemente millones de veces. Es cierto que South Beach es un lugar de fiestas de clase mundial, y eso no debe pasarse por alto, pero los destinos diurnos en la isla son tan notables y, quizás, más inolvidables que la vida nocturna.

South Pointe Park

Las playas de arena blanca y aguas azules son de visita obligada para cualquier visitante de Miami. Incluso para los habitantes de la ciudad, la playa nunca pierde su encanto. Las vistas desde el South Pointe Park en la punta de South Beach son las favoritas de los locales. Si quieres tomar un descanso del sol, echa un vistazo a uno de los muchos museos, tiendas o edificios históricos de la zona. Camina a lo largo de Lincoln Road para ver a la gente pasear o acomódate en un elegante bar con cócteles de alto nivel. Toma un bocado en Española Way, donde podrás disfrutar la arquitectura de estilo español antiguo y un animado ambiente. Luego, visita el Bass Museum of Art o el Wolfsonian FIU para un paseo cultural.

Little Havana, el Miami con sabor más latino

original

Little Havana es uno de los barrios más peculiares de Miami (KenWiedemann / Getty Images)

Restaurantes con sabor caribeño y aroma de café, ritmos hispanos, ancianos enfrascados en interminables partidas de dominó, risas despreocupadas y dulces conversaciones con acento cubano... Aunque cualquiera podría creer que nos encontramos en pleno centro de La Habana, lo cierto es que la escena tiene lugar un día cualquiera en Little Havana, el barrio más latino de Miami.

Esta localidad, situada 230 millas -unos 370 kilómetros- al norte de la capital cubana se ha convertido en todo un símbolo para los cubanos que residen en el exterior. Y es que debemos tener en cuenta que solo en el estado de Florida, la población originaria del país caribeño supera los 1,2 millones de personas.

Little Havana tiene numerosas tiendas en las que se elabora tabaco (bruno frontino / Turismo de Miami)

Miami es una urbe multicultural y sorprendente, y Little Havana uno de los rincones más singulares de los Estados Unidos, algo de lo que la ciudad presume. Y es que el colorido de la cultura hispana, sobre todo de Little Havana, con sus restaurantes, cafés, locales y mercados de inspiración latina, sorprende a cuantos la visitan. Se impone pasear por la Calle Ocho o la Avenida 15, toda una experiencia para cualquier turista.

Olvídate de los gigantescos rascacielos que inundan las grandes ciudades norteamericanas. En Little Havana, sencillamente no los vas a encontrar. La Calle Ocho es su punto neurálgico, el corazón del barrio desde el que viajarás a los intestinos de la capital cubana, con el ritmo que ambienta los bares de la zona, las tiendas en las que se fabrican puros a mano, los mejores restaurantes, locales de ocio y sus coloridos murales.

Paseo de la Fama de Little Havana, Miami (Turismo de Miami)

Uno de los rincones más concurridos por los foráneos es el Paseo de la Fama, que cuenta con las estrellas más célebres del firmamento hispano. Emulando al Paseo de la Fama de Hollywood, en esta calle se rinde tributo a grandes artistas como el actor Andy García, Sammy Sosa, uno de los mejores bateadores de la historia, o cantantes como Gloria Estefan, Celia Cruz o Julio Iglesias.

Sin embargo, la autenticidad de la Calle Ocho la encontramos en el parque Máximo Gómez, una pequeña explanada en la que los cubanos se reúnen para jugar al ajedrez o al dominó. Aquí nos empapamos del ambiente local y de la vida cotidiana de los primeros cubanos que se asentaron en Miami tras salir de su país, hace ya décadas.

Si te apetece escuchar la mejor música latina en directo, no puedes abandonar la Calle Ocho sin acercarte hasta Baal & Chain Bar, un local de los años 30 del siglo pasado que cuenta con un icónico escenario en forma de piña.

Parque Máximo Gómez, Little Havana (Turismo de Miami)

Si, en cambio, lo que persigues es ver películas en versión original en la sala más emblemática de la zona, debes acercarte hasta el Tower Theater, en la Avenida 15, todo un símbolo del art déco de Miami. Este establecimiento fue durante décadas el único que proyectaba cintas americanas subtituladas en español.

Sin abandonar esta calle, encontramos otro lugar ciertamente pintoresco: el Dómino Park, un parque en el que los más veteranos del barrio juegan, como indica su propio nombre, al dominó, el deporte nacional de Cuba.

El Tower Theater de la Avenida 15 es todo un icono en Miami (Turismo de Miami)

Si después de deambular por Little Havana necesitas un descanso, pon rumbo a la Avenida 13, posiblemente la más apacible de la zona. En el Cuba Memorial Boulevard los isleños rinden homenaje a algunas de las personalidades más importantes de la historia del país con vistosos monumentos, como el que recuerda al poeta revolucionario José Martí o Antonio Maceo, un célebre héroe de guerra.

Si te gusta la música y el arte te recomendamos que hagas coincidir tu visita al barrio con alguno de sus eventos. El tercer viernes de cada mes, se organizan los Viernes Culturales, una noche en la que las galerías muestran su oferta cultural, y en marzo tiene lugar desde hace más de cuatro décadas una cita ineludible: el Festival Calle Ocho. El evento, que reúne a un millón de personas se ha convertido en uno de los más importantes de Miami. ¿Te lo vas a perder?

Miami no es hortera

Redacción Viajes NG • original

Este viaje sonoro por la ciudad comienza por los barrios de moda, El primero, destaca por haber hecho del arte urbano un símbolo de identidad. No hay negocio, cafetería, restaurante ni, incluso, garaje, que no cuente con un mural fotogénico. Hoy en día abundan las visitas que lo recorren y querealizan un viaje a través de la historia del barrio y su evolución. En el caso del lo fascinante es cómo la arquitectura y el diseño se ha puesto al servicio de las compras y lo ha hecho atrayendo, aún así, a viajeros de todo tipo.

VISITA OBLIGADA PARA INSTRAGRAMERS

Euphoric Emporium, en Miami, el paraíso para los amantes de

Instagram

Euphoric Emporium, en Miami, es el destino al que ningún instagramer se podrá resistir ¿eres uno de ellos? ¡atento a los detalles! (te los desvelamos a continuación).

Áine Díaz | Madrid | 25/02/2020

No sabemos si es arte o es locura pero de lo que estamos seguros es que no puedes perderte esta nueva experiencia interactiva en Miami y si además eres de los que se muere por 'petarlo' en Instagram, deberías estar ya planificando tu viaje a Miami para adentrarte en su Euphoric Emporium.

Euphoric Emporium es un gran espacio en el que podrás disfrutar de hasta 14 experiencias diferentes, eso además de tomarte algo en su bar o descansar un rato bajo las palmeras en su zona de patio.

Claro que lo sorprendente y excepcional de este lugar no son tanto sus palmeras o sus cócteles como las 14 experiencias que podrás vivir, por ejemplo, podrás colarte en un contenedor decorado de tal modo que engaña a tus ojos ¿el resultado? te sientes crecer y decrecer como si fueses la mismísima Alicia en el País de las Maravillas probando pócimas y galletas.

No menos impactante resulta la experiencia del espejo porque consiste en que te encuentres (en lugar de perderte que es, por otra parte, lo más probable) en un laberinto en el que tú única compañía será tu propio reflejo.

Más, una de las experiencias más divertidas cabe que sea la del tiovivo porque una cámara rodará a cámara lenta tus vueltas en el tiovivo y podrás revivirlas sin perderte detalle alguno (cabe que veas incluso los que no quieres ver porque ya sabes que la cámara lenta tiene siempre un punto traicionero).

Y así podríamos seguir hasta 14 experiencias diferentes que puedes disfrutar a inmortalizar sólo en el Euphoric Emporium, en Miami, cerca de Venetian Causeway, entre Bayshor Drive y el 15th Street.

¿Cuánto cuesta disfrutar de esta experiencia? hay varios precios en función del tipo de acceso que quieras: los menores de 4 años no pagan, los menores de 18 años pagan 18 dólares y los mayores de esa edad 28; puedes optar por entradas con bebida incluida o entrada doble VIP e incluso hay también un paquete familiar de cuatro entradas, dos infantiles y dos de adultos, por 70 dólares.

El horario es amplio, abre de lunes a viernes de 4 de la tarde a 1 de la madrugada y los sábados y domingos también de 11 de la mañana a 1 de la tarde pero, si viajas no niños, ten en cuenta que a partir de las 7 de la tarde sólo se permite el acceso a mayores de 18 años.

Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) abrió el telón de una iniciativa secreta que había comenzado el invierno pasado cuando lanzó algunos videos de prueba en los principales mercados nacionales promoviendo un nuevo parque temático de acciónaventura llamado MIAMILAND.

La actividad fue una extensión de la campaña Found In Miami del GMCVB y está diseñada para animar a los visitantes a explorar más vecindarios del Gran Miami.

La ejecución creativa de MIAMILAND fue diseñada para crear curiosidad y aumentar la emoción de un parque temático de acción y aventura lleno de maravillas naturales.

Además, mostró que el «parque temático» es en realidad la inmensa huella del Gran Miami, hogar de dichos atractivos naturales situados orgánicamente para proporcionar acceso a auténticas aventuras de acción.

La campaña está diseñada en respuesta al creciente deseo de los consumidores de desprenderse de los problemas de la vida diaria a cambio de un mayor compromiso con la naturaleza y la aventura.

Miami celebra en febrero y marzo los meses de Salud y Bienestar

Compartir | f t g

Por toda la ciudad de Miami hay lugares de fitness, de comida healthy, planes detox, yoga al aire libre y gran cantidad de actividades vinculadas con la vida sana. Siguiendo la tendencia en ascenso de los viajeros que buscan bienestar tanto físico como espiritual durante sus viajes, Miami celebra en febrero y marzo sus meses de Salud y Bienestar.

Es por ello que Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) invita a locales y turistas a una celebración de 60 días para experimentar todos aquellos lugares que posicionaron a la ciudad como la más saludable de los Estados Unidos.

Miami Temptations Programs, de GMCVB, ofrece un listado curado con lo mejor que el destino tiene para hacer un balance entre turistar, descansar, y mantener la rutina wellness, incluso en vacaciones.

Uno de los eventos más importantes es la Miami Sailing Week, en la pintoresca costa de Coconut Grove. Consiste en carreras de vela de varias clases efectuadas en las cristalinas aguas azules de la Bahía de Biscayne. Se llevarán a cabo el fin de semana del 4 de marzo (con competiciones para adultos) y el fin de semana del 13 de marzo (con competiciones juveniles). La Semana de la Vela también incluye cócteles, exhibiciones culturales y ceremonias de premiación que reúnen a los marineros, la comunidad local y turistas nacionales e internacionales.

También, Lululemon Miami, a través de cuatro tiendas diferentes, realiza todos los miércoles a las 6.00 de la tarde una divertida carrera llamada Project: Ejecuta Miami. El punto de encuentro es el Front Lawn Courtyard de JW Marriott Miami Turnberry Resort & Spa y las inscripciones son gratis a través de Eventbrite.

Los sábados a la mañana en Española Way se atrae al amor, la luz, la felicidad y la salud tanto para el cuerpo como para la mente con clases abiertas de Synergy Yoga. Lo importante es no olvidarse llevar agua para beber y estera (aunque también se puede alquilar una por 2 dólares).

En lo referido a las ofertas gastronómicas, Terras es un excelente lugar para mantener la movida saludable sin perderse los sabores de América Latina y el Caribe. Es el único bar con rooftop de la Pequeña Habana y ofrece comida inspirada en vegetales locales con un guiño a la Street Food latinoamericana. El Chef Ejecutivo Harry Capacetti elaboró un menú que incluye pequeños platos para compartir. Los desayunos son 8.00 a 11.00 de la mañana y el menú diario es hasta las 10.00 de la noche.

Otro destino culinario es Mama Joon, situado frente al mar y en el patio del Collins Park. Su propuesta culinaria presenta el estilo casero de la comida mediterránea vegetariana con una fuerte influencia libanesa. Para sentirse como un verdadero rey del Mar Mediterráneo, se ofrecen variedades del distinguido Spritz italiano con ingredientes que van desde el licor de Falernum, la lima Kaffir y el Mastika con infusión de hierbas.

Miami ofrece un gran abanico de posibilidades para aquellos fanáticos de la vida saludable, desde todo tipo de actividades deportivas, hasta restaurantes de comida sana y no por eso menos exquisita. Todo está en dejarse llevar por una vida más saludable y romper esas malas prácticas que no contribuyen a nuestro bienestar.

MIAMI CELEBRA BIENESTAR Y TURISMO SALUD CON ACTIVIDADES IMPERDIBLES

Puede parecer improbable que Miami tenga una amplia oferta centrada en el bienestar. Pero si se lo piensa dos veces, las playas, el sol y los magníficos atardeceros son ingredientes perfectos para la relajación y el descanso. Además, por toda la ciudad hay lugares fitness, de comida healthy, planes detox, yoga al aire libre y gran cantidad de actividades vinculadas con la vida sana.

Siguiendo la tendencia en ascenso de los viajeros que buscan bienestar tanto físico como espiritual durante sus viajes, Miami celebra en febrero y marzo sus meses de Salud y Bienestar. Es por ello que Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau (GMCVB) invita a locales y turistas a una celebración de 60 días para experimentar todos aquellos lugares que posicionaron a la ciudad como la más saludable de los Estados Unidos.

Miami Temptations Programs, de GMCVB, ofrece un listado curado con lo mejor que el destino tiene para hacer un balance entre turistar, descansar, y mantener la rutina wellness, incluso en vacaciones.

Uno de los eventos más importantes es la Miami Sailing Week, en la pintoresca costa de Coconut Grove. Consiste en carreras de vela de varias clases efectuadas en las cristalinas aguas azules de la Bahía de Biscayne. Se llevarán a cabo el fin de semana del 4 de marzo (con competiciones para adultos) y el fin de semana del 13 de marzo (con competiciones juveniles). La Semana de la Vela también incluye cócteles, exhibiciones culturales y ceremonias de premiación que reúnen a los marineros, la comunidad local y turistas nacionales e internacionales.

También, Lululemon Miami, a través de cuatro tiendas diferentes, realiza todos los miércoles a las 6:00 de la tarde una divertida carrera llamada Project. Ejecuta Miami. El punto de encuentro es el Front Lawn Courtyard de JW Marriott Miami Turnberry Resort & Spa y las inscripciones son gratis a través de Eventbrite.

Los sábados a la mañana en Española Way se atrae al amor, la luz, la felicidad y la salud tanto para el cuerpo como para la mente con clases abiertas de Synergy Yoga. Lo importante es no olvidarse llevar agua para beber y estera (aunque también se puede alquilar una por 2 dólares).

En lo referido a las ofertas gastronómicas, Terras es un excelente lugar para mantener la movida saludable sin perderse los sabores de América Latina y el Caribe. Es el único bar con rooftop de la Pequeña Habana y ofrece comida inspirada en vegetales locales con un guiño a la Street Food latinoamericana. El Chef Ejecutivo Harry Capacetti elaboró un menú que incluye pequeños platos para compartir. Los desayunos son 8.00 a 11.00 de la mañana y el menú diario es hasta las 10.00 de la noche.

Tourists visiting Little Havana, one of the most famous neighborhoods of Miami. A couple is sitting at the outdoor tables of a restaurant that serves typical Cuban food (comida Cubana); a man is taking pictures to one of the many painted cockroaches that you can see on Calle Ocho (8th Street), the main street and the beating heart of Little Havana.

Otro destino culinario es Mama Joon, situado frente al mar y en el patio del Collins Park. Su propuesta culinaria presenta el estilo casero de la comida mediterránea vegetariana con una fuerte influencia libanesa. Para sentirse como un verdadero rey del Mar Mediterráneo, se ofrecen variedades del distinguido Spätz italiano con ingredientes que van desde el licor de Falerma, la lima Kaffir y el Maizka con infusión de hierbas.

Miami ofrece un gran abanico de posibilidades para aquellos fanáticos de la vida saludable, desde todo tipo de actividades deportivas, hasta restaurantes de comida sana y no por eso menos exquisita. Todo está en dejarse llevar por una vida más saludable y romper esas malas prácticas que no contribuyen a nuestro bienestar.

Bal Harbour, imperdible todo el año

A pesar de la situación económica y las medidas tomadas por el gobierno argentino actual, y que la visita de argentinos a Bal Harbour ha disminuido algunas cifras, Argentina sigue estando entre los destinos internacionales que más turistas aportan a este destino de lujo, que siempre esta ofreciendo eventos de categoría tanto en arte, diseño o gastronomía.

Uno de los eventos gastronómicos más importante es Haute Cuisine programado del 5 al 10 de mayo del 2020 y presentará los mejores chefs con clases interactivas de cocina, menús especiales en varios restaurantes y hoteles.

Con hoteles de lujo, amplios, cómodos y con todas las alternativas para pasar unas vacaciones relajadas y divertidas, playas extensas, limpias y aguas cristalinas, Bal Harbour sigue siendo una de las mejores opciones que continúa trabajando para captar al visitante.

En temporada baja los hoteles ofrecen algunas noches gratuitas sumadas a la estadia y tarjetas de descuentos o gratuitas (Art Access Card) para visitar los mejores centros de arte de la ciudad como el Museo de Arte Contemporáneo, el Pérez Art Museum, Frost Museum of Science, entre otros.

Florio describió los servicios de varios hoteles, entre ellos, el St. Regis Bal Harbour Resort diseñado súper exigentes que se remodeló hace cuatro años, y ofrece una cuarta noche gratis en baja temporada. El Ritz-Carlton Bal Harbour, el más querido por los argentinos, un hotel de 94 habitaciones totalmente remodeladas con un excelente servicio y muchos programas de bienestar. El Quarzo Boutique Hotel Bal, para quienes buscan más el estilo departamento, con servicios esenciales para una estadia cómoda y la libertad en espacios amplios y el acceso a la playa. El Sea View Hotel, remodelado; un tres estrellas para quienes no pueden pagar tanto lujo, pero que ofrece un excelente nivel de servicios.

En materia de compras Bal Harbour Shops, este año en remodelación, terminando su tercer piso, es una colección de las mejores marcas y tiendas boutiques que atraen visitantes de todo el mundo. También incorporará más locales de gastronomía con especialidades para todos los gustos que unen a los ya existentes y exitosos como Carpaccio, Makoto y la chocolatería Vasalissa.

Miami, no es sólo playa y costa!

Downtown, totalmente renovado ha logrado plasmar el arte en todos sus rincones. El Museo de Ciencias Frost, es un museo de ciencias totalmente interactivo que cuenta con un acuario de 4 pisos y un planetario que todos los días ofrece diversos espectáculos. American Airlines Arena ofrece recitales de reconocidos artistas y campeonatos.

Una reciente apertura es la del Shopping Brickell City Centre con una impresionante arquitectura, todo vidriado, que alberga locales de las mejores marcas y un gran patio de comidas con variadas ofertas.

Adrienne Arsht Center es la ópera y valet de Miami donde, de noviembre a mayo se muestran las mejores obras de Broadway y también ofrece visitas guiadas gratuitas.

Paseos en barco, en lanchas de alta velocidad y amplias playas para disfrutar con amigos y familias y hoteles de todo tipo son un excelente complemento. Para conocer más la ciudad, un paseo en tren gratuito en el Metromover con 21 paradas y la posibilidad de visitar todos los atractivos. Por otro lado el tren de alta velocidad Virgin Brightline ya promete para el 2022 unir Orlando con Miami y ya funciona con dos paradas en Fort Lauderdale y Palm Beach anunciando otra terminal en Boca Raton.

Para los amantes del arte, a 10 minutos de Downtown está Wynwood, un barrio totalmente remodelado, que dejó atrás un lugar desolado de fábricas y galpones, para convertirse en un "Museo a Cielo Abierto" que además tiene restaurantes y espectáculos al aire libre, diseñadores locales donde concurren artistas de todo el mundo, con una gran resonancia durante Miami Art Basel.

Por otro lado, el Districto del Diseño, es un paseo de compras, donde antes había fabrica de telas, y hoy muestra las primeras marcas de lujo, galerías de arte y estudios de arquitectura.

El puerto está avanzando en su orden e infraestructura, en las construcciones de las terminales de cada compañía de cruceros, ahora mucho más organizado.

La Oficina de Turismo de Miami tiene una temática distinta en descuentos que todos los meses ofrece importantes valores en atracciones a mitad de precio, tanto así en restaurantes para aprovechar en cada ocasión.

Super Bowl é só uma das atrações para os torcedores em estádio de Miami

Estadão Conteúdo

🕒 02/02/20 - 18h27

Assistir ao duelo entre San Francisco 49ers e Kansas City Chiefs, neste domingo, pelo Super Bowl, é apenas uma das atrações que os 65 mil espectadores podem desfrutar no Hard Rock Stadium, em Miami.

Seis horas antes de o jogo começar, milhares de pessoas já se posicionam ao redor do estádio do Miami Dolphins. São famílias inteiras e grupos de amigos, que se deslocam de todas as partes dos Estados Unidos, e muitos de outros países. Várias atividades foram programadas para diversão e entretenimento dos fanáticos pelo futebol americano.

Uma das atrações são as tendas com os canais de televisão, que fazem programas repletos de convidados (ex-jogadores e celebridades). As duas torcidas se posicionam à frente das câmeras e praticamente participam do evento, ao apoiar os comentários favoráveis à sua equipe.

As crianças são o principal alvo. Vários são os brinquedos, com ligação ao jogo e aos times, que ajudam a aumentar o amor pelo esporte e o desejo de se tornar um jogador e se possível chegar a atuar em um Super Bowl.

Robert Ortega, que estava com a mulher, três filhos e os pais, acompanhou o último Super Bowl em Miami, em 2010. "Meu pai me trouxe e agora trago meus filhos. Tornou-se uma tradição em nossa família. Trata-se de um evento que reúne a família todos os anos. Chegamos ao meio dia e vamos ficar quase dez horas com eventos. É muito legal", disse o dono de uma loja de carros.

American Airlines solicita 14 novas frequências entre Miami e Havana

Por Giulia Bottini em 03/02/2020 - 17:22

Com o início das operações previstas para o dia 4 de junho, os serviços devem incluir dois novos voos diários

A American Airlines apresentou uma solicitação ao Departamento de Transportes dos EUA (DOT) para mais quatorze voos semanais partindo de Miami com destino a Havana, em Cuba. A medida foi tomada depois que a JetBlue Airways informou ao DOT, no início do mês, que estaria abrindo mão de suas conexões entre EUA e Cuba.

O Memorando de Entendimento EUA-Cuba, assinado em 2016, permite que as transportadoras dos EUA operem até vinte frequências diárias de ida e volta. A American não opera outros serviços programados para Cuba, além dos voos diários entre Miami e Havana, que já contam com a frequência de seis voos semanais. Com o início das operações previstas para o dia 4 de junho, os serviços devem incluir dois novos voos diários, operados com o B737-800 de 172 lugares.

A solicitação da American foi realizada duas semanas após o Departamento ter anunciado a suspensão – a partir do dia 10 de março – da autoridade concedida a todos os operadores de fretamento público para servir qualquer aeroporto em Cuba que não seja Havana, impondo um limite ao número de voos para o Capital cubano.

Novidades gastronômicas em Miami irão te surpreender

Escrito por Juliana Bontorim | 5 de fevereiro de 2020

Mais uma inauguração imperdível no Miami Design district. A sorveteria Frohzen no Paradise Plaza, no Miami Design District, conta com um cardápio da casa que reflete muito capricho do chef Salvatore Martone, que trabalhou com o legendário Joël Robuchon. Experimente as explosões de sabores e criações exclusivas que incluem cupcakes de sorvete, sanduíches de macaron, além de sorvetes e picolés de bolo gelado. A sorveteria trabalha com 10 sabores diferentes de sorvetes, entre clássicos e criações locais, como Guava Maria, manga/maracujá e Tres Leches.

Outra novidade é o Luna Park, uma nova praça de alimentação no Brickell City Centre, construída no antigo espaço do La Centrale. O espaço é um verdadeiro paraíso gastronômico que reúne três novos conceitos focados na culinária italiana e opções para todas as ocasiões. O projeto trata com carinho os pratos e seus ingredientes para proporcionar experiências mágicas com a gastronomia refinada do destino. Liderado pelo aclamado restaurante e chef Roberto Costa, sua missão é ilustrar a origem de cada prato com ingredientes da mais alta qualidade.

MICCOSUKEE RESORT & GAMING: JOGOS E CULTURA NATIVA NO SUL DA FLÓRIDA

5 de fevereiro de 2020

Localizado no coração do Everglades, um dos parques estaduais mais importantes no estado da Flórida, o Miccosukee Resort & Gaming reúne em um único lugar a diversão dos jogos de cassino com a tranquilidade da natureza. Situado a menos de uma hora de Miami Beach, o hotel pode ser visto a quilômetros de distância graças ao seu conjunto arquitetônico com dimensões faraônicas e os interiores coloridos que convidam a fazer apostas.

Foto via Divulgação

No oeste de Miami, o resort é um dos principais pioneiros em jogos de azar. Apesar da imponente construção, o interior do hotel-cassino é aconchegante e familiar. Em termos de estrutura, são mais de duas mil máquinas caça-níquel que oferecem desde jogos clássicos a slots com temas de filmes e séries famosas e que apresentam as recentes inovações, efeitos especiais, bônus e recompensas.

Foto via Divulgação

Nas salas de jogos exclusivos, os apostadores podem aproveitar a diversão 24 horas por dia. Os ambientes privados como o Hidden Gems e a High Limit oferecem espaços sofisticados e intimistas, além de serviços especiais, como seguranças extras, iguarias culinárias preparadas na hora, bar e outras atividades personalizadas conforme o desejo do cliente.

Clássico dos jogos de azar, o bingo é sinônimo de diversão. Não importa o jeito de jogar, seja individual, com amigos ou em família, o objetivo é o mesmo: testar a sorte, um número por vez. No Miccosukee, o Bingo Hall é a sala mais cara do sul da Flórida para tentar fazer as apostas. O local oferece, ainda, um Snack Bar, para que os jogadores possam se alimentar e divertir ao mesmo tempo.

Foto via Divulgação

Os jovens também têm seu espaço dentro do resort. O Teen Arcade é um ambiente especial para os adolescentes acima de 13 anos de idade, com jogos de fliperama, videogame, bilhar e pebolim.

Foto via Divulgação

Durante cada mês do ano, o Miccosukee disponibiliza uma série de promoções para os jogadores que podem ter a chance de ganhar prêmios em dinheiro e bônus em jogos nas máquinas de caça-níquel.

O resort também dispõe de um programa de fidelidade, onde os visitantes têm direito a descontos nas tarifas padrão do hotel, bem como na entrada do Miccosukee Indian Village & Airboats. O One Rewards Program é um sistema hierárquico baseado no nível e classificação de jogo, com recompensas que podem incluir brindes VIP, vale-refeição e muito mais.

Sobre o Miccosukee Resort & Gaming

O nome Miccosukee vem de uma das tribos nativas mais importantes da nação Creek. O povo originário migrou para a região em meados de 1800, onde se separaram em grupos para se adaptar ao clima tropical da savana pantanosa. Em 1962, a tribo foi oficialmente reconhecida como a Tribo Miccosukee de Índios da Flórida. Isso estabeleceu legalmente a sua existência e seu status de nação independente. Atualmente, a tribo conta com mais de 600 membros, que incorporam as formas tradicionais da tribo em seus sistemas de trabalho diário. Todos estão localizados na Reserva de Tribo de Tamiami, onde a comunidade Miccosukee reside.

O secretário estadual de Turismo do Rio de Janeiro, Otavio Leite, celebrou a novidade.

"Esta parceria aponta um estratégico sinal de incremento do fluxo aéreo para o Rio de Janeiro. O governador Wilson Witzel já autorizou fortalecer a promoção do destino Rio no mercado dos Estados Unidos. Essa semente vai dar grandes frutos", disse Otavio.

Com o acerto de codeshare, a American Airlines vai oferecer 20 novos destinos à América do Sul, como, por exemplo, Assunção, no Paraguai, e permitirá à Gol o compartilhamento de voos em novas rotas nos Estados Unidos.

Outro ponto positivo do acordo será a adição de 12 voos que partirão de 12 cidades americanas com destino ao aeroporto de Miami. Desta forma, aumentam as oportunidades para que turistas optem pela América Latina como destino de suas próximas férias, em especial o Rio de Janeiro.

Foco no mercado turístico americano

A Setur RJ já vem, desde o ano passado, ampliando as ações no mercado turístico americano, já que os turistas desse país, tem a isenção de vistos no Brasil. Em dezembro de 2019, a Setur RJ lançou um edital de concorrência, com a finalidade de montar 6 unidades de promoção do turismo do estado no exterior, sendo duas dessas unidades nos EUA, uma em Nova York e outra em Los Angeles.

Um moderno conceito de marketing de turismo de experiência foi lançado por meio de uma campanha publicitária veiculada nos principais meios digitais. Já em 2020, a Setur RJ também participou da "The New York Times Travel Show", uma das principais feiras de Turismo do mundo, em Nova Iorque, com o objetivo de promover os 92 destinos que compõem o estado.

Kosushi Miami une a tradicional culinária japonesa com um toque de modernidade. Vem saber!

COMPARTILHE: f t G+

Kosushi Miami: tradicional e o moderno se encontram na culinária japonesa || Créditos: Divulgação/Filippo Bambergli

Depois de conquistar os paulistanos e uma estrela Michelin por cinco anos consecutivos, o Kosushi, restaurante japonês dos nossos queridinhos, quebrou barreiras geográficas e abriu as portas no bairro de South Pointe, em Miami Beach. O restaurante combina referências da culinária japonesa autêntica e contemporânea, sob o comando do chef George Koshoji, que proporciona uma experiência culinária única para os clientes ao abraçar suas influências biculturais do Japão e do Brasil.

O Kosushi Miami reproduziu o estilo de cozinha do chef George, sob o olhar estrito do chef executivo Edwin Delgado, responsável pela operação americana. O colombiano desenvolveu um interesse precoce pela culinária japonesa e trabalhou em restaurantes como o Nobu.

O cardápio tem as tradicionais pedidas do Kosushi: Dyo ikura codorna- fina fatia de atum, shari (arroz japonês) com gema de ovo de codorna e ovas de ikura, Temaki de atum avocado – atum, avocado e ovas de massago e Tamago Furai – ovo orgânico, cozido em temperatura baixa, empanado na farinha panko com ovas de ikura, azeite trufado e batata doce crocante. O sushi nigiri ao estilo Kosushi é um must, que surpreende a cada pedida – junto com seus próprios pratos de assinatura criados especificamente para a cena gastronômica de Miami.

Para bebericar, há uma seleção exclusiva de cocktails, criada pelo mixologista brasileiro Márcio Silva, com bebidas como “Shokobutsuen”, feitas com Gin, suco de limão fresco, manjeriçã, pepino, hortelã e xarope de açúcar orgânico. A lista de vinhos e saquês do restaurante exibe os perfis de sabor para todos os paladares.

A arquitetura é um show à parte, projetado pelo arquiteto premiado, Arthur Casas, o Kosushi Miami é moderno, acolhedor e original. O salão é ancorado por um sushi bar redondo no centro, onde os clientes podem assistir ao chef preparar o sushi.

NATUREZA INTOCADA NO MEIO DE MIAMI: CONHEÇA O OLETA PARK

Com uma área de mais de 422 hectares, o Oleta River State Park é o maior parque urbano da Flórida. Situado a cerca de trinta minutos do centro de Miami, o parque é um refúgio tranquilo no meio do agito da vida na cidade.

Originalmente a região pertencia à tribo nativa Tequesta, e até 1800 recebia o nome de Big Snake Creek, que abraçava desde o território do Everglades até a Baía de Biscayne. Em 1922, a região foi nomeada como Parque Estadual do Rio Oleta e passou a ser um importante ecossistema protegido pelas autoridades governamentais.

Atualmente, esse oásis natural é perfeito para os amantes de ecoturismo. O local oferece uma variedade de atividades que podem ser feitas em grupos, família, casal ou até mesmo sozinho.

Apesar de Miami ser plana e costeira, o parque abriga algumas das melhores trilhas de mountain bike da cidade. São 24 quilômetros de estrada em diferentes níveis, sendo ideal para iniciantes e experientes.

Aventureiros podem explorar as belezas da vida selvagem e apreciar a diversidade da fauna e flora. Um dos melhores passeios fica por conta da rota Stairway to Heaven, que leva até a melhor vista do Oleta. Os visitantes têm a opção de levar sua própria bike ou alugar uma no BG Oleta Outdoors.

Oleta está localizada em uma importante rota de migração de aves, então fica muito fácil encontrar falcões, toutinegras e outras espécies que utilizam a região para caçar e se reproduzir.

Além do manguezal, os remos podem levar até o mar aberto, onde o visitante tem a opção de escolher onde deseja parar. Há três opções: seguir até a Baía de Biscayne, curtir as praias, como a Haulover Beach, famosa por ser adepta ao naturismo, ou, ainda, curtir a Raccoon Island. Este é o local mais tranquilo e refrescante e conta com a presença de vários guaxinins.

A Raccoon Island ainda é ponto de parada de iates, lanchas e jet-skis, uma boa pedida para aqueles que possuem algum tipo de veículo aquático. A via intercostal também dá acesso a um pier de pesca. Por ali, é possível encontrar tainha, cabeça de carneiro, tarpão, robalo e pargo.

Já a praia de Oleta é uma ótima escolha para quem está em família com crianças pequenas. As águas são rasinhas e bem limpidas, além de estarem cercadas de mata e coqueiros que são garantia de sombra.

Fique atento, em algumas ocasiões, se tiver sorte, poderá encontrar um peixe-boi ou um golfinho nadando tranquilamente pelas águas.

Os visitantes podem trazer seu próprio caiaque, canoa ou remo. Caso desejem, há a possibilidade de alugar no parque.

Aqueles que quiserem estender o passeio podem trazer sua barraca e acampar em um dos pontos do parque. O local oferece ótima infraestrutura, com cabines, círculos de fogo, pavilhão de piquenique, banheiros, chuveiros, restaurante e estacionamento, além de comodidades acessíveis.

Ícônico bairro de Miami ganha museu dedicado ao grafite; veja atrativos

Antes considerado um bairro decadente de Miami (EUA), Wynwood hoje é visto como um dos lugares mais descolados do país e atrai turistas do mundo todo.

Uma de suas marcas é a paixão pelo grafite, exposta em imensos painéis a céu aberto com obras de artistas do mundo todo. Não à toa o local recebeu, em dezembro de 2019, o primeiro museu dedicado à arte do grafite do mundo, o Museum of Graffiti.

Criado pelo artista, historiador e colecionador de arte Alan Ket e seu parceiro, Allison Freidin, a atração vai apresentar aos visitantes a história e evolução do grafite com exposições permanentes de pinturas, esculturas, fotografias, mídias e instalações interativas.

"Acho que celebrar as obras de arte destruídas das gerações anteriores é uma maneira de honrarmos o valor e a importância que nós, jovens, vimos naquelas obras que os adultos simplesmente não entendiam", explica Alan Ket em entrevista ao site "Art World".

"Queremos que nossa arte dure para sempre", completa.

O time de artistas com obras expostas no Museum of Graffiti será formado por grafiteiros de vanguarda de Nova York, como Rammellzee, R#170, Phase2, Tracy168, Blade e Noc167. Além de lendas dos anos 60, como Sonic, Dondi White, Zephyr, Mare159, Lady Pink, Doze Green e Delta2; e também por artistas locais, como Abstrk, Crome, Raven, Verse, Rasterms e Jona Cervinske.

Este verdadeiro "museu a céu aberto" é, com certeza, a principal atração para quem deseja "instagrar" a viagem.

Além disso, o bairro também apresenta uma ampla variedade de bares, food trucks, restaurantes, padarias, cafeterias e sorveterias cool.

A padaria Zak The Baker, instalada em um antigo galpão industrial com fachada colorida, por exemplo, é uma das atrações irreplicáveis.

Outro ponto considerado imperdível para quem vai a Wynwood é o bar Wood Tavern, com arquibancada externa aberta, onde acontecem shows e apresentações de DJs.

Se a opção é curtir o agito noturno, a sugestão é conhecer o El Patio, um bar que, à meia-noite, se transforma em uma balada animadíssima.

Bairro transformado

No século 20, Wynwood era um bairro industrial habitado por famílias de classe média baixa, com predominância de imigrantes cubanos, haitianos e porto-riquenhos. Em 1970, o tráfico de drogas dominou a região e, em 2009, começou a passar por um processo de revitalização depois de receber investimentos do empresário Tony Goldman.

Ele já havia investido e transformado o bairro Soho, em Nova York, e South Beach, em Miami. Em Wynwood, Tony comprou diversos imóveis, idealizou projetos com o grafite e a região começou a ser convertida em referência cultural nos Estados Unidos.

Em Miami, o 1º museu dedicado ao grafite

Miami ganhou o primeiro museu do mundo dedicado exclusivamente à evolução do grafite como expressão artística. O Museum of Graffiti (museumofgraffiti.com) fica em meio aos murais coloridos do badalado bairro de Wynwood, conhecida galeria de arte urbana a céu aberto. A instituição foi criada pelo artista americano Alan Ket e sua sócia, Allison Freidi, ex-promotora e advogada que defendia grafiteiros. O espaço, inaugurado em dezembro, tem 11 murais externos e exposições em salas cobertas. Uma coleção permanente faz uma jornada cronológica com obras desde a década de 1970 até os dias atuais, passando por ícones da arte de rua, como o grafite clássico dos anos 1980 (foto) de Sonic Bad, artista do Queens, em Nova York. O museu também tem loja com material produzido pelos artistas – alguns itens são exclusivos. Os ingressos custam US$ 16; crianças com menos de 13 anos não pagam. A visita ao museu fica ainda mais colorida com uma volta pela vizinhança instagramável. Artistas do mundo todo transformaram as ruas do bairro com os murais gigantes criados nas paredes nos antigos galpões. Brasileiros como Eduardo Kobra e Os Gêmeos deixaram suas marcas por lá. A cada segundo sábado do mês, o Wynwood Art Walk tem festa na rua, com música ao vivo e food trucks.

Entretenimento Em Miami: Arte, Cinema E Esportes

12 de fevereiro de 2020 Leo Vidal Comment(0)

O entretenimento em Miami é bem diversificado. Quando em Miami em 2017, tivemos uma ótima experiência em uma sala de cinema especial. Como as novidades em relação a entretenimento em Miami não param, reunimos dicas relacionadas à arte, cinema e esportes na cidade.

Arte em Miami

O grafite e arte de rua em Miami é muito famoso, em especial no bairro de Wynwood. Os grandes muros grafitados de Wynwood Walls atraem diversos turistas em busca de fotos instagramáveis. Entretanto, o grafite é cultuado também em outro local, o museu de arte contemporânea Museum of Graffiti. Inaugurado no coração do bairro de Wynwood, o museu foi concebido por Alan Ket e seu parceiro Allison Freidin. O espaço também apresenta murais vibrantes e tem a intenção de se tornar um grande centro cultural. A exposição permanente apresenta pinturas, esculturas em diversas mídias e instalações interativas de artistas da vanguarda do movimento em Nova York. Uma abrangente linha do tempo, ilustrada com obras, fotos, vídeos e registros temporários, introduz o contexto histórico das obras.

Não é só Wynwood que respira arte em Miami. Um dos principais destinos de compras, gastronomia e entretenimento oferece uma experiência cultural e artística. O Lincoln Road District junto com o Gary Nader Art Centre está com uma exposição de 13 monumentais esculturas em bronze do colombiano Fernando Botero. As esculturas ficarão em exposição até 31 de março de 2020. Botero é considerado o artista vivo mais reconhecido e citado da América Latina. Se estiver indo para a Colômbia, aproveite para conhecer o Museu Botero em Bogotá, com obras incríveis do artista.

Cinema em Miami

Eu adoro ir ao cinema quando estou viajando. Em 2017, fui conhecer o CMX Cinema, que fica no terceiro andar do Brickell City Centre. Uma experiência de conforto e luxo em uma sala de cinema. Como eles mesmo usam no slogan deles, é uma verdadeira experiência VIP de cinema. Antes de mais nada, é importante ressaltar que o filme não tem legenda. Ou seja, é preciso que você tenha domínio do inglês para entender bem o filme.

O hall do cinema é bem amplo, com bar servindo desde comidinhas a drinks, o que torna mais agradável aguardar pelo seu filme ou aproveitar com os amigos após a sessão. As salas de projeção são enormes, com decks em diversos níveis onde ficam as poltronas super confortáveis, que reclinam quase que na horizontal. Dessa forma, evita que uma pessoa possa ficar na frente da tela. Além disso, as poltronas têm entrada USB para carregar o celular e luminária.

Experiência no CMX

Antes de começar a sessão, basta apertar o botão ao lado para chamar o atendente e pedir algo para comer e beber. Esse serviço também ser feito durante o filme, contudo acho desnecessário, mesmo que não atrapalhe a sessão, por conta da logística da sala. Incluído no ingresso está um saquinho pequeno de pipoca salgada, mas vale pedir por fora a pipoca doce que é deliciosa! Mesmo que você não curta cinema em viagem, vale dedicar algumas horinhas do seu roteiro para conhecer essas salas. Afinal, quem não gosta de relaxar um pouco, aproveitando um bom filme. Eu quero uma dessas aqui no Rio, já!

Esportes em Miami

Outras opções de entretenimento em Miami vão agradar os amantes dos esportes. Os fãs de basquete podem assistir a um jogo profissional na cidade, onde o Miami HEAT reina supremo. Os jogos acontecem na American Airlines Arena, também conhecida como AAA, na Baía de Biscayne. O local ainda abriga dois grandes museus em Miami: o Frost Science e o Pérez Art Museum.

Se a intenção for testar suas habilidades, os parques de Miami são os locais ideais para uns arremessos. Entre eles, por exemplo, o Jose Martí Park, entre Brickell e Little Havana; o Flamingo Park no coração de South Beach; e o Alice C. Wainwright Park à beira-mar em Coconut Grove.

Se você gosta de beisebol, o Marlins Park é o estádio do Miami Marlins, localizado no coração de Little Havana. Já os amantes de tênis, não podem perder a oportunidade de assistir uma partida no Miami Open. Realizado sempre na primavera americana, este ano o torneio será realizado de 23 de março a 05 de abril no Hard Rock Stadium.

Animação mineira em 3D participa de encontro em Miami

Produção mostra um garoto de 11 anos que viaja numa cápsula luminosa

Lançada no YouTube no fim de 2018, a animação 3D “Divino e a Esfera do Tempo” acaba de concluir com sucesso um capítulo importante de sua trajetória: a produção participou da feira Kidscreen Miami, que se encerrou no último dia 13, na cidade situada na Flórida. Considerado o maior evento internacional da indústria de entretenimento infantil do mundo, o encontro reuniu mais de 2.000 profissionais de diversos países.

As aventuras de Divino, um menino sonhador de 11 anos que viaja no tempo com uma cápsula luminosa e ultramoderna, a Esfera do Tempo, foi o representante mineiro nesta história que, aliás, não termina com o apagar das luzes do evento propriamente dito.

“A avaliação da nossa participação foi muito positiva. Encontramos as portas abertas junto a várias produtoras internacionais não só para apresentar o projeto, quanto para ver a viabilidade de firmarmos uma co-produção”, diz Cristiano Seixas, diretor criativo e co-fundador da Casa dos Quadrinhos, um dos braços que tornaram possível ao Estado de Minas ter a representação no evento.

Ao falar em co-produção, Cristiano se refere ao fato de o episódio apresentado por lá representar apenas o piloto do que pode ter um desdobramento em formato de uma série de animação 3D, “Divino Presente”. “‘Divino e a Esfera do Tempo’ é uma das primeiras iniciativas mineiras de animação pensadas para ser uma série de TV ou de streaming (seriam 13 episódios de 22 minutos cada). Neste momento, inclusive, já está sendo iniciada a produção do primeiro episódio (pós-piloto). Em Minas, são poucas as produtoras que já fizeram um piloto em animação 3D. Então, esse foi um dos diferenciais que a gente apresentou no evento”, prossegue ele.

Feira

A empreitada na verdade, é fruto da junção criativa da Casa dos Quadrinhos e da produtora Content Blue, viabilizada por meio da produtora Ghost Jack. “Em Miami, o episódio piloto chegou a ser apresentado a produtoras da Índia, Malásia, Coreia do Sul, Canadá e, claro, do próprio EUA, o que abriu a possibilidade de o projeto se tornar ainda mais internacional, mesmo sendo uma produção 100% de BH”, enfatiza Cristiano, lembrando que a Kidscreen é um evento fechado ao público em geral, “restrito a distribuidoras, produtoras e canais focados em conteúdo infantil, que vai desde a pré-alfabetização até a adolescência”, informa Cristiano.

“É uma vitrine de produtos audiovisuais nesse segmento, o que pode ir de aplicativos a desenhos animados pensados para a televisão. Antigamente, acontecia em Nova York, mas foi crescendo em tamanho e número de players e palestrantes importantes. Veja, mesmo tendo um foco tão específico, pensar que são milhares de pessoas que vão até ele dá a dimensão de sua importância”, prossegue Cristiano. “Apresentamos ‘Divino’ para um bom número de pessoas e a receptividade foi muito boa – tanto que já foram agendadas algumas reuniões online para darmos continuidade às conversas”, descreve.

Pacheco

Diretor de criação da Content Blue, Isaias Andrade diz que a ideia de Divino brotou em 2003, e começou a ser concretizada em 2006, na época, como uma HQ. “Mas a gente percebeu que o que mais funciona hoje é a questão das multitelas, daí a ideia de uma animação em 3D, em parceria com o estúdio Ghost Jack”, diz.

Em tempo: a cápsula na qual Divino viaja foi criada, na história, pelo professor Pacheco, descrito como um cientista “bem-humorado e trapalhão”. Acertou quem pensou no professor homônimo, famoso na capital mineira. “Ele talvez tenha sido o primeiro professor-show que a gente teve aqui, no Brasil, e continua sendo um sujeito brilhante e palestrante internacional hoje. E gentilmente cedeu seu nome e características para fazer parte desse episódio da série”, conta Andrade.

A polícia divulgou, na manhã desta quarta-feira (19), as identidades de duas mulheres que morreram depois que o carro em que estavam caiu de um ferry boat, que liga ilha de Fisher Island a Miami Beach. Segundo a polícia, a motorista foi identificada como Emma Afra, de 63 anos, que morava na ilha, e Viviane Brahms, de 75, moradora de New York.

Elas morreram depois que – ainda não se sabe de que maneira – a Mercedes-Benz 2019 caiu da embarcação e afundou. O capitão da embarcação acionou a polícia e mergulhadores da Guarda Costeira fizeram buscas na área durante horas e encontraram os dois corpos dentro do carro.

Investigadores estão tentando determinar o que fez com o que o carro caísse do ferry, que é usada para transportar residentes e visitantes da ilha privada – em que uma propriedade não custa menos de alguns milhões de dólares – até Miami Beach. A ilha tem 200 casas e aproximadamente 500 moradores.

O CEO da comunidade de Fisher Island, Roberto Sosa, divulgou um comunicado lamentando a morte: "Pouco antes das 5 da tarde de hoje (terça-feira 18), um carro que estava dentro do ferry da Fisher Island acabou caindo na água por razões que desconhecemos. Estamos trabalhando juntamente com os investigadores para dar uma resposta às famílias. Nossos pensamentos e orações estão com todos afetados por essa tragédia". (Com informações do Local10News)

Havia conversas sobre uma corrida em torno do Hard Rock Stadium, casa do Miami Dolphins, mas os moradores expressaram sua preocupação com o ruído, a poluição do ar e as perturbações. No entanto, no início de janeiro, a Fórmula 1 confirmou que havia consultado as partes relevantes e que havia um novo traçado de pista proposto.

Os comissários de Miami votaram para que os planos fossem aprovados pela cidade de Miami Gardens e pelo condado.

Miami (Flórida) é a cidade americana que faz a ponte entre Estados Unidos e América Latina não apenas para cidadãos, mas também para startups. A aceleradora The Venture City sabe bem do potencial da cidade – e também das startups brasileiras.

Algumas startups nacionais já participaram do programa de aceleração – mas a The Venture City está caçando mais empreendimentos brasileiros que desejem entrar no mercado americano.

“O Brasil é grande e conseguiu unicórnios que atendem apenas o mercado nacional. Mas vemos esses casos como exceção e temos como objetivo impulsionar startups de impacto global”, diz Ricardo Sangion, vice-presidente do programa de aceleração da The Venture City para o continente americano.

Aceleração, fundo e grandes empresas

A TVC atua com um programa de aceleração para negócios em estágio inicial; um fundo de investimento para startups mais avançadas; e treinamento em inovação para grandes empresas.

A aceleração é voltada para startups em estágio inicial, que ainda não captaram um investimento série A. As inscrições podem ser realizadas a qualquer momento, sem “turmas” de aceleração. O investimento é de US$ 100 mil em troca de 6% de participação no negócio.

Não há setores de preferência, mas é preciso estar no estágio e com o objetivo corretos. A startup deve ter um mínimo produto viável; dois dígitos de crescimento mensal em um KPI relevante; três ou mais pessoas na equipe; e uma busca por internacionalizar.

“A startup não precisa estar preparada para ir a outro país, mas deve ter a ambição de não se limitar a apenas um mercado”, diz Sangion. O próprio vice-presidente da aceleração tem experiência em negócios de alta expansão, como Facebook, Instagram e Pinterest.

Conhecida por compras e praias, Miami vem apresentando um cenário efervescente também no campo cultural. Recentemente, duas novas atrações movimentaram a cena artística da cidade. Inaugurado em dezembro, o Museum of Graffiti é o primeiro do mundo dedicado exclusivamente à evolução do grafite como expressão artística. Outra atração de peso, aberta no fim de janeiro, é o Euphoric Emporium (Empório da Euforia), um conjunto de 20 instalações em grandes contêineres que formam cenários perfeitos para fotos.

LEIA TAMBÉM -> Imagens: a história da pichação e do grafite em São Paulo

A exposição é temporária (vai até 29 de março). No Euphoric Emporium, os visitantes percorrem as salas com as obras interativas que simulam topos de arranha céus e salas de ponta-cabeça, por exemplo. Para quem quer curtir com os amigos, há espaço com bar e mesas de piquenique. A entrada custa US$ 28.

Robert Caproni em Miami. Flórida

E não é só isso. A cidade conta com a conhecida Art Basel, que reúne as principais galerias de arte do mundo em dezembro, e museus de peso como o Pérez Art Museum Miami e o Wolfsonian Museum. Conheça mais sobre eles:

Museum of Graffiti

Atração permanente em meio aos murais coloridos do badalado bairro de Wynwood, conhecida galeria de arte urbana a céu aberto, o Museum of Graffiti foi criado pelo artista americano Alan Ket e sua sócia, Allison Freidl, ex-promotora e advogada que defendia grafiteiros. O espaço, inaugurado em dezembro, tem 11 murais externos e exposições em salas cobertas. Uma coleção permanente faz uma jornada cronológica com obras desde a década de 1970 até os dias atuais, passando por ícones da arte de rua, como o grafite clássico dos anos 1980 de Sonic Bad, artista do Queens, em Nova York.

O museu também tem loja com material produzido pelos artistas – alguns itens são exclusivos. Os ingressos custam US$ 16; crianças com menos de 13 anos não pagam.

A visita ao museu fica ainda mais colorida com uma volta pela vizinhança instagranável. Artistas do mundo todo transformaram as ruas do bairro com os murais gigantes criados nas paredes nos antigos galpões. Brasileiros como Eduardo Kobra e Os Gêmeos deixaram suas marcas por lá. A cada segundo sábado do mês, o Wynwood Art Walk tem festa na rua, com música ao vivo e food trucks.

O Pérez Art Museum Miami (PAMM), antes conhecido como Museu de Arte de Miami, é um dos mais famosos da cidade. Seu edifício foi projetado pelo mesmo escritório de arquitetura que criou o Estádio Nacional de Pequim, que ficou conhecido como "Ninho de Pássaro" – Herzog & de Meuron.

Reinaugurado em 2013, foi rebatizado em homenagem ao empresário e colecionador argentino Jorge M. Pérez, dono de mais de 100 obras expostas no local, como do mexicano Diego Rivera (antes da fase dos famosos murais), do uruguaio Joaquín Torres García e do cubano Wilfredo Lam.

Foi lá também que um artista, Maximo Caminero, quebrou parte da obra do chinês Ai Weiwei em um protesto – o museu é focado principalmente em arte contemporânea e em artistas estrangeiros. Ele fica localizado no Museum Park, no centro, e tem uma vista incrível de Biscayne Bay. O local abre todos os dias exceto às quartas-feiras, e a entrada custa US$ 16.

Villa Vizcaya Museum and Gardens Miami

Outro museu de encher os olhos é o Villa Vizcaya Museum and Gardens Miami. Fica em Coconut Grove, e ocupa o que um dia foi a mansão construída em 1916 pelo empresário milionário James Deering. Com mais de 30 quartos e ares de vilas renascentistas italianas, o local que um dia foi a casa de inverno de Deering expõe os móveis, a tapeçaria e obras de arte – mas a grande atração são os jardins à beira-mar, incluindo um jardim secreto. Ele abre todos os dias exceto às terças-feiras. Os ingressos custam US$ 22.

Wolfsonian Museum

O Wolfsonian Museum define-se como um museu que explora como o passado influencia o presente e molda o futuro. É ligada à Universidade Internacional da Flórida, e expõe uma coleção de 120 mil itens, que datam de 1885 a 1945. A proposta do Wolfsonian é demonstrar o poder persuasivo da arte e do design e mostrar a história de mudanças sociais, políticas e tecnológicas que transformaram o mundo. Para isso, usa como base a coleção do empresário americano Mitchell Wolfson Jr., com peças relacionadas ao design industrial, à comunicação e até cartazes de propaganda (incluindo política) –entre as obras mais polêmicas está um exemplar do livro de Adolf Hitler, Mein Kampf (Minha Luta) em braile. Aberto todos os dias, exceto às quartas-feiras. Os ingressos custam US$ 12.

Bass Museum of Art

Para quem prefere arte clássica, o Bass Museum of Art tem uma coleção de obras renascentistas e barrocas. A condição para a doação das obras foi a de que elas permanecessem expostas ao público. O Bass Museum tem ainda uma ala especial chamada Lindemann Family Creativity Center, onde fica o projeto IDEA@thebass, com oficinas e aulas.

Después de recorrer las salas del PAMM te va a dar hambre. Si no quieres desaprovechar la arquitectura espectacular de este edificio, quédate a comer en Verdad, es el mejor plan. Las pizzas y las ensaladas son deli.

ME GUSTA MIAMI. PIENSO EN LAS PALMERAS AGITADAS, LOS COLORES NEÓN, LOS PASEOS POR OCEAN DRIVE CON LAS FACHADAS DE EDIFICIOS ART DECO EN TONOS PASTEL, LA MANSIÓN DE YER-SACE Y LITTLE HAVANA, EL AMBIENTE DE LOS OCHENTA QUE INSPIRO SCARFACE Y LA SERIE MIAMI VICE, PERO AHORA ESA CARA ESTÁ COMPLETAMENTE CAMBIADA Y LA CIUDAD TIENE UNA NUEVA ESCENA ARTSY QUE ADEMÁS ES DE LO MÁS INSTAGRAMABLE. ESTOS SON ALGUNOS DE LOS MEJORES SPOTS.

EN EL MUSEO

Puede ser que íbas caminando en la famosa Collins Avenue buscando alguna tienda cuando inesperadamente te topaste con ARTECHOUSE (@artechouse). Decidiste entrar y te diste cuenta de que nunca habías estado en un lugar como este: una galería de arte digital en la que la experiencia inmersiva, además de volarte la cabeza, te dejará muy buenos stories y fondos de pantalla, como los visuales del artista digital Refik Anadol proyectados dentro de un cubo en el que te cuesta distinguir si lo que se mueve en la pantalla es agua, cristales o algodón. Después de este trip, si quieres despejarte un poco pero seguir en el mood, para eso están los museos de arte contemporáneo más importantes, como el Pérez Art Museum Miami (PAMM) (@pamm), un edificio de los arquitectos Herzog & de Meuron en downtown Miami que solamente en el jardín de esculturas tiene piezas tan impresionantes –por no decir, instagramables– como la cortina azul penetrable del artista venezolano Jesús Rafael Soto (arriba) y los columpios de Konstantin Grcic en los que puedes pasarte horas meciéndote, viendo los jardines colgantes con cascadas de enredaderas y tomando el sol con una gran vista a Biscayne Bay. Desde ahí también puedes ver el One Thousand Miami, un edificio residencial de 62 pisos y el primero en América de la starchitect Zaha Hadid. Seguro lo reconoces por su forma irregular. Antes de irte del museo, no dejes de entrar a la tienda. En las mesas verás objetos de decoración, papelería, joyería, libros de arte y accesorios. Cómprate la t-shirt que dice: "Por favor, don't touch the art". ¿Es de las más cool que hemos visto!

Y para terminar el día, Miami tiene muchísimos lugares, pero nosotros te recomendamos BASEMENT en el hotel Edition, donde después de cruzar el lobby y pasar por un pasillo largo con una composición de plantas y lámparas, llegarás al sótano donde está toda la acción: un bar, una pista de hielo y un bolche donde, por supuesto, hay una oportunidad más para tu Instagram: el neón de Olivia Steele con la frase, What if this is all Real?

El juego de luces fue creado por Patrick Woodroffe, quien lo trabajó con Lucy Gagny-Reynolds.

EN LOS ESPACIOS PÚBLICOS

Desde el momento en que estás en el aeropuerto, te darás cuenta de que el arte contemporáneo está por todo Miami. De hecho, no necesitas entrar a un museo para ver algunas joyas, pues las calles y los espacios públicos están llenos de piezas de los artistas más importantes del momento. Un ejemplo es The Orb, la pieza en forma de esfera que conecta dos edificios de The Betsy (@thebetsyhotel) en South Beach, el hotel que aprovecha todas sus instalaciones para promover el arte por medio de exposiciones de fotografía (los pasillos están llenos de imágenes de The Beatles y los Rolling Stones) o ilustración, como la del artista Ricardo Cavolo (@ricardocavolo), que dibujó a personajes como Bob Dylan o Amy Winehouse. Otra de las piezas al aire libre es la conocida escultura Miami Mountain (2016), de Ugo Rondinone, en el jardín del museo de arte contemporáneo

The Bass (@thebassmoa). La obra -que seguramente ya has visto en alguna foto- es una composición abstracta que traduce las formaciones naturales de roca en una pieza de doce metros de altura compuesta por cinco piedras traídas especialmente desde Nevada. En la fachada art déco del museo también hay un neón que te recibe con la leyenda "Eternity Now". Originalmente fue encargado a la artista Sylvie Fleur, en 2015 y se pensó como una instalación temporal, pero ahora la pieza que hace referencia a los museos como guardianes del tiempo es de la colección permanente. Aunque de día se ve bien, se ve mucho mejor de noche, sobre todo cuando en esa explanada que da la bienvenida al museo hay actividades al aire libre, como una meditación que hicieron hace unas semanas. Ya que estás ahí, vale la pena entrar y ver las exposiciones, como la actual, Lara Favaretto: Blind Spot.

ARTE URBANO

Si hablamos de ir en la calle tomándole foto a todo lo que ves, entonces tienes que visitar a Wynwood Walls (@wynwoodmiami), la zona donde a lo largo de varias cuadras las paredes están repletas de una combinación de arte urbano, murales y graffiti. Lo que en los ochenta era un barrio hostil con arte de bandas callejeras, se ha convertido en un muestrario de las diferentes técnicas y estilos de arte urbano, con espectaculares murales de artistas reconocidos de todas partes del mundo. La zona adquirió su apariencia actual en 2009 cuando inauguraron una especie de galería al aire libre a la par de la feria Art Basel y hasta la fecha este lugar sigue transformando el paisaje con nuevas adiciones, pues muchas cambian más o menos cada seis meses. Aquí verás piezas de nombres importantes como Shepard Fairey, mejor conocido como Obey, quien se hizo famoso cuando en 2008 diseñó el póster del entonces candidato a la presidencia Barrack Obama, con la leyenda "Hope" y quien tiene uno de los pocos murales permanentes. La mejor manera de recorrer las calles es caminando y sin prisa. Tómate el tiempo de posar junto a los rostros de Andy Warhol y Yayoi Kusama o de encontrar tipografías con tus iniciales y frases cool. Si tienes suerte, tal vez te toque ver a algún artista haciendo su obra en vivo. Si después de pasar el día recorriendo las calles y galerías te da hambre, quédate a comer en 1-800-LUCKY (@1800lucky), un food market de cocina asiática donde puedes probar sushi, buns, woks, dim sum y ramen.

Miami

¿Cuál es el mito más grande sobre la industria inmobiliaria en Miami? Definitivamente, que se trata de una ciudad muy cara. Sin embargo, más allá de la idea preconcebida de las inversiones millonarias, este destino ofrece oportunidades para todos los bolsillos. “En Miami te puedes gastar el presupuesto que quieras hacia arriba, no hay un límite. Pero también hay un segmento de mercado con propiedades de entre 150 000 y 350 000 dólares, lo cual resulta muy atractivo para los inversionistas mexicanos”, detalla José Negrete, fundador y CEO de la empresa inmobiliaria Patrimoney.

Según un informe de Patrimoney, 4% de los inversionistas inmobiliarios en Miami son mexicanos y la cifra va en aumento, impulsada por los rendimientos, la plusvalía y la ventaja del tipo de cambio con el paso del tiempo. “En todos los desarrollos de lujo, como Aston Martin Residences, Acqualina y Armani Tower, de más de dos o tres millones de dólares, México está liderando las compras”, agrega Negrete.

Miami cuenta con propiedades de distintos usos que no necesariamente se limitan al sector vivienda. Según CBRE, el sector de oficinas, los hoteles y los inmuebles industriales en la ciudad se encuentran en etapa de expansión, mientras que el sector de retail está en fase de estabilización.

Jorge Pérez: arte y bienes raíces

Por Selene Mazón

El paisaje inmobiliario de Miami le debe mucho a Jorge Pérez, uno de los empresarios hispanos más influyentes de Estados Unidos y uno de los 500 hombres más ricos del mundo, según Forbes. De padres cubanos y origen argentino, Pérez fundó en 1979 The Related Group, desarrolladora de lujo que, hasta el momento, ha construido, rehabilitado y administrado más de 90 000 condominios y residencias de departamentos. En 2009, The Wall Street Journal bautizó a Pérez como "el rey de los condominios de Miami" y, en 2019, la revista TIME lo nombró el "Trump de los trópicos". A él le pertenecen propiedades tan emblemáticas como Icon Brickell, Murano at Portofino y Beach Club Hallandale.

Además de su talento inmobiliario, Pérez es un apasionado del arte. A los 20 años comenzó una impresionante colección y hoy es uno de los mecenas más importantes de Miami. De hecho, el museo de arte de dicha ciudad lleva su apellido: Pérez Art Museum Miami (PAMM), luego de que donó 40 millones de dólares para su construcción, así como obras de su colección.

Desde hace unos años, Pérez ha puesto la mirada en América Latina, con especial énfasis en México. Este año, junto con el empresario Sam Nazarian, construye los proyectos de uso mixto SLS Reserve en Zihuatanejo y Cancún, una mezcla de habitaciones residenciales y hoteles con varias opciones de recreación al aire libre.

En entrevista, Pérez comparte por qué nuestro país es una potencia en cuanto a inversión y, de paso, cómo el arte siempre será el centro de todas sus construcciones.

¿Cuál es tu visión de México como destino de Inversión?

México tiene un lugar geográficamente estratégico. Por un lado, es vecino de Estados Unidos y, por otro, es la puerta de entrada a Sudamérica. Se ha desarrollado mucho mejor en comparación con los demás países latinoamericanos, en materia financiera, legal y de negocios. Los préstamos tienen niveles mucho más bajos que en cualquier otro país de la región, además de que la economía del turismo ha crecido de forma espectacular. México tiene un gran futuro para los inversionistas mexicanos y extranjeros.

¿Cuáles son los principales desafíos que detectas?

El problema a corto plazo de México es la política. En Cancún, por ejemplo, teníamos un buen ritmo de venta, pero, con el nuevo presidente, las ventas se pararon. Lo que sí me parece un gran problema es la inseguridad. En Vallarta, por ejemplo, cuando nosotros empezamos, cerca de 80% de los compradores eran estadounidenses y canadienses, y 20% mexicanos; ahora la situación es al revés. Aun con eso, veo un futuro en México muy bueno, muy fuerte, pero definitivamente hay que resolver muchas cosas.

¿Cuál fue la primera inversión que hiciste en México?

Fue hace más de 10 años, con Icon Vallarta. También compramos el terreno de Zihuatanejo, donde construimos SLS Reserve.

En materia de contratación y capacitación de personal, ¿cómo ha sido tu experiencia al respecto?

En The Related Group tenemos alrededor de 70 proyectos en todas partes. No quiero un equipo grande sólo por tenerlo; creo que la persona correcta puede hacer el trabajo de tres personas promedio. Por esa razón vamos a las mejores universidades, a buscar a aquéllos con deseos de triunfar. Aquí la gente gana el doble que en nuestra competencia y hay jóvenes de 30 años que, por su compromiso y pasión, ya tienen a su cargo proyectos. Por otro lado, si el mercado de condominios bajera en Miami, las personas han sido entrenadas para trabajar en otros sectores, como edificios de renta o affordable housing. Tratamos de contratar gente con natural inteligencia y pasión.

Es conocida tu pasión por el arte.

Todo el tiempo me empapo de arte. Desayuno, almuerzo y cena con artistas. Tengo curadores full time y en todo momento voy a ferias y distintos eventos. Soy un coleccionista que se deja llevar por el instinto.

Amigos y buenos momentos a todo lo alto.

Miami: cuatro fantásticos bares de azotea

El popular destino del sur del "Estado del Sol" atesora bares imperdibles en la cima de algunos de sus rascacielos. Una invitación al relax después de un intenso día recorriendo sus múltiples atractivos turísticos.

CARLOS HARRISON

Muy alto en Miami Beach hay un lugar todo zen. Un espacio para disfrutar, para refugiarse, para reunirse con amigos. Donde la atención no descuida ningún detalle, hay tragos exquisitos y —como asegura una repetida frase de bienes raíces— prima la "ubicación, ubicación, ubicación". Todo, combinando para brindar una experiencia inolvidable que nunca debe de faltar en una visita al sur de la Florida.

Este lugar es Juvia, ganador del premio al "Restaurante con un diseño excepcional" otorgado por la fundación James Beard, y que está ubicado en una azotea con vista panorámica adyacente al emblemático edificio Herzog & de Meuron, a la entrada de Lincoln Road.

Es como un oasis en el cielo, diseñado deliberada y diligentemente para reflejar la esencia de la ciudad sobre la que se yergue, con el cielo, el mar y un jardín tropical incorporados muy elegantemente en la decoración.

En el acceso, un jardín vertical de 6,60 m. de alto cubre la pared de la terraza y conecta el interior y el exterior al fluir hacia un sector acristalado. Diseñado por Patrick Blanc, un botánico de fama mundial, el muro cubierto de frondoso follaje local crea una cascada de sutiles tonos verdes y púrpura que cae suavemente junto a una larga mesa de madera petrificada.

En un sereno rectángulo cubierto de piedra y rodeado de bancos con cojines color púrpura hay una caída de agua estilo art deco tan suave que el movimiento del agua es apenas perceptible. Las sillas son de mimbre tejido a mano, el techo es de madera de roble encalada y todo está salpicado de tonos púrpura y un gris delicado. Hay también una barra de piedra de amatista en el interior que resplandece de noche.

LAS CLAVES DEL ÉXITO.

"Creo que los restaurantes tienen su propio lenguaje", dijo Jonnas Millan, quien creó y es copropietario de Juvia junto con su esposa Alexandra. "Cuando visitas un restaurante y piensas que el lugar es bello, pero por alguna razón no te convence completamente, es porque no hay un lenguaje sostenido que se extienda a todo: la llegada del comensal, la manera en que sirven el agua, la mesa, las servilletas, los vasos, la iluminación. Todo necesita combinarse para llegar a un mismo fin".

¿Te das cuenta? Hasta el más minucioso detalle. Solo fíjate en las servilletas púrpuras.

"Nos tomó... yo diría que unos cinco meses escoger las servilletas", asegura Millan, quien luego agrega: "Todo el mundo renta las servilletas en Estados Unidos, pero nosotros queríamos que fueran púrpuras y estampadas. De modo que empezamos a encargar muestras a New York, a Italia, a Turquía, a Perú. Y por fin nos decidimos por este modelo que representa, pienso yo, el conjunto completo. Es parte de lo que hemos tratado de lograr".

Aún el nombre, Juvia, demuestra lo cuidadosos que han sido los dueños. Suena como la palabra "lluvia". Y es como les dicen a los coquitos de Brasil en algunos lugares de Venezuela, de donde son oriundos los dueños. Y, más importante aún, es fácil de pronunciar en inglés.

"Si buscas un nombre muy exótico la gente puede no saber pronunciarlo", comenta Millan. "Y lo otro es que en las pequeñas aldeas rurales venezolanas utilizan ese tipo de nuez para hacer el 'pan de pobre' con el que alimentan a sus hijos. De modo que tienes su historia".

El menú es igual de bien planeado, una fusión sofisticada pero divertida de la cocina latina y la asiática que sorprende y satisface cualquier paladar. El tamachi es-puma, ceviche de langosta, asado de tira Wagyu, pulpo anticucho.

Igual con las bebidas. Los distintos cócteles se conciben y se preparan con el mismo esmero con el que se planeó el lugar.

El Jalisco Flower, por ejemplo, incluye Suze, Dolin Blanc, bitter Peychaud's y tequila reposado Juvia Barrel destilado exclusivamente para su homónimo por el tequila Aviión. Perfect Yuzo, un trago delicado y ácido que le hace honor a su nombre, tiene una base de vodka Grey Goose, sake yuzu, jugo de limas y sirope de vainilla. El Juvia Gin Tonic mezcla ginebra Bombay Sapphire East, umeshu, shiso y agua tónica para crear un cóctel fresco tan atenuante como la brisa del mar.

Y como en vez de paredes hay cristales, se aprecia una vista perfecta que abarca desde el océano Atlántico hasta la bahía de Biscayne, con una panorámica incomparable del cielo, del perfil de la ciudad y del mar desde cualquier parte del restaurante.

Como aseguró el neoyorquino Chad Matthews, "en este lugar puedes ver las mejores vistas de South Beach, ya sea desde adentro o desde afuera".

Juvia está en el 1111 de Lincoln Road, en Miami Beach. Tel.: (305) 763-8272.

OTROS BARES SINGULARES.

• EAST. ¡Agarra rumbo este, muchacho! Y llegarás a este hotel de lujo que también cuenta con suites residenciales, ubicado al borde de Mary Brickell Village, en el corazón del flamante, floreciente y cada vez más exclusivo y decididamente chic distrito financiero de Miami. Sube hasta el piso 40 y ahí encontrarás Sugar, un bar en la azotea donde sirven cócteles de postín y tapas, y donde podrás disfrutar de una extraordinaria vista del centro de Miami. Exuda un encanto indonesio exótico, con exuberante follaje, cómodos divanes de ratán tallado y un bar de elaborada madera labrada. Los cócteles están a la par de la decoración: Lychee Blossom, Night in Hong Kong, East of Miami, son algunos.

788 Brickell Plaza, 40th Floor. Tel.: (786) 805-4655.

• AREA 31. En el piso 16 del Hotel Epic, en el centro de Miami. Me gusta situarme al lado de la baranda a la puesta del sol y observar un juego de fútbol que tiene lugar en una azotea más abajo, a unas pocas cuerdas de distancia, o simplemente mirar embobado la desembocadura del río Miami sobre la bahía de Biscayne. De día o de noche, Area 31 brinda una vista panorámica sin igual del punto donde surgió Miami, y del lugar en el que se ha convertido. También es uno de los sitios donde se puede mirar algo del bar con un habano que puedes seleccionar en el menú. Una elección por todo lo alto que cuenta, por caso, con un Padrón Reserva N° 45 y ron Zacapa Xo de Guatemala, si eso es lo tuyo. O si quieres probar algo diferente, atrévete a un Smoke & Mirrors con borbón Wild Turkey, Carpano Antica, whisky Barrel-Aged Bitters, Islay Rinse y Flamed Orange.

270 Biscayne Boulevard Way, Miami. Tel.: (305) 424-5234.

BAR DEL HOTEL Y SPA

• MAYFAIR. En el histórico distrito Coconut Grove de Miami este bar en torno a la piscina es un refugio de azotea con una vista única del perfil de la urbe y de la bahía de Biscayne. Tumbate al atardecer en un "banco en serpentina" que zigzaguea alrededor del parapeto. En caso de que desees un poco más de privacidad, también hay ocho bañetas junto a la piscina con sofás en forma de L. Las noches cálidas se sienten más frescas mientras saboreas un Biscayne Breeze a base de amaretto, Blue Curaçao, piña y Prosecco. 3000 Florida Avenue, Coconut Grove. Tel.: 441-0000.
